Atom Study

The role of the atom in agriculture, industry, and medicine is the subject of a current science study at Nazareth Academy. Biology students engaged in the study investigate the isotope uptake of plants and animals.

Sister Catherine Ann, instructor, reported that the equipment for the project was funded by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Features of the publication include: a poetry corner, book review section, a column on ecumenism, and a news section.

Old Issues Face Top Court

By RUSSELL SHAW

Washington — (NC) — The U.S. Supreme Court begins its 1966-67 term with a docket full of old, familiar issues demanding hard, new decisions.

The ceremonial opening of the new term (Oct. 3) found the court confronting cases on such matters as church-state relations, obscenity and civil rights.

All are familiar problems for the court. But this year all demand new rulings to clarify complex questions, some of them arising out of the court's own decisions of the recent past.

CASES in the area of church and state are potentially among the most significant that the court will decide in the coming nine months before it adjourns.

Ecumenical Funeral Rite

Lens, France — (RNS) — An ecumenical funeral service was conducted in a Catholic church here by a Baptist pastor for this northern French community's Mayor Ernest Schaffner, who was a Lutheran and Socialist member of Parliament.

The Catholic Church of St. Leeger was offered by its pastor, Abbe Michel Bar, to the Rev. A. Douliere, the Baptist minister, when it became apparent that the only Protestant church in town would be too small to accommodate the crowd expected at the funeral.

At the close of the service Abbe Bar asked the congregation to recite the common Christian version of the Lord's Prayer. He observed that the funeral service was a fine tribute to Dr. Schaffner who had been "above all, profoundly Christian in all his social and charitable actions."

Dr. Schaffner was a widower, whose wife, a Catholic, died several years ago. Each year he attended a memorial Mass for her in the Catholic church.

DeSales Grads Reunion Held

Geneva—About fifty members of seven DeSales High School classes, representing 1926 through 1932, met in their annual reunion Saturday evening at the Seneca Lake Country Club.

Attending were Monsignor John E. Marney of Rochester and Rev. John Murphy of Greece, both members of the Class of 1932, who with Monsignor Edward K. Ball of St. Francis DeSales parish in Geneva, were speakers. Frank Conboy of Ithaca was toastmaster.

Following dinner, the program also included a roll call by classes during which each alumnus recounted a favorite memory of high school days.

In a brief meeting, alumni voted to continue meeting on a Saturday night in the fall at Geneva and extended invitations for future reunions to all DeSales graduates on an individual basis as opposed to limited class groups.

Members of this year's reunion committee were Misses Helen F. Buckley, Margaret Murphy, and Jane Stauff; also Mesdames Edwina Maslyn, Gertrude Bauer, Edward Smith, and John Kierst.

Another significant church-state case from Maryland is also pending before the high court. This is a challenge to the constitutionality of tax exemptions for church property.

The plaintiffs in the case (among them Mrs. Madalyn Murray O'Hair, a central figure in one of the cases that led to the Supreme Court's historic rulings against prayer in public schools) contend that the exemptions violate separation of church and state.

The case has implications beyond Maryland because every other state as well exempts church property from taxation. Following the pattern of the past decade, the start of the new term finds the court's docket crowded with cases on the obscenity issue. In major decisions last March the court sought to clarify its stand in this difficult area. But appeals have continued to multiply since then.

Before adjourning last June the court agreed to consider several of these cases. But it specified that its review would be limited to certain narrow questions, mainly involving the requirement of proof that persons convicted of distributing obscene material knew its contents.

Some of the more recent appeals raise broader issues, however. Among these are whether a book can be held legally obscene if it has an literary merit or other social value and whether a state can forbid distribution to minors of material which has not been held obscene for adults.

Slogan Victims For 4 Centuries

Excelsior, Minn. — (RNS) — More progress has been made in Catholic-Protestant understanding in the past four years than in the previous four centuries, it was reported here at Minnesota's first state-wide Catholic-Protestant Consultation on Faith and Order.

Despite this advance, there are still major barriers that divide the two major groups of Christians and prevent their getting to know each other, according to the keynote speakers, Msgr. Vincent A. Yermans of Washington and Dr. Warren A. Quanbeck of St. Paul.

Two internal barriers in the Catholic Church have been a lack of education about Protestantism and poor communications, according to Msgr. Yermans, director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference Bureau of Information.

"We were also the victims of slogans," he said, "and we thought these slogans summarized the entire encyclopedia of Protestant theology."

For example, he said, Catholics dismissed Luther by saying he stood for "faith without good works" and categorized Anglicans by saying they stood for "king over the church."

Today these internal barriers are being knocked down, but others remain in the areas of sociology and theology, Msgr. Yermans said.

One real barrier, is that Catholics fear that "too many of God's people will come to think that the ecumenical movement means accepting religious in-

Inez Victims Get U.S. Aid

New York — (RNS) — More than 19,000 pounds of blankets and light clothing, valued at $29,850, were rushed by Catholic Relief Services from its warehouse here to victims of Hurricane Inez on Guadeloupe Island.

Officials of the American Catholic overseas relief agency said the supplies were flown to the Caribbean island in answer to an urgent plea from the U.S. consul there relayed through the State Department's Disaster Relief Committee.

The hurricane, with top winds of more than 150 miles an hour, struck Guadeloupe on Sept. 26 and was threatening other islands in the Caribbean. Latest reports from Guadeloupe said the storm left at least 15 persons dead, more than 70 injured, and 6,000 homeless.

Admit Renewal Or Close Up

Miami — (NC) — The Church exists in and does the work of Christ through Christian communities and the formation of such communities at the parish, diocesan, and extra-diocesan levels is the prime work of Catholic organizations, Archbishop John F. Dearden of Detroit said here.

For Catholics, he said, there is also a barrier in the area of church-state relationships because they do not understand why Protestants oppose aid to private and parochial schools, bus transportation and auxiliary services.

Catholics also are irritated that their Church is portrayed as an enemy of religious liberty, the Monsignor held. "We will readily admit the abuses but at the same time we will argue that without the constant teaching of the Church there would be no recognition of the inherent dignity of a human being upon which philosophical foundations the practice of religious freedom rests."

Theological barriers also divide the two faiths, Msgr. Yermans said, mentioning papal infallibility and Catholic doctrines concerning the immaculate Conception and Assumption of the Virgin Mary.

In the daily world, psychological differences are even greater than the theological ones, he stated. Yermans said, "We have grown up with a mentality of separation, changing that mentality is not easy nor will it be achieved quickly."

Dr. Quanbeck, professor at Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, said barriers to better Protestant understanding of Catholics include "xenophobia—the way we react with anxiety and fear to anything which is strange and new."
