Even Family Room Is Heading Outdoors

Even the highly regarded family room is moving outdoors at the first sign of good weather. The cozy fireplace and leather chairs are being replaced by what is now frequently referred to as the outdoor living center.

The outdoor living center is basically a backyard-patio combination. It retains the basic elements of the patio or sun deck but it also includes some special extras.

The extras run the gamut from Olympic-size swimming pools to functional landscaping, from complete indoor-outdoor kitchens to lavish, enclosed areas for complete privacy and year-round ease.

The rise in popularity of outdoor living centers seems to be directly related to the increase in family-oriented outdoor recreation activities including camping, boating, fishing, and flying. It appears that participation in these activities, away from home, has resulted in families spending more "at-home" recreation time together.

Product Lines Expanding

Most experts agree that the trend toward outdoor family recreation is here to stay. Manufacturers of outdoor equipment are finding greater demands being made for expanded product lines and have responded by developing equipment for the expert and novice alike and in every price range.

A relative newcomer to the field of outdoor recreation is the Natural Gas Industry. Yet it offers a vivid example of how outdoor recreation, especially at home, has become one of the most popular means of spending leisure time.

The industry now boasts of more than a dozen brands of gas-fired outdoor grills, several styles of infra-red patio heaters, an almost endless variety of gaslights and pool heaters for every style and size of backyard swimming pools.

Sales Soar

The American Gas Association, Inc. recently reported that during the past five years more than 1 million gas grills have been purchased by outdoor-oriented Americans in addition to 2 million gas lights, and over 400,000 infra-red patio heaters.

The outdoor living center is proving that urban Americans can create the "get away from it all" atmosphere found in the great outdoors right in their own backyards. No longer is the outdoor living center considered simply a place to hold a cookout.

It has become the quiet sanctuary for reading a good book, entertaining both friends and business associates, and gathering place for family recreation.

It is the "place in the country" where the avid fisherman can hone a sharp edge on his fly casting techniques, or the golfer can work on his putting and chipping game without leaving the comfort of his own home.

Something for Everyone

The charm of the outdoor living center lies in the fact that it offers each individual of the family something of interest and of value while offering the family, as a group, a place to be together for enjoyable recreation.

Towing Trailer Takes A Little Know-How

After a little practice, there's nothing especially difficult about towing or parking a camping trailer. Get the feel of your trailer behind your car a little bit before you start and keep these helpful pointers in mind:

STOP with a trailer calls for slower and more even acceleration than ever. Also give yourself more clearance in the traffic flow to provide for your increased length and decreased initial speed.

STARTING FROM A DEAD

STOPPING SAFELY will depend on your tire condition, brakes, the weather, your speed and the condition of the road. Make a practice "quick stop" early in your trip to learn the effects of the trailer on your stopping ability.

WHEN MAKING TURNS, remember that the rear wheels will not quite exactly follow the path of the front wheels of your car. Make allowance for this. Leave additional room and clearance by driving a little beyond the turning point before making your turn.

WHEN PASSING, keep in mind that the trailer will slightly decrease your passing acceleration and you'll need more "clear" highway ahead than usual to pass another vehicle. With your increased length you'll need more room in front of the vehicle you're passing and you'll have to wait a little longer before you can pull back into your normal lane.

BACKING UP can really be pretty simple. When backing up, the back of your trailer always goes in the opposite direction of the back of your car. One simple method often used is to place your right hand on the bottom of your steering wheel. To move the back of your trailer left, move your hand left. To move it right, move your hand right.
