DEGAULLE'S RUDE ACT HURT FRENCH MOST
FRANCE'S PRESS PROVES HIS SEVEREST CRITICS

By HENRY CATHCART
Central Press Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The diplomatic corps was aghast—but not surprised—at Charles de Gaulle's rude performance while visiting French-speaking Canada. But most of these seasoned observers were more charitable in their estimates of the incident than the French press, or even most of de Gaulle's supporters.

For one thing, despite de Gaulle's statement indicating he purposely voiced his called for an independent Quebec Province, most Washington diplomats believe he was carried away by his own mistaken interpretation of the enthusiasm of the crowds that turned out to witness his visit.

De Gaulle must have known that the faction seeking secession of Quebec from Canada is a small splinter group of nationalistic extremists. Most Quebecois want, not secession, but rather a greater voice and more recognition in Canadian affairs from the Canadian government.

De Gaulle's self-insertion into a Canadian domestic matter is unforgivable, or as the Canadian government put it, unacceptable, on any rational basis. Certainly, it could not serve to help French relations with Quebec, if that was de Gaulle's design. The fact is that, like most family fights, nothing can unite the combatants like the interference of a foreign "arbitrator."

The entire episode would be amusing if it were not so serious. De Gaulle has undermined the effectiveness of French diplomacy at a time when France is trying to find an identifiable place in the diplomatic world.

There are many objective diplomats who believe in the principle that France, as a leader or "third force" in diplomatic groupings, should serve a worthwhile function in preventing the polarization of influence between the opposing world powers.

● SPEAK CLEARLY, PLEASE—Newsmen were called into the President's office to witness him formally sign the executive order establishing the Special Commission on Civilian Disorders. After the ceremony, White House Press Secretary George Christian, wanting to clear the room announced, "All writers out."

No one moved, wondering who among them were "rioters." The President himself cleared up the situation by observing: "You mean W-R-I-T-E-R-S, don't you?"

Mater" was in their eyes the greatest—and the most-perfect of those works which showed forth the power and the mercy of the all-powerful God.

Today, there is so much talk of changes being put into effect in the different areas of the life of the Church. But, as a certain bishop, with his finger on the pulse of the Church's life, confided to me with sorrow and disquietude, very little is spoken about sanctity. Perhaps we should question ourselves seriously during this Congress in order to answer with speed, prudence and confidence to the questionings of the Spirit and the world within this perspective of the search for holiness.

We must never forget that the Spirit which gives us life is the Spirit of Holiness and that the great lack of the contemporary world is that hunger of the soul for God without which there will be a return to a barbarism which could so quickly replace the highest forms of civilized life. History contains many lessons which could help us grasp the true meaning of the renewal in the Church. Let us hope that the historians of the future who will examine our times will discover in them that Wisdom which flowered into true contemplation. It is contemplation which enriches the robes of the Church, the pure spouse of Christ, which he bought with his blood. It is contemplation which kills our selfishness and allows us to express that unity which Christ made clear was the distinctive mark of his Church: "That they may be one Father, even as you and I are one." (John 15:21). It is by contemplation that we find our way into the room of the bride, where Christ speaks to each one of us in an ineffable, incommunicable, and special way; and in which he says all with the words, "I have loved you with an eternal love." (Song of S. 1:4)

It is thus that the People of God, guided and sanctified by their Pastors, will go forward towards the new Heaven; and the Church "to which we are called in Jesus-Christ, and in which we acquire sanctity through the grace of God, will attain her full perfection only in the glory of heaven. There will come the time of the restoration of all things. Then the human race as well as the entire world which is intimately related to man and achieves its purpose through him, will be perfectly re-established in Christ."
