

Liturgy Meeting For Educators

Coming — The liturgy in the lives of school children will be the concern of an area faculty meeting at St. Patrick's School, Corning, on Wednesday, Feb. 22nd, at 3:45 p.m.

Sister Florian, S.S.J., will be the featured speaker. Sister's topic will be "The Liturgy as It Influences and Affects the Lives of Our School Children."

The meeting will open with Sister Florian's talk in the school hall. She will prepare the teachers in attendance to participate in the singing, at the Mass which will follow.

The Mass will be celebrated, and the liturgy of the Mass will incorporate many of Sister Florian's suggestions. After the Mass the teachers and priests will adjourn to the school hall for supper.

Sister Norine, principal of St. Patrick's School, stated that "We have selected the liturgy as the topic for this meeting in the light of the Second Vatican Council's statement that 'The liturgy is the outstanding means by which the faithful can express in their lives, and manifest to others, the mystery of Christ and the real nature of the true Church.'"

"We feel that the parish schools afford the educators of youth a unique opportunity to instill in our younger generation of Christians the true spirit of the liturgy — an opportunity which we cannot afford to neglect."

Sister Florian has long been active in liturgical work in the diocese. She is currently director of liturgy and vocal music for the Sisters of St. Joseph in the diocese, and is teaching a course in liturgy at Nazareth College. Sister recently returned from an extended trip to the liturgical centers of Europe during which she attended a three-month course in the study and experience of Christian Community at the Pius XII International Center in Rome.

Invitations to the faculty meeting have been sent to seventeen schools in the area with a combined faculty of 188 teachers. Invitations have also been sent to 41 priests who are working in these seventeen parishes.

In his letter of invitation to the priests, Father Emmett Davis, pastor of St. Patrick's Parish, explained that "Since the liturgy is one area in which close coordination between the teachers and priests of the parish is essential we feel that the presence of the parish priests would greatly add to the relevance of this meeting."

In summing up her hopes for the outcome of the meeting, Sister Florian said that "The emphasis will be on a total parish program directed toward a functional parish liturgy."

Secretary

Father Michael C. Hogan has been appointed to be secretary to Bishop Sheen. The 31-year-old priest will arrange the Bishop's schedule, assist in ceremonies at which the Bishop presides and aid him in other Chancery duties. Father Hogan has served as curate at St. Francis de Sales Church, Geneva; St. Patrick's Church, Elmira, and at Sacred Heart Cathedral.

Festival Concert Listed Feb. 18

The combined bands of Aquinas Institute and Nazareth Academy will present their "Festival Concert" directed by Sebastian Calabro on Saturday, Feb. 18, at 8:30 p.m. in the Aquinas Auditorium.

The upcoming concert will be the first for Calabro who was appointed new director of the Aquinas Band this past summer.

The evening will be highlighted by a military trumpet trio entitled "Ceremony of Flourishes," among many other styles of music including American folk, hotentany, Broadway classical and modern music.

The public is invited. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

PAUL QUINLAN, S.J., was one of six composers contributing to a concert of contemporary religious music at Carnegie Hall. Here he is shown outside New York's St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Many former McQuaid students will recognize the Jesuit missionary in the photo above. He is Father Francis J. Stabell, once on the faculty of the local Jesuit high school and now a parish priest on Majuro in the Marshall Islands. The children with him were crippled by polio.

Jesuit Missions to Benefit

Second Jesuit Mission Benefit Dinner will be held at the Manger Hotel on Monday evening, March 6. Bishop Sheen will be the guest speaker.

Funds from the dinner will support the missionary and educational work of the 40 Jesuits assigned to the Caroline and Marshall Islands. The mission area covers more than two and one-half million square miles, is populated by over 80,000 Micronesians of whom 24,000 are Catholic. This mission territory has been assigned by the Holy Father to the Buffalo Province of the Society of Jesus of which Rochester is part.

Held under the auspices of the Rochester Loyola Council, the second Annual Dinner is expected to be attended by members and friends of the council from all over Central and Western New York. Last year 680 people attended.

Civil Rights Work Termed a 'Dodo'

By MARCELLA ENNIS

Since power, not love or non-violence, is the base from which the U.S. operates, Negroes are merely following suit when they seek "black power." The traditional civil rights movement with its accent on academic discussion, peaceful demonstrations, etc. is therefore as "dead as the dodo" and totally irrelevant to present conditions.

This was the gist of a talk given by Minister Franklin D. R. Florence, president of "Fight," to a meeting sponsored by the Catholic Interracial Council on Feb. 9.

In introducing the speaker, the president of the C.I.C., Mrs. William Plotter remarked that there is no magic key that will unlock the doors that private prejudice and public pressure have placed in the way of equal opportunity. "But we must forge ahead with the tools we have and the new ones we must devise. It won't be pleasant, it won't be easy and it won't be quiet," she said.

In the lengthy discussion period following, most of the questions posed by the audience related to the current FIGHT-Kodak dispute.

Better housing and education must take second place, said Minister Florence. For the Negro male to have dignity and self-respect as a human being, he must first have a decent job. He will then be in a position to achieve these other goals for himself. The anti-poverty program with its primary emphasis on youth, women and children, is a "Mickey Mouse affair" which cannot solve the male Negro's dilemma.

Because of the Negro's past experience in seeking employment, particularly at Kodak, he has developed a psychological block about applying for a job as an individual. This was the reason why FIGHT, with Kodak's implied approval, had decided on the mass application of 600.

FIGHT's role, said Florence, would be primarily that of motivation, encouragement, and responsibility for seeing that those employed fulfilled their obligations. Since Fight, unlike industry, operated in areas where Negro males spent their leisure, shopped, etc., FIGHT had the trust of these Negroes and could motivate them to seek employment.

Job applicants in turn, knowing that they were not on their own but had the backing of a "power" organization (FIGHT), would acquire needed confidence.

In reply to the question why FIGHT had not approached other Rochester industries with a similar plan, Florence stated that he had but was always asked, "Have you been to Kodak?" In other words, he said, Kodak is Rochester, and whatever Kodak does other industries will follow suit.

Many of Florence's statements, one in particular, drew prolonged applause. Business executives are wont to complain about the creeping socialism of government and the rising cost of welfare programs, the destruction of the free enterprise system. A large-scale employment of Negro males offered industry an opportunity to halt this socialism in the Rochester area. By refusing, industry was actually furthering it.

Florence further stated that by repudiating its signed agreement with FIGHT, Kodak had intensified the traditional distrust of blacks for the promises of the white community. It was not FIGHT, he said, that had given Rochester a bad name throughout the nation and the world, but Kodak.

Several of those in the audience of 400 which heard Minister Florence were Sisters of St. Joseph, Sisters of Mercy and area priests.

Jesuit Folk-Singer At Nazareth College

Paul Quinlan, the Jesuit folk singer, and two Holy Cross College men will be at the Nazareth College Auditorium Tuesday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. for a concert-singalong.

Mr. Quinlan, a 1960 Dartmouth College graduate, is now a Jesuit scholastic teaching at Holy Cross College where he assists in a rather imaginative liturgical program. "The traditional music of the Mass was too staid for most young people," he explained, and with the chaplain's blessing he then tried folk music. The favorable response to the change was overwhelming.

Mr. Quinlan's music, however, is no irreverent "jazzing" of Holy Scripture. One member of the Quinlan trio, who will be at the college, described the music as originating from an "excellent sense of varied rhythms, folk, rock, Negro spiritual, popular, Near Eastern, Caribbean, and blues — it's quite a synthesis!"

Aside from Mr. Quinlan's teaching schedule at Holy Cross, he has found time to perform in concerts across the country and make two record albums.

The first of these, containing psalms set to folk music, was "Glory Bound." The most recent, "Paul Quinlan in Concert," consists of both psalms and biblical themes set to folk music. Feb. 5 the trio was involved in a unique interfaith concert at Carnegie Hall. "Praise the Lord in Many Voices" was a presentation of the works of six contemporary composers and their brand-new sacred music.

Mr. Quinlan will provide a commentary on the music and he also will entertain any questions concerning it. For the performance at eight p.m. the donation will be $1.50 cents for students.

All are invited.

Liaison for Lay Teachers

Monsignor William M. Roche, Superintendent of Schools of the Rochester Diocese, announced that an additional appointment has been made to the administrative personnel of the Diocesan Schools' Office. For the first time, a lay person has been appointed one of the Educational Coordinators (the new title accorded to the Diocesan Supervisors) — Mrs. William (Grace) Conway, who assumed her duties on Feb. 1.

Mrs. Conway brings to this full time position in the Diocesan Office a wide and varied experience in the field of education. In this position she had charge of the training and supervision of field personnel in state and branch offices.

Leaving this work to marry in 1940, Mrs. Conway turned to teaching several years later when the family lived in Blessed Sacrament Parish in Rochester. For the past eleven years, she has taught in the intermediate grades in this school.
