Major Changes Seen In Mission Efforts

Washington—(NC)—The future holds major changes in the Church's attitude toward mission efforts and in the way it carries on this work, U.S. missionaries were told here.

The Vatican council has taught that the Church itself is missionary and that every body, from bishops to the people in the pews, has to pitch in.

These thoughts emerged in major addresses delivered at the 16th annual meeting of the mission-sending societies, composed of religious and lay organizations engaged in overseas work.
