

Food, Faith for Children

These children are typical of more than 200 aided by contributions of pupils in schools of Rochester Diocese.

Pupils in 102 Catholic schools of the Rochester Diocese provided food and faith for 2,100 children in mission outposts of the Church this past year, Monsignor John F. Duffy announced today.

Funds were contributed to the Holy Childhood Association, a Vatican agency for care of orphans and other needy children.

Monsignor Duffy, head of the Propagation of the Faith and Holy Childhood societies in the Rochester Diocese, said the relief program has been in operation in this Diocese for forty years.

The 120 year old Holy Childhood Society "adopts" children abroad through funds contributed by children in more affluent nations.

Matt Talbot Retreat Slated

The Matt Talbot Retreat for problem drinkers will take place May 27-29 at the Notre Dame Retreat House, 246 Alexander St., Rochester.

"The Matt Talbot Retreat," states Father Richard Moran, Director of Retreats, "is an answer to problem drinking. It is a rehabilitation program which makes use of spiritual and physical remedies for men and women, no matter what their religious beliefs."

Also invited to the retreat are men and women who themselves do not have the disease but who must live with the problem in their homes.

Conducting the retreat will be a Connecticut priest, Father Joseph Korins, who has worked for twelve years with AA groups.

Reservations may be made by writing to the retreat house or calling BR 1-6876.
