BEST BOUT of the evening was judged to be the Tytler-Dinolfo clash. Tytler, left, and Dinolfo, far right, were presented an award by Abe Raff, who has helped referee the bouts for 32 years, and Carmen Basilio, former pro champ, who was on hand for the fights last Saturday.

LEATHER WAS FLYING in this encounter between Tom Dinolfo, left and Tom Tytler, who won a close FLOORED for the moment is Aquimas boxer Tony La-Porta, whose chin got too close to the gloves of Dick Dinolfo, left. Referee is John Mastrella.

The young lady who's been frequently on television or featured in a variety of newspaper interviews has a storehouse of an ecdotes remarkably abundant for a 23-year-old lass. Lynn Burke celebrated her birthday while visiting Rochester and noted that the career which makes her famous is al ready over-her Olympic swimmiing farme She won two gold medals in the 1980 Olympics at Rome, Italy.

AND THAT'S where she near ly came to grief with ecclesias

The team arrived in Rome the day before Pope John was scheduled for a public audience at St. Peter's at the Vatican.

Lynn and her roommate, Ann Warner of California arrived after several thousands of others were already in their places in the vast basilica.

The two youngsters climbed over barricades, scooted under ropes, slipped past guards and fineally were unceremoniously hallted by "a bishop or a cardinal ... we thought he was God ... he had all kinds of robes, alk in red . . . and he scolded us but we couldn't understand him except he was mad."

Then. Lynn said, "a little priest with a pointed hat and a beard came up to him and talked to him and calmed him down and took us off to a room and we didn't know what was going to happen to us.

"We waited nearly an hour and them he came back and right be≥hind him was Pope John, all in white, and then he smiled and talked to us a little in English. with a brogue, and asked us if we wanted him to bless any-

"All we had with us were our bathing suits because we were going later to the Olympic pool

We held them out toward ham and he said he'd bless them and us and our families."
