

Street Fight Dampens Festival

The second night of St. Bridget's Summer Festival had barely got underway last Saturday night at the Gorham Street church's courtyard, when it was broken up by a ruckus among some youthful patrons.

In a relatively short time, a policeman and two people in attendance had been injured, the melee had shifted onto Hand Street, one arrest had been made—and in the meantime, at police advisement, the festival had been shut down and the booths taken down and put away.

Next day, charges of "police brutality" were leveled by Minister Franklin Florence, head of the Negro community organization FIGHT. The charges were as promptly denied by Police Inspector Daniel J. Scharpe, who countered with the allegation that several youths had beaten a patrolman before fleeing on foot. The matter was still under hot discussion late this week.

The priests of St. Bridget's said that they felt that in no way was the disturbance aimed at the parish. Their grounds just happened to be the place where trouble broke out.

At the same time, it was a financial blow to the little parish which depends on a successful festival to help make ends meet. The first night, Friday, had gone well—but Saturday was almost a complete loss.

Liturgy Experts Organize Interfaith Study Unit

Strasbourg, France — (RNS) Dedicated to "promoting ecumenical dialogue on worship, based on solid research and with the perspective of renewal and unity," the organization will be formally launched at its first international congress at Oxford University, England, in September, 1966.

Members of the planning commission were named at a meeting in Neuchatel, Switzerland, last March when representatives of the major faiths from the United States and eleven European countries formally approved creation of the international society. It will be known as the Societas Liturgica, a title chosen in part to overcome some of the semantic problems inherent in some English words for those who speak other languages.

The conference here was presided over by Pastor Wiebe Vos of the Reformed Church of the Netherlands, who is an associate director of the interconfessional World Center for Liturgical Studies, established recently at Boca Raton, Florida. Director of the center, which helped to sponsor the Neuchatel meeting, is Canon Don H. Copeland of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States. The center has a board of advisors which includes nearly 40 eminent churchmen and liturgical experts in the U.S. and other countries. It publishes quarterly, Studia Liturgica, which is edited by Pastor Vos.

Parvuli Dei Award Given

Caring — Michael, Gustina, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Gustina of 194 Reynolds Ave., was reported to be the first coming area Cub Scout in recent years to win the Parvuli Dei Award which is presented a Catholic Cub Scout for high achievement.

The award, presented to him at a ceremony in St. Ann's Church of Canaan recently, is a recognition by the Church of a Cub Scout's advancement in religious knowledge and spiritual information. It was the only such presentation in the county at that ceremony.

While completing the 12 requirements for the award, Michael developed a log book and was reviewed by his Cubmaster and parish priest.

Mike has been a member of St. Vincent's Pack 63 for three years and will enter the Boy Scout program this September.

Also this fall he will be in the sixth grade at St. Vincent's School.
