'Sing Along' At Holy Mass

Spokane — (NC) — A man whose livelihood once depended on his ability to get movie theater audiences to sing now has turned his attention to getting people to sing out in church.

Jean Anthony Grief, organist and hymn writer, recalled that he used to play the organ in Chicago theaters during the heyday of movies. It was the era of community singing at the movies and the organist's job to get audiences "to raise the roof" in song, Grief said. It was either that or goodby job.

He has published a booklet, "English Hymns for Low Mass," which contains seven low-pitch, easy rhythm hymns for congregational singing. His booklet was shown at the recent National Liturgical Week held in Baltimore, Md.

Some people actually go into a bank to get a boat loan

Silly trip.

We bring the bank to the buyer with a Lincoln Rochester Boat Loan. You get it right at the dealer.

In fact, we've got the loan-for-boat business down to a science.

For one thing, we figured out the fact that people like to have accessories included in the loan like cushions and water skiis and life jackets and even the first tank of gas.

For another, we figured that people like the loan protected so we offer a wonderful low-cost health and accident insurance called Blanket Protection.

Then of course we assumed that people want low bank rates and as long as 3 years to pay back the loan.

All that figuring paid off. We've launched more admirals than any other bank in the Rochester fleet.

Ask your dealer about us. We'd be delighted to pipe you aboard.

Teenagers Pick Top Films

When more than 500 Catholic high school students in four states were recently asked to name the best film they had ever seen, the leading vote-getters were "West Side Story," "Becket," "Tom Jones," "Gone with the Wind," "Ben-Hur" and "Goldfinger."

When they were asked to name the worst, their choices clustered around "Baby, the Rain Must Fall," "Surf Party," "Bikini Beach Party," "Night of the Iguana," "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home" and "any Jerry Lewis film."

The survey was conducted by the Young Catholic Leaders Institute of the Archdiocese of Newark in conjunction with the Film Society of Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart in Purchase, N.Y.

Results of the survey, made among students in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Connecticut, were reported by the Rev. Stanley M. Grabowski, 39-year-old director of the institute and one of the leaders of the film education movement in the United States.

This winter he was U.S. representative at a Pan-Asian meeting on film education held in India under the sponsorship of the International Catholic Film Office.

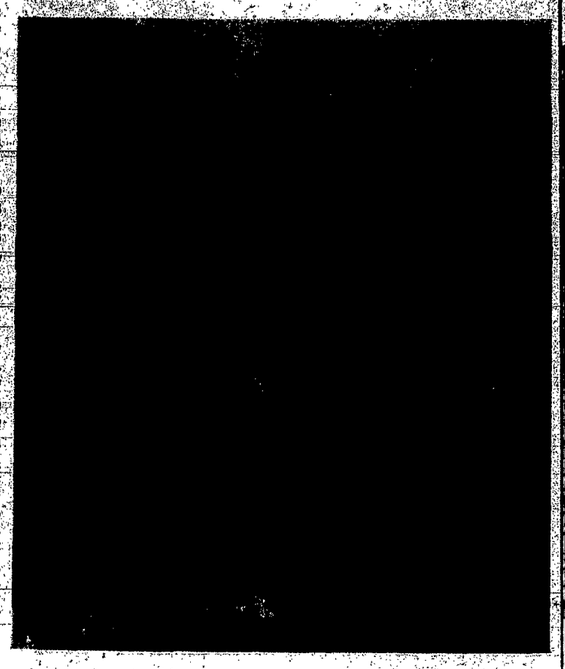
Purpose of the survey, Father Grabowski said, was to determine the critical standards of teen-aged moviegoers and their desire for education in understanding films.

"Of those who said they never had any kind of training in viewing films, eighty-nine per cent expressed a definite desire to learn about films," Father Grabowski reported. He said the survey showed "they need such training very badly, and need it immediately."

"The fact that some students considered such films as 'The Manchurian Candidate,' 'Goldfinger,' 'Auntie Mame,' 'Charade' and 'Taras Bulbas' as the best pictures they had ever seen and such films as 'The Treasure of the Sierra Madre,' 'Hud,' 'The Last Angry Man,' 'Behold a Pale Horse' and 'The Night of the Iguana' as the worst films indicates that there is a lack of values in their seeing habits," he said.

"If the question asked which film they liked the best, no one could argue with their preference. But since it was a question of an opinion on the qualitative best of films, the students revealed their lack of understanding and appreciating films for what they are."

In his continuing effort to improve teen-agers' tastes in films, Father Grabowski is this summer conducting three week-long film seminars for teen-agers in Washington, Syracuse and New York City under the auspices of the Summer School of Christian Apostolate (formerly the Summer School of Catholic Action).



Father Stanley Grabowski

Aimed at providing the audience with "some basis for critical evaluation of films," the seminars will be similar to those he has been conducting for the past five years at Manhattanville College, at Georgian Court College in New Jersey for the past two years, at Caldwell College for a year and in 18 high schools in the four-state survey areas over the past five years.

Father Grabowski's deep involvement in promoting film education stemmed from his work with the Young Catholic Leaders Institute, which he founded. "One area we felt had to be covered was the field of the communication arts," he said. When Albany's Bishop William Scully, then chairman of the Episcopal Committee for Motion Pictures, came out strongly for film study clubs six years ago "we implemented his plan immediately."

Although Father Grabowski at that time had trouble selling high schools and colleges on the need to study films, "now I haven't enough time to fill all the requests I get to conduct seminars." Most of his work is around the four-state area, but he has conducted workshops and seminars in Chicago, Montreal and Toronto.

Father Grabowski is presently working on a "do-it-yourself" film-study package that would include about a dozen classic films, like "The Informer," "High Noon," "Shane," "Citizen Kane," "The Oxbow Incident," "Death of a Salesman" and others. Accompanying each film would be a tape, in which a professional critic or a film director would comment on the film. In addition, there would be a study-guide booklet for each picture. He is now seeking financial backing for the package.

A theatrical scenic designer for several years before entering the seminary, Father Grabowski's love of films can perhaps be traced to his childhood. He lived not far from Fort Lee, N.J., which preceded Hollywood as the film capital of the world. Several films were still being made there when he was eight or nine and he remembers being recruited for child "crowd" scenes in "Our Gang" comedies.

"We were paid with ice cream," he said coldly.

Mission Guild Visits St. Jude's

Members of the Catholic Mission Guild of Rochester enjoyed a Pilgrimage to St. Jude Chapel last Tuesday at Fairhaven, N.Y. Rev. Elmer W. Heindl, their Chaplain and Pastor of St. Patrick's, St. Thomas and St. Jude's, celebrated Mass at 11:30 a.m. for living and deceased members.

After a smorgasbord Communion breakfast and lunch at the Pleasant Beach Hotel on Little Sodus Bay, the members toured Fairhaven State Park, St. Thomas Church, and other scenic spots. The afternoon ended at the Chapel with an explanation of the symbols used in St. Jude Chapel, formally a meeting and dance hall but now serving over 500 Catholic visitors every Sunday. The parishioners of St. Thomas and St. Jude entertained the visitors with refreshments in the hall.

Graduates Hear Reuther

New Orleans — (NC) — Pickets and counterpickets paraded at St. Mary's Dominican College when Walter P. Reuther delivered the address at the annual graduation ceremonies.

The Dominican Sisters who operate the college for women said they had been under pressure to cancel Reuther's address on the ground that the head of the United Auto Workers is a "communist and an atheists." Chief opponent of Reuther's appearance was the Citizen's Council of Greater New Orleans, a segregationist group.

Singelmann had said if Reuther "gets to make that talk it'll be the major accomplishment of the year." Reuther not only made the talk, but alluding to the picketing, declared: "Our friends out there don't understand that when hate fills man's heart there is no room for reason in his head."

Reuther told the graduates that each must pray "for the wisdom and strength to search for the truth so that together we may find our way to brotherhood." He said that the same scientific and technological knowhow that provides man with the capability of producing the H-bomb and the nuclear weapons of overkill, also provides man with automation and the 20th century tools of peace and undreamed of economic abundance.
