

An empty piggy bank... but a heart full of love and a gift for Mother on her special day... Mother's Day.

Thru The Looking Glass

Modern Mother

By LOUISE WILSON

Louise Wilson, Women's Editor of Station WHAM, is heard eleven times weekly: 9:10 and 9:25 a.m., Monday through Friday; 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE that the United States Senate voted against Mother's Day? Back in 1908 when the legislation was first proposed to set aside one Sunday in May for publicly honoring the mothers of our country, the measure was roundly defeated by a vote of 33 to 14.

Some six years later, on May 10 after the Senate's approval of the law, President Wilson proclaimed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day.

So obviously, neither a religious nor a patriotic holiday is genuine, is a sentimental holiday to honor and remember Mother on her own special day.

Who is this modern mother who will be honored this Mother's Day? Sunday—May 14th—Shy many wonderful people rolled into one: chauffeur, teacher, nurse, cook, carpenter, financial wizard, fashion coordinator, hostess, sportswoman, traveler, dispenser of tender loving care, etc., etc., etc!

What's more, today's mother can also be found earning wages, respect and honor in industry, the professions and the arts. Grandma Moses, one of our prolific primitive artists, reared five children, nine grandchildren and as many great-grandchildren. Helen Hayes, first lady of the American Stage is a proud mother of a son who is brilliantly following in her footsteps.

But what about the less-famous working mothers? A study of the status of University-educated women published by the Columbia University Press just last year reveals that nearly 80 per cent of the women surveyed held full-time jobs demanding 36 or more hours of work per week. Of these, 70 per cent were married and 60 per cent had children.

In April 1936, two City College professors revealed their findings concerning men's attitudes toward women who work. The majority survey said a woman should be active outside the family, use her talents creatively and fulfill herself.

While the subject is open to opposing opinions, few will argue the fact that mother's role as a vital, involved individual should be encouraged and actively helped to maintain her identity inside as well as outside her home. And as Mother's Day rapidly approaches, you will find your own special way to salute your favorite mother. If you're casting about for

Miss Jessie had long been intrigued by The Path, not only intrigued but concerned.

"Miss Jessie" is snowy haired Miss Jessie Fremont, granddaughter of writer Jessie Benton Fremont and of Gen. John Charles Fremont, historically known as "The Pathfinder" for his phenomenal exploration of the West.

"The Path" is a diagonal walk in the heart of Washington, D.C., a small part of Federal Rock Creek park. This section of the park is approximately three blocks wide, four blocks long.

From the windows of her home facing this bit of park, Miss Jessie has for years watched people, all kinds of people, take the natural shortest distance between two points, the diagonal. Mostly, these people are workmen, carrying tools of their trade, anxious to conserve time and energy as they trudge to and from work. Their feet had literally beaten out the path, not exactly straight but "with a few squiggles" as Miss Jessie describes it.

Throughout the seasons, Miss Jessie has observed the people treading along the path: beating it out all over again in the snows of winter, slithering along in mud during spring thaws, coughing through summer dust raised by their rattling feet, crunching through dried autumn leaves.

"If only that path could be surfaced," she worried, "it would be so much more comfortable."

Miss Jessie's own use of the park was for leisurely strolls in the outdoors she loves, for walking her dogs, watching small children and their mothers in the playground area.

But the path, that essentially human transportation route, an almost primitive wilderness in the heart of a great city, that was what bothered her.

Never one to join the vast herd of the non-involved, Miss Jessie decided to do what she could about the situation.

As a flashback, we remember that some years ago, Miss Jessie had discovered a sad lack of restroom facilities for women employees of a great grocery chain.

And for this Mother's Day is pictured a Chanel No. 5 Sassy Cologne/Bath powder set. The cologne comes in the typical black and gold aerosol container and the bath powder in a white with gold box with puff (Total price, $11.00).

POLY BERGEN has new for this Mother's Day. Oil of the Turtle in a very handsome aerosol spray can, too. Give it a try and it spurts forth a frothy slick substance to be applied to face, throat and hands that magically disappears and promises to make you feel years younger and fresher.

SCHIAPARELLI STOCKINGS represent the ultimate in gifts of history and what mother ever has enough? The most delightful, smuggest feeling comes to her who has a few extra pairs stashed away against that week when every pair is subject to accidents — snags and runs. (Panty hose for the very young mother who wears her skirts more mint than maxi will also make a hit)

A new wig or wiglet dnyed or natural hair will never go amiss and will surprise her as well as glamorize her! Whatever you choose, you can be sure it'll please her — because it came from you to celebrate Her Day.

Piano Duo At Eastman's

"The Sights and Sounds of Ferrante & Teicher" is billed at Eastman Theatre on Friday, May 12 at 8:15 p.m.

The two-piano team was catapulted to fame with their recording of "The Apartment" in 1960.

With the success of their movie music recordings, and simplified versions of popular Chopin, Tchaikovsky and Rachmaninoff classics, the team decided to drop the classical repertory for concerts and change the billing from "duo-pianists" to "a two-man show."

Tickets for Ferrante & Teicher are now on sale at the Eastman Theatre box office. Phone: 454-2620.
