

Rosary Devotion In Chapel, On Radio

October, the month of the Rosary, ends Sunday, but the Rosary devotion continues — particularly in a chapel in Elmira and in thousands of homes linked by the diocesan-wide Rosary for Peace radio program.

The new Dominican nuns' chapel and monastery wing is the focus of unceasing prayer. The twenty nuns take turns around the clock in perpetual recitation of the Rosary.

During the day hours, the Blessed Sacrament is also exposed for public veneration.

Visitors are welcome to the chapel for morning Mass or private prayer during the rest of the day. The monastery chapel is located on the hill at 1310 West Church St., Elmira.

The nightly Rosary for Peace radio program which originates at St. Francis of Assisi Rosary Chapel, Rochester, is carried into homes of the Diocese on a network of radio and television outlets. The 7 p.m. broadcast is currently making its annual appeal for funds to keep the program on the air. A listing of the laymen who serve as leaders of the Rosary broadcast is published elsewhere in this issue of the Courier.

25 Years Ago

(From Catholic Courier files, Oct. 31, 1940)

Bishop Kearney greeted his first two priests to volunteer for U.S. Army service as chaplains in World War II, the Rev. Edward J. Waters, Elmira curate and Rev. Austin B. Hanna, curate in Auburn.

Formal dedication by Bishop Kearney of the new St. Mary Magdalen Church, Wolcott was announced for Nov. 3, 1940.

A chapel on the second floor of the St. Andrew's Seminary located next to St. Patrick's Church, Plymouth Ave. North and Brown St. was dedicated. Mass was celebrated by Very Rev. Edward J. Lyons, rector.

Forty Hours

Forty Hours devotions in the Diocese of Rochester:

Sunday, Oct. 31 — Christ the King, Rochester; St. Vincent de Paul, Churchville; Immaculate Heart of Mary, Tonawanda; Sacred Heart, Getzville; St. Mary of the Lake, Watkins Glen.

Catholic Prelate at Episcopalian Rite

Monsignor John E. McCafferty meets Episcopalian prelates prior to rite which made Rochester's Christ Church on East Avenue the cathedral of the Episcopal Diocese of Rochester.

Monsignor McCafferty was Bishop Kearney's delegate at the ceremony.

He also took part in the consecration rite of Sacred Heart Cathedral in 1955. With him in photo are Very Rev. Donald Gifford, cathedral dean, Bishop John P. Crane of Indianapolis and Bishop George W. Barrett of Rochester.

The Sunday afternoon ceremony marked the first time that a Catholic priest of the Rochester Diocese officially attended a service in a church of a different denomination. It reflects recent directives of the Vatican Council. Monsignor McCafferty is chairman of Bishop Kearney's diocesan ecumenical commission and pastor of Holy Rosary Church.

Another ecumenical milestone was attained Tuesday when Jesuit Father Thomas E. Clarke of Woodstock College spoke to Presbyterian ministers at a clergy meeting in Mt. Hor Presbyterian Church. Catholic priests were guests at the talk.

An ecumenical service of prayer for religious unity was held Wednesday evening at the United Church of Christ on Third Avenue, a rite conducted and attended by clergy and laity of Protestant and Catholic parishes in Irondequoit.
