All So New

Mission Nun Visits Home

What is it like to come home to the United States after an absence of nine years?

1957—that was months before Sputnik I; years before the first man in space; before modern math and language labs had become common teaching tools...

The crowded years since 1957 have brought much to change our world, but somehow those who live at the center of revolution are apt to miss the perspective, the impact, of events.

Not so for Sister Isaac Jogues, S.M.S.M., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kircher of Brockley Road, Irondequoit, who has just returned from her Bougainville Island mission with a sharpened sense of observation and wonder.

As the only professed Marist nun at the mission in Chabai, in charge of training local girls to be Sisters, she was perhaps a little too busy teaching them running a dispensary for the neighbors, and growing much of the mission's food, to have time to keep up with the occasional newspaper or radio broadcast.

Her arrival in Rochester proved a revelation:

"As the daughter of a builder, I just had to stop and look at everything—it is all so new, so beautiful. The jets are marvelous, and the automation! You put your bag down and away it goes all by itself! Then the expressways, what a feat of engineering!"

Marooned in the house by the Great Blizzard (was it possibly an extra-size one in her honor?)

Sister had her first opportunity to watch a considerable amount of television, with mixed reactions.

Life is not, however, entirely rosy, Sister finds. "Everyone seems so worried, concerned about the Vietnam war, and the problems of discrimination and juvenile delinquency. People are much more aware of world events and their consequences now than they used to be."

Speaking of the problems encountered in her mission area, Sister told of the devastating floods of the past year which left more than 30,000 people without food; their gardens had been wiped out. The tropical rains are always a problem. When the torrents fall, there is not a dry spot left anywhere, inside or out.

Another continuing problem is the fact that Bougainville Island was a Japanese fortress and ammunition depot during World War II, and still bears terrible scars from the battles that raged over it.

"The people are so poor, however, that we missionaries are rich by comparison. They have a wonderfully generous spirit of sharing what they have. If a man has managed to go off and earn some money, the whole village welcomes him back and each friend and neighbor asks for what he wants. The wage-earner usually winds up with nothing left. That makes it rather hard to teach our native Sisters our concept of poverty; that you just do not give away everything that belongs to the Community!"

The missionaries are doing vital work, especially in the field of education. There are about 11,000 children on the island, with only 1,000 registered in government schools. Bougainville, New Guinea, and other nearby islands are under the care of Australia, the U.N. trustee administrator. The Communist delegates in the United Nations keep proposing the independence of the Territory, Sister stated.

"The local leaders themselves are convinced, especially after seeing what happened in the Congo, that they are not ready to govern themselves. But the Communists keep agitating and trying to infiltrate the islands. We know of several individuals who have mysteriously disappeared; they are away somewhere being indoctrinated, you can be sure of that. We must keep working and praying that too many will not succumb to the propaganda."

Sister Isaac Jogues has spent the past several days visiting her family and friends in Rochester. She is a graduate of St. John the Evangelist elementary school and Our Lady of Mercy High School. In 1948 she entered the Marist Congregation, and was sent back to Rochester in 1954 on the occasion of the Mission Seminars. After this current visit, she is to leave for a period of spiritual renewal at the provincial headquarters of her Order in Bedford, Massachusetts, near Boston. She will then be re-assigned, in all probability to the same mission territory.

Seton Groups Study X-Rays

The mysteries of a hospital X-Ray department will be unveiled at the Spring Seminars for Seton Group members, scheduled at St. Mary's hospital for March 22 at 8 p.m. and March 23 at 10 a.m.

Dr. Henry H. Forsyth, Jr., chief of Radiology, will be the principal speaker, according to seminar chairman, Mrs. Robert T. Howe. A short review of the training of X-Ray technicians will be presented by Mrs. Norma Walker, chief technologist.

Sister Margaret, hospital Administrator, states that members will view the new Xomat machine, purchased by funds from the 1965 Seton Charity Ball.

Members are reminded that they may attend the Seton Seminar that is most convenient for them—they are no longer invited on a rotating basis. Another hospital department will be featured in the fall seminar.

Father DePauw Loses Appeal

Washington — (RNS) — The American Association of University Professors (AAUP) said it considers the appeal of Father Gommarr A. DePauw, leader of the Catholic Traditionalist Movement, a "closed matter" unless it hears soon from the priest.

In a letter to the CPM leader, the AAUP said it considered Father DePauw's appeal — holding that he had been denied academic freedom and tenure at a Baltimore archdiocesan seminary — "beyond the jurisdiction of AAUP."

Dr. Philip Denenfeld, staff associate of AAUP, explained the action was based on the feeling that it is "primarily a matter of church discipline, in which case AAUP has no authority."

In a telegram to Archbishop John F. Dearden of Detroit, Father DePauw protested the ban as an "unprecedented violation" of church law and said he would protest to the Vatican.

Rebell Priest Denied Altar Detroit — (RNS) — Father Gommarr DePauw, four-time president of the controversial Catholic Traditionalist Movement, was barred here from saying Mass at St. Cunegunda church.

Suspended from his priestly functions by Cardinal Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore, the priest has said Mass in other areas.
