Seminarists At College

Camden — (RNS) — Seminarists from the Roman Catholic Diocese of Camden will begin their undergraduate studies at a college near Albany, N.Y., while living at a nearby Franciscan seminary.

Seven young men, according to Msgr. Richard J. Callahan, diocesan director of seminarists, will attend regular classes at Siena College in Loudonville, near Albany.

Last year, said Msgr. Callahan, the diocese began this seminary program by sending four seminarists to St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia which is operated by the Jesuit Fathers. Plans are being made to expand the program to include the Benedictine Fathers' Belmont Abbey College in North Carolina.
