

Thru The Looking Glass

Fur Scene

By LOUISE WILSON
Louise Wilson, Women's Editor of Station WHAM, is heard eleven times weekly: 9:10 and 9:25 a.m., Monday through Friday; 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Furs are everywhere on the fashion scene. You see them as capes, stoles and hats. You also notice fur suits, some of them with culotte skirts, natural ranch mink in luxurious evening gowns, and fur coats. But this season for the first time ever as far as I'm concerned, oversized plus-fours of un-plucked otter. Let's face it. Whatever you choose in furs, it amounts to a real investment. For this reason, we thought you would welcome some facts to aid you in your selection as related by Rosa Russell, fashion co-ordinator who has both knowledge and experience to qualify her.

We asked her first about fur color.

Mrs. Russell replied, "Color doesn't determine the quality of a fur piece. However, color can sometimes affect the price of a garment. Many of the new exciting colors have been developed by cross breeding minks. This is referred to as 'mutation'. Blending, on the other hand," continues Rosa Russell, "is the process of dyeing only the guard hairs of the natural fur. My personal advice is to buy the color of fur that compliments your own individual coloring and personality."

We then inquired about fur quality.

Again Mrs. Russell was ready to reply with "Faster, texture, uniformity of skin size and clarity of color. All these determine quality. Generally speaking, the better the quality, the silkier the texture. The denser the pile, the more uniform the size of the skins. The lovelier the color. As for mink, the 'IN' fur for many years, there are two types: Ranch and wild. Ranch is scientifically bred on mink farms under controlled conditions, 90% of mink sold is of ranch type. Wild mink is trapped and provides the remaining 10% of annual production."

"We'd always wondered about 'split skin construction,'" Rosa was quick to clarify that in split construction, the open-

ABOUT LIQUOR PRICES!!

With the current controversy concerning package-store prices in Rochester, John Henner would like to explain the policy of Henner's Liquor Store and International Wine Rooms. John Henner says, "No matter how much anybody discounts a national brand product, they will still be demanding a higher price than Henner's own brands of comparable quality." "However, some people say, 'Why buy an unknown?'" Henner's answer is that private brands are not well known for the very simple reason that they need not be—the smart shopper realizes that much of the high price on national brands is the result of extensive advertising and promotion.

The quality of Henner's private brands is backed by John Henner's own personal guarantee. The success of Henner's Private Brands is best seen in the numerous expansions which have made Henner's the largest wine and spirit center in New York State. Why pay more for less, when the best can cost less—at Henner's Liquor Store and International Wine Rooms—544 to 554 Chili Avenue, at Thurston.
