Rector Named At University

Washington — (RNS) — A leading Roman Catholic editor has been named acting rector of Catholic University. He will hold the post for a year until a "more permanent" arrangement is made.

Father John P. Whalen, managing editor of the New Catholic Encyclopedia, has served as president of Corpus Instrumentum, a theological publishing house in Washington, since introducing the massive encyclopedia about 10 months ago.

The 39-year-old priest-editor came to Washington in 1961, serving as an associate professor of theology at Catholic University. Much of his time since then has been devoted to assembling the encyclopedia, hailed by many American Catholic leaders as the greatest undertaking of the U.S. Church in this century.

End to Hunger Said Possible

Cincinnati — (NC) — On the eve of his golden jubilee in the priesthood, Msgr. Luigi G. Ligutti, one of the world's leading hunger fighters, still believes the fight can be won.

Visiting here on his way to Des Moines for the jubilee celebration, he also made it clear that he still has faith in the value of the "family farm," still is convinced of the workability of the modern social encyclicals, and has no doubt that if the Amazon Valley were developed, "you could close down the rest of the world's farms."

For many years Msgr. Ligutti headed the National Catholic Rural Life Conference.

He is now the Holy See's permanent observer with the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations and a consultant for several of the post-Vatican II commissions.

Msgr. Ligutti reiterated his conviction that "every man is our brother, and the world is our country."

These ideas are spelled out in the teachings of St. Thomas Aquinas and in such modern encyclicals as Pope John XXIII's Mater et Magistra and Pope Paul VI's Progressio Populorum, he said. "And these things are entirely practical," he added. "They can be put into practice, but only with hard work."

He himself put the principles into practice when he became, at the age of 25, the pastor of a rural parish in Iowa, where he organized a housing project for poor families. And when his long-time friend Angelo Roncalli became a Pope, John XXIII, Msgr. Ligutti had a hand in putting together that Pontiff's encyclicals on social questions.

Through the years he has insisted that technological advances would be able to increase food production to meet the world's needs.

"If we would take a small percentage of what we spend on astronauts and shape up the Amazon Valley, bringing in two or three million Japanese or Chinese farmers, we could close down the rest of the farms in the world," he said here.

Fr. Connolly Former Rector At St. Joseph's

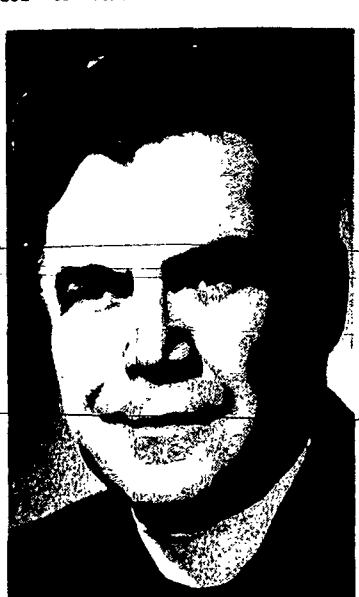

Father James T. Connolly, C.S.S.R., former pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Rochester and Provincial of the Baltimore Province of the Redemptorist Fathers died at the age of 67, Monday, Oct. 2, 1967. His death occurred at St. Alphonsus College, Suffield, Conn.

Funeral Mass was offered Thursday, Oct. 4 in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, Roxbury, Mass. with a large attendance of confreres and high church dignitaries.

Born in Boston, Father Connolly studied at St. Mary's College, North East, Pa. and Mount St. Alphonsus Seminary, Esopus, N.Y. He was ordained June 13, 1926 by Bishop John Dunn.

Going to Rome, he made his major studies in the Collegium Angelicum and earned a doctorate in Canon Law.

Returning to the United States he was appointed professor of Canon Law and Moral

FATHER CONNOLLY

Theology at Mount St. Alphonsus Seminary where he remained 20 years to train young men for the priesthood in his congregation.

Father Connolly became rector of St. Joseph's Church in November, 1950.

In 1954 he was appointed Provincial Consultor at Redemptorist Province headquarters East 74th St., New York City. He was later elevated to Provincial and headed 800 Redemptorists in the Baltimore Province. He served 10 years in that post.

After serving as pastor of St. Alphonsus Church, Manhattan, he retired from active duty at Suffield, Conn.

Martyr's Skeleton Found in Pueblo

Zuni Pueblo, N.M. — (RNS) — The skeleton of a priest, believed to be that of a martyred Spanish Franciscan missionary to the Indians, has been found in an archaeological excavation at this Indian pueblo.

Father Niles Kraft, director of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Mission here, made the announcement of the find by archaeologist Louis Gayewood of the U.S. Park Service.

The bones are believed the remains of Father Pedro de Avila y Ayela, a Franciscan missionary reportedly killed as he clung to a cross during a raid by Navajo Indians on the Zuni Indian village of Hawikuh. The date of the raid was Oct. 7, 1672.

The raided village was visited the following day, records show, by another missionary who brought the remains of the martyred priest to the place now known as Zuni for proper burial.

Remnants of priestly garments which began to disintegrate when exposed to the open air were found with the skeleton at the excavation at Old Mission Church at Zuni.

The excavation and archaeological study is being made before a complete restoration of the mission church.

Communion Together

Kansas City — (RNS) — What God has done for man in Jesus Christ is the basis for Christian unity, Disciples and Catholics concluded at an ecumenical dialogue here.

But if the "mystery of Christ" is rich enough to allow an "authentic variety" among Christians, the participants decided, there is a need for a common expression of unity—an expression that may be found in "responsible Eucharistic intercommunion."

The consultation was sponsored by the Council on Christian Unity of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) and the Catholic Bishops' Committee on Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs. The conclusions of the conference were stated in a joint "summary memorandum" drawn up by leaders of the dialogue.

"The mystery of Christ," the memorandum stated, "remains in exhaustive and its richness has given rise to a heightened awareness of the complexity of the Christian tradition as well as to an appreciation of the value and necessity in church life. In this way we recognize diversity not as the occasion for dissension among us but as one of God's gifts to the church."

"The pluralism of our culture (also) brings us to a heightened awareness of the complexity of the Christian tradition as well as to an appreciation of the value and necessity in church life. In this way we recognize diversity not as the occasion for dissension among us but as one of God's gifts to the church."
