

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD P. SCHLEDORN

Golden Jubilee For Schledorns

Dansville—Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Schledorn recently observed their golden wedding anniversary. The day began with Mass at St. Mary's Church, Dansville. Father Raymond Wuest received the renewal of vows before the original attendants, Mrs. Michael Heiman, the bride's sister, and Mr. Fred Schledorn.

The Schledorns are parents of a son, Richard, at home, and a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Conlin, Pittsford. Both are retired employees of the Owen Publishing Co. Mr. Schledorn retired in 1960 following 56 years with the company; Mrs. Schledorn in 1962, after 30 years of service.

Both are affiliated with the Dansville Council K. of C., he a Fourth Degree member, and she first vice-president of the Auxiliary.

A hunting and archery enthusiast, Mr. Schledorn is member of the Dansville Fish and Game Club. For over a decade he has been a member of the Nocturnal Adoration Society and a frequent retreatant at Notre Dame Retreat House.

Mrs. Schledorn has been Financial Secretary of the local LCBA Branch for 30 years, and is a member of the Altar and Rosary Society. In community affairs, she is active in the Women's Democratic Club of both town and county.

Funeral Held For Helen Yerger

Requiem Mass for Miss Helen Yerger, administrator of Albion's Arnold Gregory Memorial Hospital, was celebrated at Blessed Sacrament Church in Rochester on Tuesday, Aug. 10, 1965. Monsignor Edward J. McAniff was the celebrant.

Miss Yerger, formerly of Rochester, died on Friday, Aug. 6, 1965. A 34-year veteran of hospital work, she had been administrator at the Albion hospital for the last 10 years and had planned to retire this fall.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. David Rowntree of Oakfield, N.Y., and two brothers, George and Ward Yerger, both of Rochester.

Assisting at the funeral Mass were Monsignor Thomas F. Connors and Father Francis M. Feeney. Father Edward Golden said the committal prayers at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Students Want An 'Open Church'

New York — (RNS) — A noted Dutch Dominican scholar, the Rev. Edward Schillebeeckx, said on The Catholic Hour NBC-TV program that Roman Catholic students in the Netherlands eagerly want their church to be "an open Church."

In their "impatience" for this goal, some of them may disassociate themselves from the Church and return to it later insofar as they see that the Second Vatican Council "is serious about restructuring the Church."

Father Schillebeeckx was interviewed in the second of a series of programs on "The Church and Change" spotlighting the renewalist effects of the Council upon Catholic life in Holland and Germany. He is professor of Systematic Theology at the University of Nijmegen and special advisor to the Dutch hierarchy on Vatican Council matters. (The third program is scheduled for this Sunday at 10:30 a.m.)

Appearing with him on the national program were Dr. G. Berkouwer, Professor of theology at the Free University of Amsterdam, a Protestant observer at the Council; the Rev. Peter van Leeuwen, theology professor at the Catholic University of Nijmegen; Bishop Wilhelm Bekkers, Bishop of 's Hertogenbosch and two Nijmegen university students.

In the course of the television program, Father van Leeuwen, a Franciscan priest who is a member of the Council's preparatory commission for Schema 13 on the Church and the Modern World, said that an "ecumenical impatience" has developed among Dutch Catholics and Protestants. They want, he said, to move from a stage of discussion and common prayer toward "common worship, and then, possibly to a common Eucharist."

Phillip Scharper, editor-in-chief for the Sheed and Ward publishing firm, was host. The four-part weekly series, ending Aug. 29, was filmed overseas. It will feature on Aug. 22 the Rev. Hans Kueng, dean of the theological faculty at the University of Tuebingen and, on Aug. 29, the Rev. Karl Rahner, German theologian, Julius Cardinal Döpfner of Munich and Msgr. Karl Forster, director of the Catholic Academy of Bavaria, Germany.

Father Schillebeeckx said he had observed that Dutch Catholic students, who form 32 percent of the Netherlands university student population, had displayed "a definite breaking away from the theology of the schools" and a "greater interest in the living, attempted pre-occupation of the faiths in the contacts with today's world."

He continued: "Generally speaking, it is the Church, which is in the center of their theological interest ...

"The students want an open Church, open to the world, open to the other Christian faiths, open to the other religions of the world. The existing Church is still a type of closed Church, with an insistence upon institutional forms.

"Of course, forms among many students are genuine crises, at least in most cases, in the sense of their certain impatience with the slow pace at which the life of the Church is being restructured and re-evangelized."

The result, he said, is that "some" students break away "at least for a time" from the institutional Church, "from which they no longer expect salvation." For them, "the world with its difficult human problems" is more attractive than the Church.

"... I think that many students are in the position of a small boy who has just received a new bicycle. He is so fascinated by his bicycle that he forgets to go to Church Sunday."

But after a while, he returns again to the Sunday Mass, but with his bicycle."

Father van Leeuwen told the television audience that World War II had thrust Protestants and Catholics together in a common defense against attacks upon their freedom. From this encounter, the ecumenical movement developed to a point that present-day youths are growing up "in the new mentality, the 'ecumenical mentality.'"

Discussing the possibility of a common Eucharist for Catholics and Protestants, Father van Leeuwen commented: "Theologians say that it is not yet possible, and the bishops can't permit it; but impatience, ecumenical impatience grows—the desire is living and yet you must wait patiently for what will happen in the coming years."

Dr. Kerkouwer said that as an observer to the Council, "I was personally struck very much by the anti-triumphalism" of the Council Fathers. It showed, he said, "that the Church has to go its way in humility through the world," and this was one of "the most important ecumenical aspects of the Council."

Bishop Bekkers, speaking in Dutch, said the Council was evidence that "the Spirit of God is at work" among the bishops; that "a new theological thinking in the church has been given more of a chance," and that "the Church is prepared to leave the sanctuary and enter the streets, to consider the world as a great and holy place."

The bishops, the prelate said, have "learned to think beyond our own boundaries, to think in terms of the wide world."

He said that the ecumenical movement in a country such as the Netherlands — religiously divided for many years — has found expression "in a genuine way."

"In this context also," he observed, "we are enabled to lay more stress upon freedom of conscience and individual responsibility within the framework of the message of Christ in the Gospels."

In response to a question from Mr. Scharper about the "most important area of renewal" spurred by the Council, Bishop Bekkers listed five — the "liberation from a counter-reformation at the priesthood"; "new forms for family life" within a sacramental perspective; and the distinction between the basic law of Christ "expressed in love" and the form this law takes in the contemporary Church.

Legion Of Decency

The following are the titles of the films reviewed this week to be used in their respective classification of the Legion of Decency.

- Class A, Section I Help (British)
- Willie McBean
- Class A, Section II Wild on the Beach
- Class A, Section II The War Lord
- Class A, Section IV The Moment of Truth

Observation: The subject matter of this highly entertaining and well done film (bull-fighting) is presented in all its gory details. For the sensitive or squeamish it may prove disturbing. Furthermore, certain elements in sexual details are dramatically debatable.

Darling Observation: This caustic social commentary on the gradual spiritual, moral, and final human degeneracy of a young English woman explodes the time-worn and contemporary code that "Whatever one does is all right as long as no one gets hurt." The graphic delineation of this theme is such that it calls for reservations.

The Loved One

Objection: This heavy-handed satire tends to be so completely negative in its treatment of love, burial rites, and human institutions that there is little examined which seems even partially redeemable. Moreover, a commercial appeal to prurient interest is manifest in its choice in erotic and other offensive detail.

Cincinnati Kid, The

Objection: The gratuitous introduction of suggestive costuming and situations blunt what could have been a meaningful film.

Notice of change of classification

Because of changes effected in some of its erotic details, this film, formerly classified "C" (Condemned), is now reclassified "B" (Morally objectionable in Part for All). The film remains objectionable because of its shallow theme and suggestive treatment.
