'South Pacific' Staged at ND

The stage of Notre Dame High School, Elmira, will become the setting for a famous World War II romance April 5 and 6 when students present "South Pacific."

Paul Busse, Emile DeBeque and Jo Ann Baber, Timothy Wheeler, Linda Cirulli and Judith Ekes will all take leading roles in the musical.

Choreography is under the direction of Judith Ritter. Robert Tymonagh and student Richard Williams and Lorraine Whitney are directing.

Love, Marriage Subject of Drama

"The Honourable Estate," a witty commentary on love and marriage, produced and directed by John Houseman, will be presented at the Nazareth College-Arts Center April 19 under the auspices of the Civic Music Association.

"The Honourable Estate" is divided into two parts: The first features selections from Shakespeare, Congreve, Ibsen, Shaw, and Pfeiffer and the second half of the program consisting of Samuel Becket's masterpiece, "Happy Days."

British Film "C" In U.S. Version

New York — (NC) — The National Catholic Office for Motion Pictures disclosed here the British-made movie "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush" was given a Class C (condemned) rating because unnecessary "offensive elements, notably a prolonged nude scene" had been introduced into the American version.

The NCOMP said the offensive material is not included in the version of the film for British audiences. The movie theme concerns "a boy's quest for sexual initiation," the NCOMP said.

Asserting that United Artists "has ignored its commitment to its own code of self-regulation," the NCOMP said. "This action will not contribute to public confidence in the organized film industry's protestations of responsible self-regulation."

"There appears no compelling reason, artistic or otherwise," NCOMP would observe, for United Artists to have found it necessary to "release" in the American market an offensive substitute-version of "Mulberry Bush" when the original British version, devoid of these offensive elements in treatment, had already received generally excellent reviews from the critically demanding English press.

Fred Waring Show

"The Next Fifty Years," Fred Waring's new musical show will be presented at the Eastman Theatre Saturday April 6 at 8:15 p.m. under the auspices of the Civic Music Association.

Music

Modern Church Music Urged

Seattle, Wash. — (NC) — A priest predicted here the time will come when Catholic Church music will vary with the racial, ethnic and economic components of the parish.

Father Norman O'Connor, C.S.P., national director of the Paulist Fathers' television and radio apostolate, said "the old, stagnate music must be abandoned, generally, if the Church is to communicate with the new generations."

In parishes where the congregation is formed principally of older people, then, perhaps the old hymns could be retained, Father O'Connor said. These situations "would be the exception," he added.

Father O'Connor served as chairman of the Jazz Festival here, presented as part of the Music Educators National Conference. He was a frequent guest on television stations and expressed his views on the needs of a more contemporary approach to church music.

The Paulist said where a congregation was made up of a predominantly ethnic group, the use of folk tunes and melodies

"Singing Church" Study Rates Hymns

A nationwide hymn questionnaire sent to one-third of all U.S. Catholic parishes by the Monthly Missalette, a Mass-aid used in many parishes of the diocese, established the following five church songs were sung in over 70 per cent of the reporting parishes: Accept, Almighty Father; Holy God, We Praise Thy Name; Holy, Holy, Holy; Lord, Accept The Gifts; and, Praise To The Lord.

Some of the other interesting findings:

1. The "singing church" is stronger in the heartland of the U.S., central states, both north and south, where the average number of different hymns used was above the national average of 12.
2. 66 per cent of the reporting parishes still sing "Marian Hymns."
3. 66 per cent of the responding parishes sing at the Communion.
4. 75 per cent of the reporting parishes sing during the procession or recession.
5. 15 per cent of the responding parishes were using guitar music, primarily at youth services.

Choir Fete At Kearney

The Bishop Kearney High School Glee Club will sponsor a Festival of Choirs March 31 at 8 p.m. in the Bishop Kearney auditorium.

Glee clubs from Benjamin Franklin, Our Lady of Mercy High School, and Kings' Prep, together with smaller groups from Nazareth College and St. Mary's Church will be heard individually and in full chorus. Tickets are available at the Bishop Kearney general office.

Entertainment

The comedy team of Anne Meara and Jerry Stiller play an interfaith couple — for laughs.

TV Interfaith Pair

New York — "I always watch 37 years ago and is still married to her."

"Stiller and Meara live the lives of the characters they create," Sullivan commented, "and their humor springs from the people like you and me caught in the vexations of life, and wondering what to do about it. Their humor is not just a compilation of one-line jokes. Each scene build to a climax, creating laugh after laugh, and then suddenly pausing at a poignant moment which reveals to us that laughter is always brushed with sadness. And, just as in real life, the scene ends with hope for the future, which is what life offers as a bonus."

"We won't be hurting anybody's feelings now," the Catholic girl says to the Jewish boy as they meet in the rubble after the holocaust. "If we don't get married, nobody else will."

The first of the movie ever heard of Mary Elizabeth Doyle and Hershey Horowitz was that they had been brought together by a matchmaking computer gone slightly haywire.

But despite the fact that the two went together "like hot pastrami on white bread," Mary Elizabeth and Hershey were soon planning marriage and talking about children with names like "Timothy Terry," "Esther Bridgid," "Sean Benjamin" and "Michael Moyshe."

And they were singing songs with words like, "The world can't convince us — hot-cross buns don't go with blintzes."

When the talk turned to the wedding, came the "laughter brushed with sadness" that Sullivan referred to.

"I can get 2,000 cold cuts from Moskowitz and Leibowitz's," Hershey joyfully tells Mary Elizabeth.

"For a wedding breakfast?"

"I thought this thing would be held at night."

"The ceremony is 11:30 in the morning. We can't be married in the church because we're of different faiths, but Father O'Grady will be happy to marry us in the rectory."

"Bring him along! I want him to sit there right in front."

When it becomes clear to her that he had been intending a temple ceremony, she despairingly gives back to him a bagel which he had offered her as a sign of love.

"Why don't you hold on to it," he pleads. "Maybe someday two people like us who want to get married — can just get married."

Catholic Women Seek Home Exchange

The newest goal for the Eastern Council of Catholic Women (CCW) in the area of health for international students to find summer homes. Ecuatorian high school student in the Rochester area for weeks this summer.

Three CCW members their families have already ventured to play host to visiting Latin teenagers. Families, the Thomas McWneys of Greece, the Evers Murphys of Irondequoit, the Donald Perrys of Perin have a long standing interest in foreign students, having provided students hospitality several years.

This particular program being carried out in partnership with the Rochester branch of the Foundation of International Cooperation, which has its base in Buffalo.

Families interested in finding a teenager from Ecuador share their home life this summer can get further information by calling the CCW of 50 Chestnut St. The office is open on Tuesdays and Thursdays; phone number is 325-2525.

Mrs. John O'Brien of Geneva is the present diocesan chairman of the International Fair Commission, under her aegis the international student hospitality activity function.

The O'Briens are another family who have had plenty of experience hosting foreign students who are doing their studies in the U.S. Most of their contacts have come through

Self Government At Notre Dame Under Study

Notre Dame, Ind. — (NC) — committee of the University Notre Dame board of trustees will meet with faculty, administrative and student groups April 27 to discuss student self-government and other measures passed by students in February.

Father Theodore M. Durb, C.S.C., university president, in a letter to the student body and faculty, said questions discussed will include whether women should be admitted in students' dormitory rooms.

These matters involve philosophical questions that are the heart of the university organization, character and governance," Father Heber wrote.

Pornography Cause of Concern in Brazil

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil — Catholic leaders' concern government laws on pornography has erupted here.

Archbishop Vicente Scherer of Porto Alegre publicly denounced what he called "a deviation from human dignity in radio, television, screen stage presentations."

Educators and sociologists have proven, he said, the effects of detailed murder sex scenes "on the development of a young personality" of weak character.

School Money Sought

Toronto, Ont. — (NC) — parents' campaign this year to have the provincial government support Catholic high schools for the full five years in the present two.

There are more than 3 million Catholics in Ontario.
