Mason, Knights Seek Joint Civil Programs
New Haven—(NS)—Top officials of the Masons and Knights of Columbus for the first time are exploring joint programs on a nationwide level in the moral, civic and social action fields. A pledge of cooperation was made by K. of C. Supreme Knight John W. McDevitt and George A. Newbury of Buffalo, Sovereign Grand Commander of the Supreme Council of the 33rd Degree of Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry in the Northern Masonic Jurisdiction of the United States. The Masonic jurisdiction covers 15 Northeastern and Middle Atlantic states.

K. of C. headquarters reported that the pledge of cooperation was reached at a "summit" meeting of top officials of the two organizations in New York in January.

A joint statement of the two organizations did not detail the specific form of cooperation, but said the objectives are in three basic areas:

The areas are: "Promotion of true patriotism and love of country under God; support of positive programs for the development of good citizenship and respect for constituted authority, law and order; and encouragement of programs for youth and to train them for responsible leadership as participants in the democratic way of life."

Cheap Unity Just Bugs Me

By DENNIS J. GEANEY, O.S.A.

Were you ever at a party that you had to attend for social reasons? The reason you would like to absent yourself is that you would meet an abundance of enemies. One way of handling the situation is to go straight for the bar and ask for a double and then go in search of your greatest enemy or the biggest bore, the person you would normally avoid, and slap him on the back and tell him that it has been a long time since you have seen him.

He immediately sees that you are making the first move. In this familiar party game, so he goes to the bar for a re-fill and comes back to tell you how delighted he is to see you. The banter goes on until both of you have satisfied the need to express your nastiness and felt that you both handled yourselves well.

This is what I call "cheap unity" that can be purchased at a bar.

To an outsider who is not familiar with party games, it might seem like a sprightly encounter, but to each it is inwardly a rather painful experience. Both wish they could rid themselves of the masks and honestly face their differences and quit pretending. The more it bugs them, the more they drink and the louder the laughter.

This back-slapping hilarity eases the pain, and we say, "Thank God," but it does not remove the abyss. Confrontation can be not only painful, but risky. It might end in a brawl instead of mildly painful laughter. Although "candy is dandy and liquor is quicker," one may be a teetotaler who has a repertoire of Polish, Bohemian, Italian or Irish jokes that can be used as a shield and at the same time give the impression that you relate well with everybody. "Cheap unity" can be achieved with a number of devices.

In Original Oratory it was again Bishop Kearney, Gregory Condracci took 1st place with his talk proposing a re-emphasis of the liberal arts in our schools. Richard Keely of McQuaid finished a very close 2nd. Edward Streb of Aquinas finished 3rd.

In Girls' Extemp as Bishop Kearney captured all three positions. Joan Greenfield took her third 1st place in as many tournaments. Nancy Klem was 2nd and Mary Mackow, 3rd.

In Boys' Extemp it was John Redman of McQuaid in 1st. Tim Collins, also of McQuaid, took 2nd and James George of Aquinas finished 3rd.

Mark Zicari, Regional Director and Coach at Bishop Kearney High School, in capturing four of the five 1st place positions for the State Finals, had set a new record for area high schools.

through song and other signs. For example giving the kiss of peace and singing "God is Love," at Communion-time, are ways of expressing our union with one another in Christ. It is an expression of union, a means to unity, but it does not presume that we have achieved unity in our personal relations. We must see these liturgical expressions of unity as creating an atmosphere for union or the receiving the grace for union, but the union itself can only come from the sweaty, uncomfortable facing each other in our words and deeds.

Teacher

By MRS. MARCELLA ENNIS
Though the Lighted Schoolhouse program as originally conceived has now ended, its positive results have been many and it has fulfilled its basic purpose — to stimulate Action for a Better Community. Such is the belief of Sr. Jamesetta, S.S.J., formerly the co-director of the program.

In an interview with this reporter, Sister Jamesetta outlined her reasons for this conviction. She had not been hired, she said, as a representative of the Catholic school system or for the express benefit of Catholic children, but as an educator experienced in administration. Similarly, the former co-director, Nicholas Milella, a public school official and ordained elder at Third Presbyterian Church, did not represent the city school system as such. Rather they worked together as a team for all disadvantaged children.

Sister Jamesetta had high praise for the local press and for the civic and religious groups who had cooperated to make the program so successful. Of the many volunteers who participated, she cited in particular the students who worked on tutoring and informal guidance from Colgate Divinity School, Nazareth College, St. John Fisher, R.I.T., Brockport and Genesee State Colleges, St. Bernard's and the Basilian Seminary, and Catholic and public high schools.

For City Churches

A Need

Wilmington, Del. — (RNS) — Because the problems of today's cities are a vital concern of the churches, religious leaders should be prepared to allow for experimentation and adaptation to meet the needs of the changing times even if this means a revamping of present parish and congregational structures.

This was the consensus of opinion voiced by speakers participating in the Urban Convocation "Man in the New City," sponsored by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Wilmington and the Council of Churches of Wilmington and New Castle County.

Dr. George Webber, a United Church of Christ clergyman and professor for practical theology at Union Theological Seminary in New York City, expressed the need for changing parish structures.

"The traditional patterns of church life," Dr. Webber said, "do not fit the life of the inner city. We have tried to impose the forms of church life that developed in 18th Century England or rural America in a totally different historical situation."

Dr. Webber, who is also director of Metropolitan Urban Training Service (MUST), a Methodist-founded, inter-denominational project which provides seminarians with inner city work in New York, criticized certain notions of evangelism.

In the past, he said, evangelism meant how to go out and get people into the churches. The role of the church should be, he said, to become "involved in all the significant elements that make up human life in metropolises."

Urging that congregations undergo a "crucifixion," Dr. Webber said: "The focus is not on the moral life or the building of an institution, but on living agents of reconciliation." This includes sharing in Christ's ministry of healing, reconciliation, judgment and forgiveness.

He said Christians should share in Christ's work by joining secular and political organ-
