

Judge Fritsch Describes Family Court

Family Court Judge Joseph G. Fritsch recently spoke before approximately 175 persons at Good Shepherd Church, Henrietta, in the final lecture of the parish's current "Christian Culture" Series.

He discussed the types of families he is exposed to in his position, and the underlying reasons why they come before him. "Significant of families who appear in Family Court is the fact that there is seldom a father present." And, according to Judge Fritsch, the absence of the father is seldom because he has physically deserted his family.

"Children become what we make them," he said, and added "This job of making good children is something we haven't given our full time to."

Father Joseph Sasso, Director of C.C.D. at Good Shepherd was generally pleased with the response to the lecture series and plans to continue the program next year.

Summer Camp-- Time to Register

Camp Stella Maris, the diocesan summer camp on Conesus Lake, will open June 25, for its forty-first season. Heading the boys' staff will be Richard Schatzel, of St. Bernard's Seminary. He will be aided by seminarians from St. Andrew's, and St. Bernard's Seminaries and Becket Hall, Boys of grammar school age (7-15) may register for one or two week periods from June 25 to August 5.

Miss Pat Turco, a school teacher from Erie, Pa., will head the girls' staff. She will be assisted by other teachers and college students. Grammar school girls (8-14) may register for one or two weeks, from August 6 to August 26.

Information and registration cards may be obtained from the camp secretary at 50 Chestnut Street, Rochester 14604, or phone 454-2030.

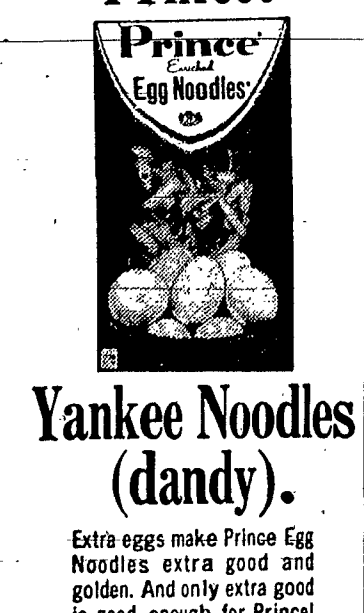

Museum Film On Churches

The role of the church in shaping European history will be seen in the color film "Medieval Times" to be presented on Palm Sunday, March 19, at Rochester Museum of Arts and Sciences. There will be two showings—at 2:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Cathedrals, historic places and religious art works provide authentic backgrounds in France and Germany.

The "Land of the Swiss" is the title of a second film on the Family Program. It shows the country, language regions, tourism and the Swiss people at work.

Meat OK On Feast

You may eat meat today, Friday — because it's St. Patrick's Day.

Under new regulations drawn up by the U.S. Catholic bishops last autumn, you have the right to dispense yourself for a good reason — and isn't the feast of St. Patrick a good enough reason!

But to put everybody's mind at ease, Bishop Sheen said this week Catholics of the Diocese have his ok to celebrate the feast in traditional fashion.

New Duties for Two Priests

Two priests of the Rochester Diocese were given new parish assignments by Bishop Sheen this week.

Rev. John F. Gormley, assistant pastor of St. Mary of the Lake Church, Watkins Glen, is transferred to be assistant pastor of St. John the Evangelist Church, Clyde.

Rev. Joseph T. Gaynor, assistant pastor of the Clyde parish, is named administrator of St. Catherine's Church, Addison.

Clergy Council Holds First Meeting

The diocesan Priests Council met Wednesday for its initial assembly. Bishop Sheen, Monsignor Dennis Hickey and Father James Moynihan joined the twelve parish priests and two representatives of religious orders for the meeting. Committees were set up to study inner-city projects, adult education programs, spiritual renewal of the priesthood and a Council constitution. Next meeting will be May 2.

Jazz Mass In Wide Use

Chicago — (RNS) — The modern beat of folk music is being strummed on guitars at Masses and services in more than 150 Roman Catholic parishes, schools and other Church institutions here.

Eight folk Masses are published in a new Hymnal for Young Christians being distributed with approval of the Chicago Archdiocesan Music and Liturgical Commissions. The book contains music of 176 folk songs, refrains and hymnals.

Distribution of the folk Masses, one of which is in the Latin American Bossa Nova beat, was disclosed by Dennis Fitzpatrick, Chicago composer and president of a liturgical publishing house here.

Women Told

If You

New Haven — (RNS) — The role of women in the church as passive or active lay members, nuns or even clergy was explored in a lively discussion at Albertus Magnus College here in which Roman Catholics and Protestants joined in sponsorship and participation.

Father Bernard Haerin, C.S.S.R., Weigle Professor of Yale Divinity School, traced the expansion of woman's role in the church since the days when St. Paul admonished wives to be subject to your husbands, to the Lord.

"The role of woman in the urban, industrialized society is totally different from the role she had in the old society at culture at the beginning of the Christian era," he said.

But while urging, on the one hand, that the church examine "in perspective, the role of women in the whole life of the church," he warned that "the question must not be confined or concentrated on the one problem." Can women be ordained priests? In my opinion that question is not yet mature.

This assertion was branded as "lamentable gradualism" by a member of the panel commenting on the German theologian's lecture.

Said Dr. Elizabeth Farian, professor of theology at Sacred Heart University, Bridgeport, Conn.: "The church should be a leader in human rights. In the meantime, back in the real world, some women are hearing a call from the Spirit—the know it is a vocation to be priest—they are ready to respond but the question is not yet 'mature' for the theologians who tie the hands or wings of the Holy Spirit."
