

At Our House®

'Dear Brian'

By MARY TINLEY DALY

Show-stopper in the popular musical, "Fiddler on the Roof," is the song "Tradition," perhaps because fondness for tradition is built-in equipment for most human beings. Certainly there is a value placed on "a custom which has prevailed, as from generation to generation," as Webster defines tradition.

At your house and at ours there are family traditions, built up gradually, and always naturally, over the years. A new tradition, seemingly, has been established at our house when the Head of the House wrote a Birth Day Letter to his newest grandchild, tied into the natural feeling of "joy that a man is born into the world."

Since the letter's recipient will not be able to read it for many years to come, this minor's parents, Markie and Brad McKaig, have given us permission to reprint the letter here:

July 5, 1967

Dear Brian:

Your father telephoned here announcing your arrival at 7:30 this morning. Your mother called at 8:30 telling what a handsome fellow you are. Hooray for you!

Sort of celebrating this announcement, the New York Stock Market went up five points shortly after the opening. That is a good omen. Also your weight at ringside — eight pounds, three ounces — seems to indicate you will be a mighty man.

Your maternal grandmother, Mary Tinley Daly, and I hope to pay you a visit at your temporary residence this afternoon at about eight bells, as they say in the Navy.

We were kind-a wishing you'd make your debut on the Fourth of July — Independence Day. But, on second sober thought, we know you did the right thing coming into the world on the fifth. That give you a day for yourself, instead of splitting it with your Uncle Sam, a fellow you have yet to meet, but a grand old man.

We are all mighty happy about this occasion, Brian, and hope we live long enough to enjoy many birth anniversaries with you, starting the celebrations a day ahead of time with fireworks and Roman candles.

So, Brian, all the Dalys — and the McKaigs — join me in welcoming you to the two clans. You are of good heritage. Also you may take pride in being the fifth generation Daly born in this city of ours.

Oh, yes, you are the 17th of our grandchildren.

We hope, naturally, you are not the last. With that thought I sign off, wishing you bon voyage as you set sail on this wide old ocean of life.

Good luck and God bless you. That is the wish of your maternal grandfather. John J. Daly

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

These Are Your Questions

HOW DOES one proceed if it is suspected that someone in the family has swallowed poison? There is no single remedy for all the accidental poisonings that may occur in the home or in industry. There are many solutions that can be swallowed in error. Drugs, paint removers, candy medications, cleaning fluids, drain cleaners and even dish washer compounds are only a very

When poisoning is suspected, call for immediate medical help. Be sure to know exactly the name and the type of poisoning involved. Always save the bottle, the can and the poison contents so that the doctor can make an immediate emergency suggestion.

Most cities have a poison control center at their local board of health, which can suggest immediate first-aid if they know the nature of the suspected poison.

Generally, the victim can benefit by being made to vomit. Household baking soda, salt or mustard in warm water may do this. A finger-placed in the back of the throat may induce vomiting. Milk or plain water can dilute the poison if vomiting cannot be forced.

It must be stressed that accidental poisonings are avoidable. The house must be inspected against every conceivable possibility to prevent children and adults from paying the penalty for carelessness.

Do baby teeth affect the tooth structure of the adult? There has been a false notion that baby teeth do not deserve dental care since they were going to fall out and be replaced by permanent teeth. Baby teeth that are sacrificed unnecessarily can be responsible for poor tooth structure in later life.

Each baby tooth actually saves a place for the permanent tooth that will replace it. When baby teeth are lost too early by accident or by poor dental hygiene the position of the permanent teeth can be affected.

The entire dental structure of the adolescent and the adult, and even the shape of the mouth and jaw can be altered by the premature loss of baby teeth. It is for this reason that young children must be given all the advantages of modern dentistry to prevent cavities and the need for premature extraction of teeth.

Is red meat harmful to people with high blood pressure? There was a time when people were warned against red meat if the blood pressure was high. There probably is no valid scientific reason for this.

Red meat, when taken in moderation, contains valuable nutrients. The protein in red meats is no different from the protein in other foods.

There may be other medical reasons for which doctors sometimes specifically suggest that red meat be avoided.

IS BEING KING OF YOUR HEALTH? Don't be ashamed to speak out your emotional problems with your doctor.

Dr. Coleman welcomes letters from readers, and, while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

Home is First School

Riedbohringen — (NC) — The home is the first and most important school in the life of a Christian, Augustin Cardinal Bea, president of the Vatican Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity, told a group of Catholics in his native town (July 16).

Cardinal Bea was visiting Riedbohringen for the transfer of his parents' remains to a special grave in the parish churchyard.

The cardinal referred to the highly controversial issue in Germany over the denominational and non-denominational state-supported schools, but stressed that he did not wish to discuss the problem as such.

Instead, he discussed the importance of the home as the primary school for children, particularly as regards religious education, and on the parents as the first and foremost teachers. He declared that, aside from religious training, he himself learned to read and write from his father, a carpenter, before he began formal schooling.

Cardinal Bea said that people in his native parish and the municipal authorities of Riedbohringen had requested that he too be buried there, instead of in Rome. He said he consented on condition that he be interred beside his parents.

The cardinal recalled that he had requested permission from Pope Paul VI to be buried in his birthplace and that the Pontiff had consented on one condition: that the burial not take place for some time to come

RG&E requests rate reduction to save electric customers one million dollars annually

Rochester Gas and Electric has asked the Public Service Commission to accept a new rate schedule which will lower residential customers electric bills by one million dollars annually. Upon acceptance of the new rate schedule, you can expect a reduction of 3 to 8.7 percent if your monthly electric consumption is in excess of 300 kilowatt hours. (A reduction covering the first 300 kilowatt hours a month was made in December 1964.) Together these two voluntary rate reductions total one and three-quarter million dollars in annual savings resulting from operating efficiencies and technological improvements which have been passed directly to our customers. These voluntary rate reductions are a continuation of RG&E's tradition of quality service at the lowest possible cost. The low rates will accelerate the use of electricity and quantity is the keynote to lower costs. The energy we sell, gas and steam, as well as electricity are just about the only essentials in our lives that have become less and less expensive, in terms of constant dollar while other prices have been going up and up. This means that in spite of spiralling costs of operations, the productivity of our system has outrun inflation. We aim to keep it that way and to pass on to our customers the benefits of new technological efficiencies. Full details of the new rate will be mailed to every residential customer following the August 30 effective date.
