

New American Cardinals with Pope Paul VI

Vatican City — (RNS) — The four new American cardinals and Pope Paul VI are shown as they were about to bless some 1,000 pilgrims from the U.S. visiting Rome for ceremonies elevating the prelates to the Sacred College of Cardinals. The pilgrims received a warm welcome from the Pope at an audi-

Pope Reaffirms Value Of College of Cardinals

Vatican City — (RNS) — Pope Paul VI presented red birettas to 24 of the 27 new cardinals at a ceremony in the Sistine Chapel, and in a brief address reaffirmed the important role of the Sacred College of Cardinals in the administration of the Church.

Regarding the office of cardinal, the Pope said he has found "no reasons that induce us to change the discipline sent down to us by our venerated predecessors."

Says Realization of God A Major Aim of Faith Year

Washington — (NC) — Christians were urged to "give witness to the importance of a realization of God and His loving design for the salvation of all mankind" at a Mass in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception here (June 29) marking the fourth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Paul VI.

The Mass coincided with the opening of the Year of Faith proclaimed by Pope Paul in February, and also with the 19th centenary of the martyrdom of St. Peter and Paul.

Bishop Paul F. Tanner, general secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, preached the sermon. The Mass was offered by Bishop William J. McDonald, rector of the Catholic University of America.

Bishop Tanner noted that the Year of Faith was assigned three goals by Pope Paul: "The restoration of a realization of God for the modern world; the protection of the Church from internal dangers to the faith, and Christian unity."

"It is for this reason," said Bishop Tanner, "that His Holiness has exhorted Christians to seek, find and enjoy the comfort of faith through a reflection on the ecumenical council which has given a new testimony and a new splendor to faith."

The prelate quoted Pope Paul extensively on the internal dangers to the faith, and commented that "One can understand the great anxiety of Pope Paul over the developments and mentalities that could threaten the fruit and the promise of Vatican II."

He singled out the Pope's pleas to Scripture scholars "to cooperate with the hierarchical teaching authority of the Church in defending the true faith."

The bishop commented: "Will not a respectful and sincere response be in itself a constructive and effective observance of this Year of Faith . . . ?"

Bishop Tanner also called on Catholics engaged in ecumenical dialogue to remain true to Catholic teaching. "In standing fast, therefore, by the teaching of the Church and searching together with our separated brethren into the divine mysteries, we can be certain that the cause of Christian unity will be served in a constructive and meaningful manner."

No Ecumenical Paper In Wilmington Diocese

Wilmington — (RNS) — Roman Catholic Bishop Michael W. Hyle of Wilmington has declined an offer from the Delaware Council of Churches to explore the possibility of inter-religious cooperation in the publication of the Delmarva Dialog, diocesan newsweekly.

He did not reply directly to the council's offer, made in a resolution approved at a recent meeting of its executive body. His rejection of the offer came in an interview given to a local daily newspaper.

"Our people are not prepared for such a publication," he said.

According to one Protestant spokesman, the Catholics of Wilmington are presently receiving an ecumenical newspaper in the Dialog, although it is not issued under ecumenical sponsorship.

"The Dialog is a good ecumenical journal as it is," said Melvin Jewett, executive secretary of the Wilmington-New Castle Council of Churches. "A future ecumenical journal could be exactly what the Dialog is today."

Several other Protestant ministers have made similar statements of support for the Dialog since its editor, John A. O'Connor, announced that he would resign when his contract expires on Dec. 1. They include Canon James Birney of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware, president of the Delaware Council of Churches, who sent the council's offer of possible joint sponsorship to the Catholic chancery office.

Canon Birney learned of Bishop Hyle's decision when he read it in his morning newspaper. "We have never heard anything directly from him," he said.

John Traynor, chairman of the Association of Laity for Dialog, a group formed to rally support for the newspaper and try to arrange for extension of the editor's contract, said he was "flabbergasted" at Bishop Hyle's response.

25 Years Ago

(From Catholic Courier files, July 9, 1942).

Mothers of servicemen filled St. Joseph's Church, Rochester for a Mass celebrated July 4 by Bishop Kearney and later sent specially prepared cards to their sons telling them of the Mass offered for their care in honor of Our Lady of Perpetual Help.

Men from two city parishes were preparing to make the second weekend retreat at the new Our Lady of the Lake Retreat House, Geneva following a retreat of pioneers in the movement opening the house.

Father Charles G. Erb, Society of the Divine Word missionary now in Africa and a Rochester native was commissioned a First Lieutenant-Chaplain in the United States Army.

U.S. Papal Delegate Named

Washington — (NC) — Pope Paul VI has named Archbishop Luigi Raimondi to be Apostolic Delegate to the United States of America.

Archbishop Raimondi, who has been Apostolic Delegate in Mexico since 1956, served as secretary and then as auditor in the Apostolic Delegation in Washington from 1942 to 1949.

He succeeds Egidio Cardinal Vagnozzi, who was named Apostolic Delegate in the U.S. in December 1958 and served here until his elevation to the sacred college of cardinals in the consistory just held at the Vatican.

Archbishop Raimondi was born at Acquilussito in Italy on Oct. 25, 1912. He attended the Seminary of Acqui, and was ordained to the priesthood on June 6, 1936. He received a doctorate in Canon Law at the Appollinaris Seminary in Rome and made studies at the Pontifical Ecclesiastical Academy. He was appointed secretary to the Apostolic Nunciature in Guatemala in 1938, and was named a Papal Chamberlain with the title of very reverend Monsignor in 1939. He was named secretary to the Apostolic Delegation here in June, 1942, and arrived here in September of that year.

In 1949, the then Msgr. Raimondi assumed the post of auditor of the Apostolic Internunciature in New Delhi, India.

He was named Titular Archbishop of Tarsus and Papal Nuncio to Haiti on Dec. 24, 1953. In Haiti, Archbishop Raimondi succeeded Archbishop Francesco Ladone, who was named Papal Nuncio to Peru.

On Dec. 15, 1956, Archbishop Raimondi was named Apostolic Delegate in Mexico, a post he has held until the present time.

NY Group Raps Court Decision On Magazines

New York — (RNS) — The United States Supreme Court has been accused of "usurping the function of Legislative bodies" in its recent decision on 10 girls' magazines and two paperbacks.

The court's action was criticized by Operation Yorkville, an interreligious organization in which campaigns against distribution of obscene material to youths and children.

Protests Termed 'Inadequate'

St. Louis — (RNS) — Too many students are trying to exhibit their intelligence and relax their efforts as they enter this competitive society," he said. "I am asking only that, as its emerging leaders, you recognize a responsibility, not only for its economic and technological progress, but also for its moral strength."

Speaking to the annual Honors Convocation at which some 290 SLU students were being honored for academic achievement, Father Reinert said: "While I admire their humanistic goals, I have grave misgivings about some of the means of achieving them."

He said he was disturbed by what he called "the inadequacy of protest."

"Protests such as those at Berkeley have yet to prove their effectiveness as a method worthy of intelligent students," he said.

Father Reinert held that students with a high degree of intelligence and ability have a correspondingly greater social responsibility.

He told the honor students that they were entering a highly competitive society and cautioned them against using their talents to "crush" the less skilled or those less able to compete.

"I am not asking you to inhibit your intelligence and relax your efforts as you enter this competitive society," he said. "I am asking only that, as its emerging leaders, you recognize a responsibility, not only for its economic and technological progress, but also for its moral strength."

Referring again to protests and demonstrations, Father Reinert said they are "a reflection of futility in achieving goals through more democratic and intelligent means. They are fed by mob psychology which is more appropriate to fascism than a democracy."

Father Reinert said that such protests are "necessarily short-lived," and in many cases "the disruption far outweighs the good they may achieve."

He also called them "self-defeating, in that they may give the impression that the noise they produce and the attention they attract have solved the problems . . . They may also alienate many people who could be of help in reaching solutions."

He said that too many of the protests are aimed at destroying the foundations of some thing without any thought of what is to be put in its place.

Catholic Press Veteran Cited

Yonkers — The Rev. Albert J. Nevins, M.M., the editor of Maryknoll, a former president of the Catholic Press Association and long-time member of its board of directors, was saluted here recently for his work with the Catholic press.

Speaking at a Mass marking the 25th anniversary of Father Nevins' ordination, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John S. Randall, managing editor of the Rochester (N.Y.) Courier-Journal, said "he is the Catholic press."

Monsignor Randall told the more than 300 people who attended the Mass and reception later at Sacred Heart Church that Father Nevins' "dedication and unselfishness are unmatched. His office has always been open for advice and help."
