"Men Who Merit A Headline"

Some super breed of stalwart heroes, somehow immune to the ills of ordinary men and women? Legendary figures of extreme strength and endurance, whose physical needs are unlike those of mortal men? Romantic creatures of fiction? Who are "missionaries"?

That missionaries are ordinary people is their glory and their burden. They sweat in the heat of a blazing tropical sun; their bones ache in the piercing chill and dampness of rainy winter nights. They know the hunger, the thirst, the loneliness, the fatigue, the anxiety that are daily adversaries trying to weaken them. Still they are dauntless. Why? Because to each one of them, SERVICE is the key to the meaning of a missionary — SERVICE as varied and as complex as the needs of Christ's brothers around the world. These men are the adventurers of our day—men who merit a headline. But tragically people "back home" rarely read of their heroic and quiet daily service to the peoples of the world.

There is Father Thomas. He could have been a front-page sensation: lost in the Brazilian jungles for nine months, traveling by boat on jungle streams, discovering and ministering to a hitherto unknown tribe of Indians. "I was searching for human beings whom I could help and to whom I could bring the love of Christ," he said on his return. During the long journey, he shook under attacks of fever and ached from hunger. Palm leaves were his only nourishment. Nevertheless, he celebrated Mass daily—on a river bank, in the jungle bush.

I could go on endlessly. These brave unselfish men and women—some of them your own relations, neighbors and friends—extend their hands to you for help. They ask nothing for themselves. They seek only that which will mean the difference between life and death for the desperately poor whom they serve. The outcasts and rejected of society; the too-many starving, abandoned little ones; the aged, weak, ignorant and suffering look to them. They look to you for your prayers to sustain their missionary effort, for your sacrifices to enable them to continue the tremendous task to be accomplished. Only with your help can they continue to live daily the words of Christ, "I have come not to be served but to serve."

Do you pride yourself on being "up on the news"? Then ask yourself this question: "How much do I know about what is happening on today's frontiers of the Church?" Find out in the words of missionaries living and working on the scene who write of their experiences in the new WORLD MISSION. This quarterly magazine, edited by the Right Reverend Edward T. O'Meara, will be sent to you for only $5.00 a year. It is an ideal gift for priests and school libraries. Write to WORLD MISSION, 366 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10001.
