Vernacular Splits Belgians

Bruges — (NC) — Bilingual Belgium's linguistic controversy is raging again, inspired in part by the introduction of the vernacular into the liturgy.

In the city of Bruges on the Belgian coast, the majority of the citizens are Flemish-speaking. In the vacation season, however, the number of French-speaking visitors to this and Flemish-speaking resort towns greatly increases.

In an attempt to placate French-speaking Belgians and the city's Flemish inhabitants as well, Bishop Emile De Smet of Bruges authorized bilingual Mass sermons with the clear stipulation that the rest of the service be in Flemish, and that the French sermon be only about one-third as long as the Flemish.

Meanwhile, the visitors, and Bruges' own handful of French-speakers as well, are becoming increasingly frustrated by the discrimination exercised against them here and in other cities. They point to a city like Brussels, where Sunday masses are alternated between French and Flemish, and ask why this pattern cannot be followed elsewhere in the country.

Moscow Radio

Airs Pope's Talk

Bonn — (NC) — Radio Moscow broadcast an appeal to "all men of good will" to heed Pope Paul's remarks on the 20th anniversary of the Hiroshima bombing.

In an appearance on the balcony of his summer home in Castel Gandolfo (Aug. 8), Pope Paul pleaded for the outlawing of atomic weapons, and prayed again for a day of misfortune like that of Hiroshima.

Radio Moscow said the Pope's message was a "noble call," and urged that it be taken to heart by "all who have charge of mankind's future."

Keeping Wolves From His Door

— is one of the problems of Arctic missioner Bernard W. Brown, a member of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate. The Rochester-born priest is an Aquinas graduate of 1939. His mother, Mrs. Frank J. Brown lives at 315 Lake Front Ave. in Summerville. Despite their life-like appearance, all these wolves are dead, a tribute to Father Brown's marksmanship. His mission, Our Lady of the Snows, is at Colville Lake in the North West Territory. Chapel shows in background.

Survey Shows Catholics Like Changes

Onamia, Minn. — (RNS) — A survey among readers of the Roman Catholic monthly magazine, Today's Family, produced a vote of approval for English in the Mass, and for Mass facing the people.

But they have reservations about other changes in the new liturgy, in effect in the United States since Nov. 28. They don't like receiving Holy Communion standing up, instead of kneeling, and a number of respondents said in letters accompanying their answer that they objected to so much singing.

The survey was conducted by the Crosier Fathers' magazine in May and the results—which continued to come in past the August issue press time—were based on the replies from more than 400 of the publication's 48,000 subscribers and 280 students at the society's seminaries here.

Seventy-seven per cent of all the replies from the magazine's general subscribers said they liked English in the Mass and 67 per cent liked to assist at a Mass offered by a celebrant facing the congregation from behind the altar, rather than with his back toward them.

But only 30 per cent replied "yes" to a query whether they "like to receive Communion standing." This change is practiced widely in mid-West Catholic parishes, according to the Rev. Robert H. Fix, O.S.C. editor and art director of the magazine.

One of the most "amazing" survey results, magazine officials said, were the statistics that showed that persons under 25 years and over 50 appeared to be "most progressive" in their acceptance of the new changes.

Least willing to go along with the innovations were those aged 25 to 50, who as a group balked at 8 of the 12 changes listed in the poll.

"There is a rather sizeable percentage of people opposed to certain of the changes," Father Fix commented.

"This indicates that the liturgists and others responsible for educating the people and preparing them for the changes have failed to a large degree. They may not rest on their laurels."

"There is a tremendous job of educating and communication to be done if these changes are to become an accepted part of Catholic worship."

IN THE SURVEY, readers were asked if they liked the new changes generally, if they liked English in the Mass and whether they would prefer the entire Mass in English.

They were questioned on whether they liked Mass facing the people, the use of commentators and lecturers, community singing, offertory processions and reception of Communion standing. They were queried on whether they liked the shorter Mass and whether they preferred an English High Mass over Low Mass.

Fifty-four per cent were against commentators and lecturers—laymen reading portions of the Mass and leading congregations in some of the prayers. They also took a dim view of entrance processions (46 per cent no), and offertory processions (49 per cent no) with laymen bringing the bread and wine up to the altar.

The question about Bible services received a 37 per cent "yes" and 36 per cent "no," with the remaining percentage in the "don't know" category because many persons have never attended these.

In general, 48 per cent of those subscribers who answered the survey approved the new

Like Magic...

the way a FEDDERS Dehumidifier removes moisture from your basement

You'll think you're performing magic when you see the amount of water a Fedders Dehumidifier removes from your basement. Actually all you do is set it and forget it! Moisture is removed automatically! It's as simple as this; when humidity rises, moisture in the air increases. When it reaches the danger level your Fedders Dehumidifier turns on. When moisture is removed, it shuts off.

Although you can't actually see moisture damage occurring, it's taking place right before your eyes! Then after it's too late, you discover walls and woodwork are warped, out of shape, tools and appliances are rusty, clothes stored in your basement become mildewed and rusty, even leather goods rot.

Avoid moisture damage with a Fedders Dehumidifier. Like magic—it removes moisture as it accumulates.
