

Lightning Bolt Hits St. Salome's

Parishioners will worship in St. Salome's school hall for several weeks following fire which swept their parish church last Saturday morning. Father Walter Fleming, pastor, shows Irondequoit Auxiliary Police Captain Frank Oberg and Officer Joseph Russo where lightning apparently started fire in church basement.

Welfare Needs Both Public, Private Agencies

Albany — Calling for a constitutional provision, would be given government for a partnership with the private citizens "in age, though state assistance responsibilities," the development of programs and services relevant to the needs of the people," the New York State Catholic Welfare Committee spoke out strongly for "the right of every individual to the basis of human subsistence, to housing, to employment, to education and to recreation."

"Citizens efforts under non-government auspices are a pervasive force in our society," Charles J. Tobin, Jr., secretary of the Catholic Welfare Committee, told a recent convention public hearing.

"It is incumbent on the delegates of this convention to preserve and encourage the active participation of the individual in community affairs and health and hospitals. These

Painting the Dock at Stella Maris

Counselors at Camp Stella Maris, diocesan camp on Conesus Lake, were on the job a week before campers arrive next weekend to pull summer equipment out of its hibernation. One chore was painting the dock. Boys camp begins June 25. Girls camp, August 6. Information about reservations available at camp office, 50 Chestnut St., Rochester.

Dialogue, not Pressure

New York—(RNS)—The State Constitutional Convention, if not handled in a judicious manner, could be off-set by the process of community dialogue "to encourage calm, reasonable, unemotional discussion" of whether Article XI, Section 3 should be retained or repealed.

The alternative, if such a program is not started, would be a situation which might set back intergroup and human relations many years, a convention committee was told by Dr. James M. Eagan, a vicepresident of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Article XI, Section 3, of the State Constitution, now forbids direct or indirect aid to church-related schools.
