Not all the "little people" but he was firm. With the small visitors, he's a push-over. WE SAW a perfect example of this, playing the con game, during a walk from our house to the neighborhood shopping center: just the Head of the House, little Mary Daly Brennan and I.

In her buttercup-yellow dress, seven-year-old Mary would run ahead, take a few steps backward until we'd catch up, then continue a running fire of conversation, a subtly aimed, we could see, toward a master point.

With his own children, the Head of the House wasn't stern

Mr. Push-Over

By MARY TINLEY DALY

"Remember when you came to my house—it was just before I made my First Holy Communion—and you asked me all those questions about God and the Church and I answered every one right?"

Yes, the Head of the House remembered.

"And you gave me 50 cents for answering all the questions. Well, do you know what happened to that 50 cents?"

"You bought candy with it? Or a present for your mother?"

"Nope. Aunt Markie took it away from me. She said she needed it to make change or something, but you know I think she just wanted to get rich real quick."

THIS WAS a serious charge and the Head of the House promised to take it upon himself to rescue this granddaughter from such an extortion plot just as soon as he saw Aunt Markie.

"But that isn't now, Grandpa," Mary said, "and the store over her on the avenue might run out of those little dolls before you could get Aunt Markie to give me back the money. Let's talk about those questions about God and the Church that you asked me. Well, I bet I could answer 'em all again—and any questions you could think up!"

Proposition accepted. The rest of the walk, we heard the fruits of the Holy Spirit, the Ten Commandments, the Deadly Sins, the Precepts of the Church, Grace before Meals, the Our Father, Hall Mary, Acts of Faith, Hope and Charity—and the Act of Contrition.

"That's very, very good, Mary," the victim of the con game said, "and if you can answer the baseball question—and remember the question—you'll get another 50 cents."

Mary clapped both hands to her temples and stopped dead still.

"Oh, Grandpa, I know, but I just can't think. Now don't tell me . . ."

"Yes!" she jumped up and down. "You said, 'When did God first talk about baseball in the Bible, and I didn't know it then but you told me. It's in the first line of Genesis. Genevieve!'"

"Genesis," he prompted.

"O.K. And it says, 'In the big inning!' I haven't read the Bible—yet," she explained. "But I sure remember that part."

So, 50 cents quickly changed hands—a triple play, you might call it: from the Head of the House to Mary to the clerk in the doll store.

"And you're still going to get my 50 cents back from Aunt Markie?"

June Wedding Ceremonies Nazareth College Summer Session

An English Institute and a special program in Art Education will be two of the highlights of this year's Summer session at Nazareth College. Registration will be held June 24 from 9-12 and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the college auditorium.

The English Institute, designed to strengthen the competence of high school English teachers, will run simultaneously with the summer session. Two three-credit courses, "Critical Approaches to Literature" and "History of the English Language" will be offered and students will also participate in a coordinating seminar designed to deal with practical problems of teaching high school English.

Special conferences in composition will constitute an extra, non-credit feature of the Institute. Extra curricular features will include correlated activities at Rochester's Memorial Art Gallery and Dryden Theater and trips to the Shakespeare Festival Theater in Stratford, Ontario. State funds will again be available for the program.

The special program in art education will be directed primarily towards helping the regular classroom teacher from kindergarten to sixth grade to handle her own art program more effectively.

Two courses will be offered. "Methods and Materials of Art" will cover the history and background of art education and problems in organizing, presenting and evaluating art materials and activities. "Studio" work will furnish creative experience in art media suitable for use in the elementary grades.

In addition to a broad range of courses for undergraduate credit, seven courses will be offered in the graduate division. These are: "Psychology of Learning," "Bibliography"—a study of criteria and techniques in library research, "History of
