

Battle Opens on Blaine Issue

The opening salvo in the battle over the new State Constitution — up for voters' judgement on Nov. 7 — were fired in the Rochester area this week.

Predictably, the verbal barages centered around the so-called Blaine Amendment, easily the most controversial issue in the new document. The Con-Con delegates voted to drop this provision in the new Constitution, have simply substituted the wording of the federal constitution in its place.

Sentiment in favor of the Blaine was voiced in last Monday's meeting of the Monroe County (Committee for) Public Education and Religious (MCPERL). This group, part of a statewide PEARL organization, heard the Rev. Donald Harrington assail the new constitution at Rochester's Third Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Harrington, state chairman of the Liberal party and a Unitarian minister, stressed that Blaine repeal is "the big issue."

Drawing on his experience as a delegate to the recently ended Constitutional Convention, Dr. Harrington said that as the convention went along, he had come to feel that the main purpose of the Convention was to repeal the Blaine amendment.

He argued that the Con-Con had accomplished little, charged that as far as political reform, the six months gathering was "primarily a convention of politicians, determined to preserve what they had."

Those favoring repeal of the Blaine spoke out at another meeting the next night, when

FAIRNESS TO CHILDREN

The organization held a coordinators meeting in Mercy High School's auditorium. "The issue is children" was the main thrust of attorney Michael T. Tomaino, local chairman of the Fairness group. He pointed out that one in every four school students in New York State is in a church-related school, that retention of the Blaine provision would cut these children off from even indirect state educational funds.

"These schools are offering an adequate education to nearly a million children, are performing a public service," and are deserving of some share

Other Pros and Cons

Elsewhere in the state, New York's Cardinal Francis Spellman praised the new constitution as "worthy of support" by the people of New York State. Dr. Glenn Archer, who heads Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State (POAUS), attacked the Con-Con's decision to have a single package submission as "the final unfolding of a clerical plot to disrupt separation of church and state."

Both sides have no alternative but to press for complete acceptance or rejection of the entire new constitution, which is being presented for voter approval in a single package.

Eligibility for State

Senator Robert F. Kennedy pledged his support to campaign for adoption of the new constitution. While noting that he had

"several differences with it" (the constitution) he added "I think the convention did a very commendable job."

The State League of Women Voters avoided comment on the Blaine issue, but urged defeat of the proposed constitution for its "inadequacies." The League's president, Mrs. George Ames, commented, "while we are aware that the proposed new constitution contains some significant changes, they don't outweigh several inadequacies."

The New York State Catholic Committee issued a straightforward endorsement from its Albany office, "unhesitatingly supporting" adoption of the new constitution by the voters.
