

Unbeaten Watertown Stops McQuaid, 26-0

By TIM BERGIN

McQuaid's revamped Knights traveled to Watertown last Saturday but were sent home with a sound 26-0 belting by the undefeated Cyclones. A deceptive roll-out quarterback named Pete Miller made the difference as the home team racked up its fifth straight win with little trouble. The Knights are now 1-5.

Watertown drained the McQuaid victory spirit by striking for two quick first period scores. Miller highlighted both drives with his timely passing and scrambling and accounted for one of the touchdowns on a 35-yard toss to Bruce Gerring.

The Knight defense stiffened after the early onslaught, but Miller found the range again in the final quarter with a 35-yard scoring strike to end Bob Shear. A short plunge by Miller in the closing seconds accounted for the last Watertown TD.

McQuaid's new-look offense had soph John McLane calling signals. Bill Cutler and Gary Astles starting at fullback and tailback, and Nick Combs working at split end. But the Knights never did get moving, gaining only 69 yards rushing, and notching only 3 first downs. Watertown, by contrast, picked up 174 yards on the ground, and Miller was 13-for-27 in the passing department.

This Saturday is a belated homecoming day for the Knights as they make their first appearance on their own field at 2 p.m. against Bishop Walsh of Olean. Last year, the two clubs battled to a 20-20 tie.

On other levels last week, Cardinal Mooney's J.V. mudders handed McQuaid's J.V. its first loss, 7-0, in the rain at Mooney while the Knight freshman squad upended the Cardinal frosh, 12-0.

AQUINAS HALFBACK Mike DiTroia is eager to go against Auburn High at Aquinas Stadium this Sunday. The visitors bring a good 4-2 record to town. Aquinas is now 3-1 for the year.

Red Sox Outfielder To Speak In Auburn

Outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of the American League champion Boston Red Sox will be the guest speaker at this year's annual sports dinner sponsored by Sacred Heart parish, Auburn.

The triple crown winner will appear in the school hall on Monday, Nov. 12 chairman Norm Sakley announced.

During the past A.L. season, "Mr. Everything" of Boston club socked 44 homers and drove in 121 runs. His .326 batting average completed his bid for the triple crown.

Yaz was also the outstanding player for the Red Sox in the World Series. The former Notre Dame athlete collected three home runs, two in one game, and pushed off several sensational catches and fielding plays.

Church-State Still an Issue

Washington — (NC)—While the U.S. Supreme Court has rejected one challenge to aid for pupils in parochial schools, the long-standing issue of church-state-school relationships is far from dead.

The court on its first working day, Oct. 9, dismissed a claim that Pennsylvania's law providing public school bus rides for pupils in non-public schools was unconstitutional because it violated the separation of church and state.

In the process it reinforced a Pennsylvania Supreme Court ruling that such aid did not violate this principle, gave additional weight to a 20-year-old U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the same matter (that case was decided by a 5-4 margin; the Pennsylvania challenge was dismissed 8-1), and strengthened the so-called "child benefit" theory which was an outgrowth of that ruling.

But the ruling shed only a little light on what the Court might do with two other church-state cases on the docket and now awaiting some sort of action.

Both involve New York State schools. One challenges the state's year-old textbook loan law; the other is a claim that the use of federal funds to aid pupils in poverty-area parochial schools is unconstitutional.

Each raises a new and different question for the Court, unlike the Pennsylvania appeal, which might be better characterized as legal wishful thinking, rather than a serious constitutional question.

The more significant of the remaining cases is that brought by a group of New Yorkers against U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner, in which they challenge the use of federal funds to finance guidance services and some "enrichment" courses for poor children attending parochial schools in New York City.

But the case, as presented to the Supreme Court, hinges not around those issues, but rather around the right of the persons to bring suit in the first place.

Since 1923, when the Supreme Court refused to permit Louis Adams Frothingham to sue the government, in the person of Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon, federal and state courts have been bound by the principle then expounded in the Latin phrase "de minimis non curat lex" — the law does not concern itself with trifles.

Translated into common language, it has meant that standing to sue is denied those unable to prove that a law, or an action, has substantially injured them — usually financially.

So-called "taxpayers" suits, brought by persons who felt their tax money should not be spent the way the government was spending it, have been disallowed.

But now the Supreme Court is being asked to rule on a new kind of taxpayers suit, one in which the financial interest is admitted to be small, but in

Irish Face Auburn Foe

A confident Auburn High School football team, intent on stopping Aquinas' win streak, rolls into town tomorrow for their long awaited meeting with Aquinas at Memorial Stadium. Game time Saturday is 2 p.m.

The tough Auburn line is built around a pair of 230-pound tackles, Bob Farrell and John Simmons. Stan Rogers, a hard-nosed tailback, who with Lombardo, Farrell and Simmons lead 17 returning lettermen.

Against Auburn's forward wall Irish Coach Bob Rosmarino will start the same line that faced Erie East, including Greg Whately, Tom Mayer, Jeff Blaw, Brendan Donnelly, Steve Johnson, Jim Battaglia, John DePeters or Peter McGuire.

Rosmarino has little to worry about in the backfield. Quarterback Rich Parrinello bosses a fleet of swift ball-carriers topped by Bruce Costello, Joe Mahar, Kevin DeHond and Mike DiTroia.

Halftime will feature a spectacular drill by the Aquinas Institute Marching Band under the direction of Sebastian Calabro.

Mrs. Tatyga, Long Active In Parish

Anna P. Tatyga of 41 Oakridge Dr., Irondequoit, died Thursday evening, October 12, 1967 in Park Avenue Hospital after a brief illness.

She is survived by her husband, James; her son, William; two brothers, Andrew and Kost Pecarski of Ukraine; several nieces and nephews.

She was an active member of the Ukrainian Civic Center, Michael Drahomaniv Society, West Side Ukrainian Independent Women's Club, Souz Ukrainok Society, Branch 6; Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Local 206; president of the Gold Cross Society, Branch 17; treasurer of the Ukrainian Pioneer Club and immediate past president of the Less Ukrainian Society. Among her duties was the visitation of sick members of the various organizations. She was a lifetime communicant and very active member and worker at St. Joseph's parish.

She retired from Michaels Stern & Company in October 1959.

Mrs. Tatyga, a native of Eastern Galicia, Ukraine, came to Rochester and lived here since 1913.

Parastas services were celebrated by Very Rev. Msgr. Nicholas Balak on Saturday evening and by the Rev. W. Korchynsky on Sunday evening, October 14 and 15. Funeral services on Monday, October 16, were held at St. Joseph Ukrainian Catholic Church. Interment at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery. Funeral arrangements by the Paul W. Harris Funeral Home.

Standing to sue was an issue only briefly, but ultimately the New York State Court of Appeals—the state's highest court—granted standing and decided the case on its merits.

The merits, they found, were few. In a 4-3 decision, the Court said that since the principle intent of the law was to aid the children, it could not violate either the U.S. First Amendment, or a state constitutional amendment which barred all aid to church-related institutions.

The Court admitted that some aid did get to the schools, since they would no longer have to spend money on textbooks, but "since there is no intention to assist parochial schools as such, any benefit accruing to those schools is a collateral effect of the statute, and therefore cannot be properly classified as the giving of aid directly or indirectly."

Mooney Trips Batavia 11

Cardinal Mooney's gridmen took their second win in a row last Saturday, clipping Notre Dame of Batavia 19-6. The Cards dropped their first three starts, have come back strong in their last two outings.

Starting at their own 20, the Cards rolled downhill for a first-period tally. Line smashes by Ron Klem and Dick Parker moved the ball steadily downfield, until Charlie Lavry zipped home from 35 yards out. Paul Nealon's extra-point boot was wide.

After holding Notre Dame again, the Mooney men launched another drive, capped once more by a Lewry dash, this time for a 30-yard TD. The PAT kick again failed.

In the second canto, the Cards again moved into scoring position. John Waffle's 17-yard rifle shot found co-captain Parker who cracked over for the score. Nealon's kick was good for a 19-0 lead.

Notre Dame broke into the scoring column just before halftime as John Francis went over from six yards out.

The 19-6 count stayed that way for the rest of the game.

Pope Pledges Help In Literacy Effort

Vatican City (RNS)—Roman Catholics will take a leading role in the world-wide struggle against illiteracy, Pope Paul VI pledged in a message to Rene Maheu, director general of UNESCO.

The message, sent on the occasion of the first World Anti-Illiteracy Day (Sept. 8) expressed a hope that the observance will "interest public opinion in all parts of the world and that there will be a generous joining together of the responsible powers until such time as the great cause of the fight against illiteracy is effectively supported by a peaceful common interest of good will."

"We can assure you," the Pope said, "that our Catholic children will be in the front among those who work unselfishly in this fight against illiteracy in a spirit of fruitful collaboration with UNESCO."

eracy problem, Vatican Radio said that the world problem is as serious as that of hunger. It estimated that there are 750 million illiterates in the world and claimed that the Catholic Church, particularly through its missionary efforts from its earliest times was a forerunner of present anti-illiteracy efforts.

Catholic missionaries are now teaching "tens of millions of students, including many adults" to read, the broadcast said.

Besides 24 literacy centers in Europe, it said others are being conducted by the Church in India, Japan, Indonesia, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria and the Philippines. It noted that Oblate missionaries are teaching reading to Eskimos in Canada, while Capuchins run schools for the inhabitants in Oceania and Franciscans do the same in New Guinea.
