

High Schoolers Tour Hospital

About 150 students and guidance counselors from seven Elmira high schools toured the Arnot-Ogden Memorial Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital during Health Careers Day Thursday, Feb. 16. During the day they saw films, displays and heard talks about the two departments in the hospital which held the most interest for each of them.

Niagara's Calvin Murphy At War Memorial Saturday

Calvin Murphy, Niagara University's nationally acclaimed freshman basketball scoring wonder will be seen in action at Rochester's War Memorial, Saturday night, March 4.

The 5-foot, 10 inch cager who is averaging 52 points plus per game at Niagara will lead his team against St. John Fisher Freshman in a game that will attract a large gathering of court fans according to Al Steinhilber, chairman of the Niagara Alumni Association.

The BENEFIT game will provide funds for the chapter's scholarship project and the Niagara University Development Fund.

The dollar shooting sensation of the Niagara frosh has been heralded in Niagara press and the nationally circulated Sports Illustrated.

The sports magazine said the young man is beginning to compete with the Falls themselves as a spectacular attraction. "His name is Calvin Murphy, locally, to those inclined to be cute, it is Million Moves Murphy. Others preferring ultimate terms, use 'Murphy, King of the Earth.'

"He is a freshman basketball player at Niagara and, at 5' 10", a twig in a game of trees. He is also the most spectacular new collegian in the country. Appreciate thousands come to see him play . . ."

The Pittsburgh Weekly Sports publication says of him:

"Calvin Murphy can do anything well it seems. In high school, he ran cross country, played excellent tennis and golf. He was a fine running back too, but his coach advised him to give up football and concentrate on basketball . . ."

"Murphy's mother, of whom he thinks the world, has a lot to do with Calvin's stardom. She was one of four sisters who starred on a team called the 'Barneretts' years ago near Norwalk, (Conn.). Ina Murphy used to go out with her young son at 6 a.m. and go to a nearby school playground where she taught him ball-handling and shooting techniques."

A preliminary between Franklin and Madison High Schools will begin at 7 p.m.

CALVIN MURPHY, Cage Star

Parishes Beyond Hawaii

Kiss the folks good-bye on a shivery February day at the Monroe County Municipal Airport. Board a jet in San Francisco next day; two drinks and a luxury lunch later, a little more than four hours of winging over infinite, merging blue water and sky you light at the Honolulu Airport. And wonder why you didn't check your winter topcoat some place. Temperature 82, surfers, sun bathers, golfers, an air of summery unreality, all compel a unanimous, unavoidable utterance, "What a small world it is; how the jets have shrunk distance."

There is a group of islands beyond Hawaii where time and travel are not telescoped so incredibly. Forty Jesuit missionaries cover these islands in trading boats and even in one ship of their own—a schooner named "Star of the Sea." The islands are the Carolines and the Marshalls, a mission assignment by the Pope to the Buffalo Province of the Society of Jesus, of which Rochester is part.

The "parishes" in these islands are scattered over an area of about two and one half million square miles. The islands stretch 2,700 miles from east to west, 1,000 miles from north to south.

There are about 24,000 Catholic parishioners here; the total population of the islands is about 60,000, all Micronesians. Their needs are simple. They weave their huts of palm fibers, fish for food, dress simply (primitively in many of the islands). Their wants are basic, and the forty Jesuit Missionaries are trying to meet these wants with their missionary and educational assignment. In the tropics, the place of life is slow. But with two and one half million square miles to cover, the urgency of the Jesuits for better ways to do it is understandable.

Former McQuaid Jesuit High School teachers are in the Caroline-Marshall Islands presumably with occasional memories of the swift transportation that enabled them to crowd many miles into their busy days in Rochester (in the group of islands called Ulithi in the Carolines, it takes a Jesuit about six weeks to tour all the islands in the group, pausing for only a few hours at each island—off and on a Cradling ship).

Jeeps are an answer to land travel but the cost of getting one to the islands makes them much more expensive than in the U.S.

The purpose of the Second Annual Jesuit Mission Dinner in Rochester is to provide the forty Jesuits of the Caroline and Marshall Islands with the material needs to carry out the Holy Father's assignment to the Buffalo Province. The dinner, to be held the evening of Monday, March 6, is under the auspices of the Rochester Loyola Council. Friends of the Council are expected to attend from all over Western and Northern New York. The First Annual Dinner last year was a sell-out.

Information concerning reservations to the Dinner or contributions may be had by telephoning Mrs. William Willmot at 331-4553 or Mrs. Thomas Garvey at 442-9039.

Priest to Mark 95th Birthday, Oldest SVD

Conesus—Father Hugo Aubry, S.V.D. will celebrate his 95th birthday Sunday, Feb. 26, at Divine Word Seminary, which he founded at Conesus, N.Y. in 1936. Born in the small town of Altenhuden near Paderborn, Germany in 1872, Father Aubry has lived in the United States since 1907. He was assigned here by Father Arnold Janssen, the Divine Word Missionaries' founder.

Still mentally alert and physically always on the go, Father Aubry seldom neglects the daily paper's front page or his three mile walk. He retains also his strong interest in community and world affairs, in affairs of the Church at large, and his own Society.

His daily work includes compiling a history of the Seminary and of the Society's work in this country. Father Aubry is always willing to share the benefit of so many years of experience with his fellow members.

He enjoys the distinction of being the oldest living Divine Word Missionary in the world. Concerning this distinction, Father Aubry smilingly says: "No one else wanted the job, so I took it."

Fr. Hayes New CWV Chaplain

Aquinas' Father O'Reilly Named to Toronto Post

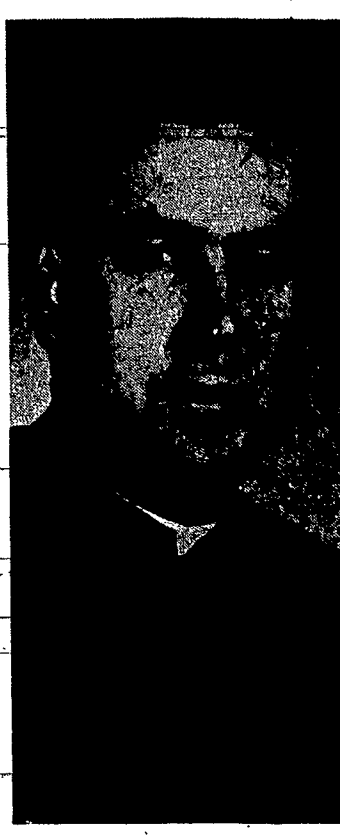

Father Joseph A. O'Reilly, C.S.B., veteran teacher at Aquinas Institute and head of the school's business department, has been named to the faculty of Michael Power High School in Toronto.

The appointment was announced by Very Rev. Joseph C. Wey, C.S.B., superior general of the Basilian Order. Father O'Reilly will assume his new duties in June. He has been on the faculty of Aquinas Institute for twenty years.

One of the best known and most popular priests at Aquinas, Father O'Reilly maintained an intense interest in student activities. In 1962 he was presented the diamond key award by the National Forensic League for his work with Aquinas boys which "has been a significant factor in shaping their lives for better and more useful living."

An athlete of renown, Father O'Reilly coached a top-notch golf team and developed a school bowling league consisting of hundreds of students into the largest organization of its kind in the city.

A native of Toronto, Father O'Reilly was raised to the priesthood by James Cardinal McGuigan in 1946 and was appointed to Aquinas Institute the following year. A graduate of Father O'Reilly has been the one person most responsible for the development of high school debating in the Rochester area. Several local Catholic and public schools have employed Father O'Reilly's talents in inaugurating forensic societies.

Father Cyril Carter, a close friend, has this to say: "Father O'Reilly has won more than admiration from his students. His devotion to his teaching and the interest he has shown in boys both in and out of the classroom has brought him the respect of students and parents alike."
