Aquinas Senior Gets Football Scholarship

Boston College, a second home for many Aquinas graduates in recent years, added a football player to the list with the announcement that tackle Thomas J. Hughes of 545 Meadow Brook Rd. has been accepted.

Hughes, a 6-foot-1, 220-pounder played varsity ball for the Aquinas Little Irish for the past two years. He was a first team All-Catholic selection, standing out both on offense and defense for the Maroon and White.

"I think Tom should do real well in college ball," says Joe Repko, Hughes' coach at Aquinas. "He's strong, has speed and a good pair of hands. He's a good boy and coachable."

A football, track, and basketball letterman at Aquinas, Hughes concentrated on football although he belonged to the champion shot-put team which won honors throughout the area last year. He was voted a member of the Aquinas student council and served as treasurer of the senior class.

Hughes won't be homesone on the Boston College campus. Two other Aquinas seniors have won scholarships to the Jesuit college. Dennis Bronks of St. Thomas parish and Michael McNutt of Sacred Heart Cathedral parish both have been awarded full tuition academic scholarship. Bronks and McNutt stand second and third, respectively, in their class of 361 students.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hughes of Mother of Sorrows parish, Hughes has been awarded a full scholarship covering tuition, board and room. He intends to play for the Boston College football team. W.J.

Relics Transfer Riles Italians

Rome—(RNS)—Does the Vatican have the right to send precious relics abroad, even in the form of "restitution," without obtaining prior authorization from Italy's Superintendent of Fine Arts?

Controversy on this issue was aroused last year when Pope Paul VI returned to the Greek Orthodox Diocese of Patras in Greece a gold reliquary containing the preserved skull of St. Andrew, who was beheaded at Patras in 80 A.D.

Serving to revive the controversy were the recent Vatican announcements that the Pope was planning to restore to an Orthodox monastery near Jerusalem the remains of St. Sabbas, who died there in 432, and to create the head of St. Titus, the companion of St. Paul the Apostle.

The relic of St. Titus is enshrined in St. Mark's Basilica in Venice in a precious 17th Century silver reliquary which is part of the Italian "artistic patrimony."

The controversy was highlighted when a question was raised by Communist Senator Morvidi in the Italian parliament. It was addressed to Minister of Education Luigi Gui, a Christian Democrat who defended the Vatican's position.

Mass Around The Clock

Washington—(NG)—Pope Paul VI has given permission for three days and nights of continuous Masses July 24-26 at the shrine of the Sacred Heart at Parly-le-Monial, France, in observance of the approval of the feast of the Sacred Heart. This was reported here by Father Francis Larkin, S.S.C., of Rochester, who is national director of the movement for enthronement of the Sacred Heart in the home, who will lead the pilgrimage to Parly-le-Monial at the time of the centenary celebration.

More Reforms Predicted

Minneapolis, Minn. — (RNS) — A "thorough-going reform" of the Mass and other Sacraments and rites will be ready in four to seven years, a Benedictine priest and liturgy expert who is working on the revision predicted here.

Father Godfrey Diekmann, O.S.B., editor of Worship magazine, said the revised Mass will make much greater use of Holy Scripture and will be "a meaningful experience deepening faith, hope and charity."

He addressed some 150 clergymen at a breakfast meeting of the Minneapolis Ministerial Association at Augsburg College, a Lutheran school.

FATHER DIEKMANN described the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy, promulgated by the Second Vatican Council in 1963, as the basis for the coming revision, as the foundation of the Catholic Church's self-reform and spiritual renewal.

He said he was convinced that next to the Scriptures there is no other document in the history of the Catholic Church that contains such possibilities for spiritual revitalization.

"It is the 'Magna Carta' of the Catholic Church's 'Second Spring,'" he declared.

He said the new liturgy demands personal involvement in worship "because it is our encounter with Christ."

The new liturgy should help dispell, he added, the notion of many Protestants that Catholics believe they are saved by sacraments while Protestants are saved by faith.

"We Catholics also believe that man is saved by faith for we, too, claim to be Christians," Father Diekmann declared.

He described the sacraments as "signs of faith willed by Christ," but said that this understanding of sacraments has "not always been in the forefront of average Catholic thinking." The Protestant Reformation, he said, was partly a protest against the fact that sacraments had become "too mechanical" in the Catholic Church. The new liturgy, he suggested, will help undo "the mechanization of four centuries."

Father Diekmann said the liturgy constitution will provide for a great increase in Bible devotions and Bible readings in the Church. He added that there was some truth to the accusation that Catholics in the past had "neglected Holy Scripture."

The priest expressed hope that the dream of a common Bible for all Christians eventually will be realized. "Divine Providence seems to bring us closer together by the living and life-giving Word," he commented.

U.S. Catholics In Latin America

Washington—(NG)—The number of U.S. priests, nuns and laymen serving the Church in Latin America has increased nearly 50% in three years, a new report shows. As of Jan. 1, the total was 4,091, compared with 2,761 on Jan. 1, 1962. This is an increase of 1,330, slightly more than 48% of the 1962 figure.

These figures are contained in a report on U.S. Catholic efforts to supply personnel to the Church in Latin America, prepared by the subcommittee for recruitment of the U.S. bishops' committee for Latin America.

Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken of San Francisco is chairman of the subcommittee, and Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston is chairman of the committee.

The report says the total of U.S. diocesan and religious priests serving in Latin America is 1,849, a gain of 34.3% over the 1962 figure. There are 1,883 U.S. nuns there, an increase of 694 or 58.3%.

LAYMEN serving in Latin America in association with the Papal Volunteers program total 359.

Stress Service To Community

Buffalo — (RNS) — "Ecumenical civics" — church and synagogue groups working together for community improvement — is "a major channel for unity among us," a Catholic authority on urban affairs told an interreligious seminar at Canisius College.

Father Robert G. Howes, chairman of the city and regional planning program at the Catholic University of America, also said diocesan, church councils and social action committees must help neighborhood pastors and churches see and understand "the full spread of urban renewal." He suggested more emphasis on this by church colleges, church lay organizations and religious publications.
