Name Negro Priest Dean at St. John's
Collegeville, Minn. — (RNS) — Father Aidan McCall, O.S.B., has been appointed dean of students at St. John's University here. He is the first Negro named for a top administrative post.
A native of Washington, D.C., Father McCall has been chairman of the university's department of classics. After graduation from St. John's in 1950, he entered St. John's Abbey here and was ordained in 1954.
He spent three years teaching Latin at St. Augustine's College, Nassau, Bahama Islands, and then returned to the United States to study at the University of Michigan, where he obtained a master's degree in classical studies in 1959.

Fun and Games In Summer Program
A nun leads her young charges in a game of Blind Man's Buff during a summer program sponsored by the Archdiocese of New Orleans. Recreation is an important part of the program, called "Witness," which the archdiocese is sponsoring for the third consecutive year. The largest of its type, "Witness" is a program involving 100 seminarians, 35 nuns, and two Brothers from a dozen different cities, scores of adult volunteers, and 120 Neighborhood Youth Corps workers. It operates in 28 different centers throughout the city and four surrounding parishes, handling about 5,000 youths daily.

Laymen's Survey Suggestions

that she and her husband, as a silent protest, refused to work on parish projects.
Mainly, the survey showed that many laymen are concerned about their churches, are ready to offer critical comments and want more responsibility in the operation of their parishes.
One article was devoted solely to laymen and, as usual, they showed outspoken concern.
Their opinions bridged the generation gap on such things as sermon and liturgy. But they felt there should be a greater role for teens, particularly for girls, in the Mass.
One thought that the liturgy didn't give enough "push" to youngsters to consider religious vocations.
SUGGESTION: More Masses tailored to young tastes with teens performing such duties as ushering at them. Such Masses could provide a forum for communication on religious vocations.
Odds and ends gleaned from the survey:
Two lay people offered unsolicited remarks on raffish.
One father said, "I'll never let my kids do it. I just couldn't imagine letting them go to a neighbor's house for that purpose—especially when the neighbor's kid is selling them, too."
A woman said she paid for all the raffie tickets herself but...
Pope Writes Thanks For Lambeth Bid
Vatican City — (NC) — Pope Paul VI has sent a handwritten letter to Anglican Archbishop Michael Ramsey of Canterbury expressing his gladness that several Catholic observers were invited to attend the Lambeth Conference of the Anglican Church.
The Lambeth meeting, scheduled from July 25 to Aug. 25, is normally held every 10 years. Some 500 Anglican bishops from all over the world will make recommendations to help align the Church's policies and activities with current world situations. This year's conference is the first to which official Catholic and Orthodox observers have been invited.
