

Aid from French To N. Vietnam

BOON — (NC) — Equipment which was sent by Secours Catholique, the French Catholic charities organization, to the nose and throat department of a North Vietnamese hospital has arrived in North Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese Red Cross acknowledged to the French organization the arrival of the equipment and expressed its gratitude for this support of the victims of the war.

KNA, the German Catholic news agency, reported that the North Vietnamese Red Cross had asked Msgr. Georg Huesler, the general secretary of Caritas, the German Catholic charities organization, for this equipment when he was in Hanoi at the beginning of this year. German Caritas sent microscopes to North Vietnam, and their arrival there has been confirmed.

4 Children War Victims Coming to U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO—(RNS)—Four more war-injured Vietnamese children were to arrive here in early November for treatment in the United States, according to the Committee of Responsibility.

The first group of three children arrived in mid-October and are being treated in the Mount Zion Hospital here.

Two of the second group were scheduled to be sent to the Hospital of the University of California in Los Angeles, and the others to the Beth Israel Hospital in Boston.

The Committee of Responsibility, sponsored by a group of national medical, religious and civic leaders, is committed to acting on behalf of some of the "war-burned and war-injured little ones of Vietnam, for whose anguish, we, as Americans, feel a deep responsibility."

The first three children were brought to the U.S., where hospitals and medical staffs pledged care and treatment facilities, only after many months of negotiations between the committee and the government of South Vietnam. The transfer was postponed several times.

Among religious leaders involved in the work of the committee are: Methodist Bishop John Wesley Lord of Washington, D.C.; Episcopal Suffragan Bishop Paul Moore Jr., of Washington, D.C.; and Dr. John C. Bennett, president of Union Theological Seminary, New York.

One Church For Two

CLIPPENHAM, England—(RNS)—Roman Catholics and Anglicans in this town, west of London, have decided to erect a place of worship designed for their joint use.

The decision to build was made at a meeting attended by representatives of both Churches. Anglican Bishop Harry Carpenter of Oxford and Roman Catholic Bishop Charles Grant of Northampton endorsed the move.

The structure will be built on a tract of which two-thirds has been Church of England property for many years. The Anglican and Catholic congregations have agreed to form a joint company which will finance the building, instruct the architects, and so on.

Sudan Church Crippled

KAMPALA, Uganda—(NC)—Lack of leadership is the most serious problem of the Catholic Church in the Southern Sudan, a member of parliament said on a visit here.

Ezekial M. Okodi, a Sudanese legislator, reported that the Church is growing weaker in the South and that Church leaders from outside the country are needed to revive it.

When the Sudan became independent in 1956, the government sought to unify the Arabic-speaking, predominantly Moslem North with the mostly Negro South, mainly pagan but with many Christians, by imposing Arabic as the national language and by promoting Islam.

Starting in 1957 the Christian mission schools in the south were nationalized and replaced with Koranic mission schools by the Moslem, northern-dominated government. Between 1962 and 1964 all remaining Catholic and Protestant missionaries were expelled from the southern part of the country.

Guerrilla warfare between Arab northerners and Negro southerners on racial and religious grounds became widespread and troops from the North massacred thousands of Uganda and other neighboring countries.

Despite the fact that only a few Sudanese priests were left to minister to the southern Catholic population of 400,000, the Catholic Church became a symbol of freedom for the oppressed people of the South.

The security situation in the south is poor, Okodi said, with no guarantees of safety for persons who might want to return to the Sudan. Emergency regulations are still in effect and curfews imposed. Nor is there any general amnesty to assure the safety of those returning. Until

More Reform Prior to Unity

LUND, Sweden—(RNS)—Bishop Jan Willibrands, secretary of the Vatican Secretariat for Christian Unity, said here that further reform in both the Roman Catholic and the Protestant Churches is a necessary condition before complete Christian unity can be achieved.

The Vatican official attended a meeting of the Lutheran World Federation marking the 20th anniversary of its foundation and the 450th anniversary of the Reformation.

He noted that the theme of reform, which has been of central importance in Protestantism, was given new emphasis for Catholics by the Second Vatican Council.

"Only a profound renewal of all the Christian Churches and communities can prepare the way for re-establishing complete unity of all those who believe in Christ," he said.

This reform, Bishop Willibrands added, must be "conceived as a conversion to the full testimony of the New Testament" and must teach the Gospel "in a way which is adapted to the conditions of the world today."
