U.S. Churches Bolster Family Life

New York — (NC) — Representatives of the nation's major religious traditions have issued a joint statement on Marriage and Family Life in the United States.

The statement was said to be the opening gain in a concerted effort by Catholics, Orthodox, Protestants and Jews to offset "powerful and pervasive social conditions which threaten to undermine human dignity, marriage and family life."

It has the approval of the National Council of Churches, the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and the Synagogue Council of America.

"Keenly aware of the role religion ascribes to the home and family life... we wish to bring the religious teachings of our respective faiths to bear upon our society and to join with all men of good will to create a healthier social climate in which family life in America can flourish and be strong," the statement said.

Recognizing differences of "approach, emphases and contributions" of each faith, the statement declared that there are also "large areas of agreement" and "numerous possibilities for joint programs and action."

It called the establishment of families a part of the divine plan for the human race. "Because of our understanding of this plan, we believe and unite in affirming that our sexuality is a wondrous gift from God to be accepted with thanksgiving and used within marriage with reverence and joy.

"Ideally it calls for lifelong commitment in fidelity to a continuing, supportive relationship in which each partner helps the other to develop to fullest capacity," the statement affirmed adding, "we are united in our belief that God is an active partner in sustaining and enriching the husband-wife relationship in marriage."

"We believe and unite in affirming that children are a trust from God and that parenthood is a joyous, though strenuous adventure in partnership with God for the procreation and nurturing of each child," the statement continued.

It described the family as the "cradle of personality and character for each child" creating "an environment for the societal values of each succeeding generation as well as the principal source of meaningful personal relations for each adult member of our society."
