20 Mercy Nuns Receive Grants

Twenty Mercy nuns have been awarded scholarships for graduate studies at summer school sessions, according to Sister Mary Bonaventure, directress of studies at Catherine McAuley College, Rochester.

The National Science Foundation awarded nine scholarships in mathematics, five in science and one in anthropology. Two language grants and a third in history were awarded through the National Defense Education Act. The General Electric Foundation and the Newspaper Fund also gave grants to the nuns.

Following are the recipients of awards, the field of their studies and the colleges they will attend:

Grants from the National Science Foundation: Sister Mary Beatrice, anthropology, University of Arizona; the following for mathematics: Sister Mary Campion, University of Notre Dame; Sister Marie Catherine, University of South Carolina; Sister Mary Cephas, West Chester State College; Sister Mary David, Pennsylvania State University; Sister Mary Fidels, Central Connecticut State College; Sister Mary Mathew, College of the Holy Cross; Sister Mary Matthias, Western Illinois University; Sister Mary Maurice, University of Maryland; Sister Mary Thomasine, University of Maryland; the following for science: Sister Mary Boniface, St. Louis University; Sister Mary Carmella, Union College; Sister Mary Edward, St. Bonaventure University; Sister Mary George, College of St. Thomas; Sister Mary Nathaniel, University of Notre Dame.

From the National Defense Education program:

Sister Mary Peter Claver, French, University of Akron; Sister Mary Assumpta, German, University of Washington; Sister Mary Johanna, history, Wesleyan University.

Sister Mary Jonatha will study economics at Union College on a General Electric Foundation grant and Sister Joseph Mary, journalism at Syracuse University on an award from the Newspaper Fund.

Dr. Muirhead: Says Federal School Aid No Harm to Local Control

Federal aid to education need not damage local control of schools, the Associate Commissioner of the U.S. Office of Education told 550 delegates at the biennial convention of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women last Saturday.

Dr. Peter Muirhead, main speaker at the gathering held at Bishop Kearney High School, said that the history of federal assistance to higher education has not shown any real danger to local control.

He admitted that on the primary and secondary levels, the weight of court decisions on the Church-State aspects, tends to limit aid to parochial schools.

"The recent federal aid program does make provision for some assistance to private schools, however," he noted.

On the college level, the tradition of federal aid has been one of much greater latitude in giving aid to colleges, Dr. Muirhead pointed out.

His address was a highlight of the day-long program which began with Mass offered by Bishop Lawrence B. Casey at 9:30, included 8 workshops outlining areas of DCCW work, featured an array of informative exhibits, and wound up with a stimulating 30-minute theater-in-the-round presentation of "Some of My Best Friends," social drama on the roots of prejudice.

Dr. Elinor Barnes, retiring president of the DCCW, installed as new officers five women who have won their spurs in Council ranks by spirited leadership in recent years.

Mrs. RONALD GLEDHILL, a member of Christ the King parish, was installed president, having been elected at the last quarterly meeting held in Clyde, on March 28. She will be assisted by Mrs. Joseph Palo, first vice-president, and Mrs. Raymond Hensler, second vice-president. Mrs. John Curran, Clifton Springs, will act as a recording secretary, and the duties of treasurer will be assumed by Mrs. C. Fay Lunkenheimer, Red Creek. Their terms of office begins June first.

Mrs. Gledhill, born in Minneapolis, adopted Rochester nineteen years ago. She is the mother of four children ranging in age from eleven to twenty one years.

Mrs. Gledhill manages time for activity in her parish, in church organizations, and in the community. A member of Christ the King's Rosary Guild, she participates in the parish Confraternity of Christian Doctrine Program, teaching fourth grade. She has worked in Girl Scouts, serving as a leader for the past four years.

Dr. Ronald Gledhill, in color research at the Eastman Kodak Company, seconds his wife's ideas on personal involvement. He actively supported her work in "Each One Teach One," a program to overcome illiteracy in the area. With his wife, he took the course necessary to teach in the project and participated in the workshop to prepare others for this job.

Answering a plea to help tutor reading in some of the city schools, Mrs. Gledhill began work on the SRA reading program at No. 2 School in Rochester. She also represents the Catholic Interracial Council on the Religion and Race Council of Rochester.

Mrs. Gledhill has been active in the work of the Council of Catholic Women for several years. Presently, she holds the office of historian, and represents the Council on the Board of the Women's Human Relations Council.

THE OFFICE of first vice-president will be filled by Mrs. Joseph Palo. Mrs. Palo began her DCCW career as a delegate to the Monroe County Council from St. James Rosary Society. She was elected vice-president of the Monroe County Council, succeeding to the presidency,

Aquinas Names Football Coach

Bob Rosmarino, a dedicated youth worker and former Holy Cross College football star, has been named head coach of the Aquinas Institute football squad. Aquinas athletic director Rev. Cyril F. Carter, C.S.B., announced today that Rosmarino would succeed Joe Repko as Aquinas' head coach.

Repko informed Aquinas officials last fall that he did not intend to continue in the coaching field but agreed to remain on the teaching staff until the end of the current school year. He plans to enter the business world.

The 29-year old Rosmarino, a native of Lawrence, Mass., played football at Holy Cross College from 1952 to 1955.

While attending Central Catholic High School in Lawrence, Rosmarino participated in four sports: football, basketball, baseball and track, attaining high school All-American honors in football and basketball. At graduation he received the Michael Garvey Award as the student best combining scholastic and athletic excellence.

Rosmarino received a football scholarship to Holy Cross where he was first string fullback on the freshman team and led the team in touchdowns scored. During the next three years he was starting varsity fullback, leading the squad in scoring and yardage gained.

In the sixth game of his senior year he suffered a fractured shoulder which ended his playing career. He holds degrees in political science and history and has extensive teaching experience.

After graduation from college Rosmarino was backfield coach at Lawrence High School (Massachusetts) for one year and then took the same position at St. Rita High School in Chicago the following year. In 1961 he was appointed head coach at St. Philip High School in Chicago, working with underprivileged children. He received commendation from the Chicago Chamber of Commerce for his work with young people in slum areas.

At Aquinas he will teach physical education and history, in addition to his coaching duties.

The appointment of Rosmarino follows four months of hard work by Father Carter and his athletic staff who screened more than 20 candidates, including former professional football players. Applications were received from many parts of the country, including one from California and another from New Orleans.

Rosmarino will take over his duties on August 15. He intends to move here with his wife at the end of the school year.

The personable young coach will come to Rochester well recommended. Father Carter has received telephone calls from Pete Elliott, head coach of the University of Illinois and from Jack Mellinkoff, Purdue University football coach, on Rosmarino's behalf.

In addition Father Carter received letters from Alex Agase, Northwestern University coach; Duffy Daugherty, head coach at Michigan State and from Bob Devaney, University of Nebraska coach.

In a recent interview with Rosmarino, he had this to say about his coaching system: "The system of football I use is basically the Wing, or Offensive System. I use either a balanced or unbalanced line with split ends and backs. Depending on situations and opponents, my offense has enough elasticity to adjust to any defense an opponent may use. On defense we have a basic 'wide tackle six' defense."

"I have accepted the head coaching position at Aquinas Institute for the challenge offered in what I regard as an ideal football program," Rosmarino said.

St. Joseph Motherhouse Open To Public on Sunday

Normally, by far the larger portion of the Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Rochester on East Avenue is cloistered, or closed off, to anyone except the Sisters, so that although literally thousands of people have come to the Motherhouse since it was built in 1928, very few have seen more than the chapel, front halls, and the parlors.

Now, in accordance with the wish expressed last year by our Most Reverend Bishop that the "unnecessary mystery" separating religious from the rest of the People of God be removed wherever possible, Reverend Mother Agnes Cecilia, Mother General of the Congregation has announced that the entire Motherhouse will be open to visitors on Sunday, May 2, from 2:30 until 5 p.m. Seventh and eighth grade students, high school students and adults are most cordially invited to attend.

The families of those Sisters and Postulants who live at the Motherhouse are invited for an earlier time on the same day, from 12:30 until 2, when their own daughters will take them on tour.

Friday Luncheon Club Lists Father Adamski

"Does the Church Need a Mother," is the topic for talk by Rev. Henry F. Adamski at the First Friday Luncheon club meeting, May 7, Donald E. Woerner, chairman of the Knights of Columbus sponsoring committee announced today.

Father Adamski is assistant pastor at St. Stanislaus Church. He will be presented by Rev. William B. Holberton, club moderator and chaplain of Rochester Council, Knights of Columbus. Luncheon will begin at 12:10 p.m.

Any Catholic man receiving Holy Communion at the First Friday is eligible to attend the luncheon.

The speaker was ordained in June 1942. His first assignment was as assistant pastor of St. Stanislaus and in 1950 he was transferred by Bishop Kearney to assistant pastor of St. John the Evangelist, Clyde. In 1961 he returned to St. Stanislaus, Rochester.

THE GAVEL PASSES from Dr. Elinor Barnes, left, out-going president of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, to Mrs. Ronald Gledhill, the new president. Other officers who were installed at last Saturday's convention included, (standing) Mrs. John Curran, Secretary, and Mrs. Joseph Palo, first Vice-president.
