Herdle, assistant director of the Gallery, who will discuss the art and architecture of the building which for many years was a showplace of Rochester.

Participants at retreat Mass draw close to the altar, at Father Richard Moran's invitation.

Silent No Longer

New Look in Retreats

"Best retreat I ever made," said one enthusiastic man after a recent week-end at the Notre Dame Retreat House in Rochester.

By a big majority, comment on the new-style of retreat now being offered there, has been very favorable said Father Richard Moran, Redemptorist priest, currently retreat master at the Alexander St. house.

"We ask the men to fill out a reaction card before they go home, and to tell us frankly what they thought about the retreat. The response so far has been strongly in favor of the new ideas we've been using," he explained.

"Active participation" is the key phrase to describe the new style that is featured at a week-end at the Notre Dame Retreat House these days.

You might expect fine participation at Mass there (more about that shortly), but it goes beyond that. The men also are encouraged to take part in small discussion groups after retreat conferences, and even an "open-ender" on Saturday night which continues as long as enthusiasm lasts.

"I didn't get much sleep that night," one retreatant confessed, "but I don't know when I've been in a more stimulating discussion. It was as candid and valuable a discussion as I've been in for a long time."

One result of the dialog that goes on after conferences and at meals, is that the men get acquainted with other Catholic men in a way that was not possible in the silent retreats. The new acquaintances and friendships that have been formed are a special bonus that several retreatants have mentioned.

Going back to Mass participation, the retreat Masses are unique. You would expect the men to give the vocal responses and lift their voices in hymns and refrains, but there is more than that. At the offertory time, the celebrant invites them to leave their pews and actually gather around the altar.

"They are really 'circumstances' (those standing about), as the Canon prayer describes," comments Father Moran. He adds that many men felt this to be a special privilege, as they had never seen the Mass from such a close proximity before.

The Alexander Street retreat house chapel isn't very large to begin with, so the "togetherness" that ensues when the men gather around the altar is very real. When it's time for Holy Communion, the retreatants form a single file, pass before the altar and receive the Host from the celebrant who maintains his normal position at the altar. "This connects the Sacrifice and the Banquet in a very vivid way," Father Moran notes.

While the response to the new "active" retreat has not been unanimously affirmative, some men feeling that they miss the greater amount of silence, over 90% of the retreatants have favored it, in their post-retreat comments. It's not fixed, the Retreat House is willing to adapt or try new ideas, but as of now, it looks like the "active" retreat is here to stay.

—Father Robert J. Kanka

Discussion follows each retreat conference as men apply the message to their own circumstances.

Le Moyne Head Slated For Mission Dinner

The president of Le Moyne College in Syracuse, Father William S. Reilly, will act as toastmaster for the First Annual Jesuit Mission Dinner, which was announced this week. Scheduled for the Manger Hotel on Monday, March 28, the event is an assured success, with all five hundred and sixty places being taken already.

No more reservations will be accepted for the dinner, which is under the auspices of the Loyola Council of Rochester.

The dinner proceeds will be used to support the Jesuit missions in the Caroline and Marshall Islands. This Pacific territory is the mission area assigned to the Jesuits' Buffalo Province, which includes Rochester.

A Typical Vocation Day

Typical of many such parochial school programs was the annual "Vocation Day" held at St. Anne's School in Rochester last Friday, March 11.

A Bible Service, focused on the various covenants between God and man, and conducted by Father Edwin Metzger, opened the day. Two guest speakers, Father Robert Keck, S.J., for the boys and Sister Teresa Mary, of Fairport's Mission Helper sisters, for the girls were next on the program.

Father Keck, principal of McQuaid Jesuit High, showed a film on the Jesuit Mission field in the Caroline and Marshall Islands. Sister Teresa Mary described her work of teaching religion to public school students.

Awards for winning Vocational projects were given by Father Robert Bradter, chairman of the day. A Mass for Vocations, celebrated by St. Anne's pastor, Monsignor William J. Naughton, concluded the morning session.

Tours to the Sisters of St. Joseph Motherhouse and St. Bernard's Seminary for the seventh and eighth grades, their teachers and parish priests, in the afternoon, concluded the Vocation Day schedule.

Olympic Star At CYO Pool

Lynn Burke, 1960 Olympic swimming champion, will speak and demonstrate swimming techniques at the CYO pool in the Columbus Bldg., Chestnut St., Rochester, Monday, March 21, at 7 p.m.

The program is open to the public.

Easter Day Camp

The Catholic Youth Organization announces it will hold an Easter Day Camp during the Easter vacation. The Day Camp will be held from Monday, April 11 through Friday, April 15. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For information and registration, call or write the CYO office, 50 Chestnut St. Phone number is 454-2030.
