Aquinas to Face Pittsburgh Team

By WHIT JOHNSON
Aquinas Institute's football team, fresh from a convincing 27-6 win over top-ranked Mont Pleasant of Schenectady last Friday, runs right into a solid wall of huskies this Sunday, Sept. 29, when it entertains highly touted North Catholic of Pittsburgh.

Sunday's game, set for 2 p.m., will mark the 12th meeting between these intersectional foes. The Little Irish-Trojan series began in 1952 and continued until 1963. Aquinas won only two of those games. The series was revived this year to round out the Aquinas eight-game schedule. Last year Aquinas played only seven games.

North Catholic is coached by Joseph Bushofsky, former North Catholic and North Carolina University great. He was named head coach of the Trojans for the 1968 season. Bushofsky was a member of the 1953 North Catholic team that squeezed by Aquinas 14-13.

North Catholic won its season opener with a 12-6 win over Highlands High School, the school that had such greats as the Modzewlewski brothers and Cokkie Gilchrist.

The Pittsburgh team has shown great strength on defense. Aquinas backs Mike Skivington, Gerry Fess, John Brophy and Rich Russo will need considerable blocking help to smash through it. The Trojans haven't done much passing this year so far, but their ground attack is varied and powerful.

The Trojans boast a heavy team, with the starting line averaging 192 pounds per man. It is anchored by big Bill Yoest, a 6-foot, 220-pounder who saw considerable action last year.

Irish coach Rosmarino, counting on speed and agility, hopes to counter with a more open attack.

"The fact that we will be outweighed by Pittsburgh should...

Teens, Here's Neat Way to Learn

New York — (RNS) — Hey, kids, how'd you like Simon and Garfunkel for teachers? Or the Beatles?

And wouldn't it be groovy if you had to listen to "Georgy Girl" or "Alfie" as part of homework?

Too good to be true? Not at all.

Two religious publishing houses, the Roman Catholic Paulist Press and the Protestant Association Press, have issued a series of books which are being used in religion classes for teenagers.

The new series of books is called "Discovery" and the first two were issued in time for the start of the school year. They are entitled, "Discovery in Song" and "Discovery in Word."

The "Song" book presents a series of pop tunes under the six general themes of the series: communication, freedom, love, happiness, peace, and life. They are all songs that are highly familiar to contemporary youth. Some, such as "Alfie," "Georgy Girl" and "People" are familiar to a wide audience. Such illuminaries of the contemporary great rock and folk rock music world as the Beatles, Simon and Garfunkel, The Rolling Stones, and The Monkeys are represented.

The student is urged to study the lyrics of the song presented in the book, listen to recordings of the compositions, and then discuss them, using some leading questions.

One example, under the theme "freedom," is the widely popular "Born Free."

As an introduction to the lyrics, the book observes: "Have you ever been out on an October day looking at sunset, watching the birds fly South? Have you ever wished that you could go with them?"

Some of the questions given to generate discussion are: "Does the song equate loss of ability to be 'astounded' with loss of freedom?"

"Can the dimensions of freedom—spelled-out in the song be summed up in 'Let's not complicate our minds'?"

"Do you see any difference between the phrases 'walls to divide you' and 'no need to hide' in relation to freedom?"

"To what extent are all men born free?"

"Born free, as free as the wind blows? Does the music match this description of freedom?"

The series has been developed by religious educators, psychologists, and teenagers themselves.

Designed to speak in the language of "today" about the people and events of "today," the series has been formulated so that teenagers ask certain questions about their personal growth to maturity. Who am I? What is a messenger? Where am I going? Am I for others?

The "Word" book was written by four youths who were students at Fordham Prep, a Jesuit school in the Bronx. They are Thomas O'Brien, Thomas Sheehan, Patrick Collins, and William Weber. The editor is Father Robert Heyer, S.J., a member of the Fordham Prep faculty.

In the "Word" book, the teenager considers the same six themes through the media of the printed word. Father Heyer also served as editor of this volume with the viewpoints and questions written by another high school student, J. Brown.

This book contains art work and editorial material from such widely diversified sources as Pennus, the New Yorker, Jules Felter, RedBook, The

New York Times, The Sign, Sacred Heart Messenger, Ave Maria, Time, Newsweek, Look, Catholic Mind, America, and the National Catholic Reporter.

The series will be augmented in the Spring when the two publishers expect to release "Discovery in Drama" and "Discovery in Film."

In an introduction to the "Song" book, it is noted that "in addition to discussion in religion class—Sunday School, COED (Confraternity of Christian Doctrine), or daily classes—these songs would be suitable for group guidance periods."

"Selections could also be very effective in youth leadership workshops, at religious services, on retreats and days of Christian renewal and similar youth programs. Group discussion on these songs and pictures would be very suitable for teenage educational meetings."

Every semi-finalist who becomes a finalist will be considered for one of the 1000 National Merit $1000 Scholarships, allocated by states. Many will also be considered for four-year scholarships provided by some 400 corporations, foundations, colleges, unions, trusts, professional organizations, and individuals. High school grades, accomplishments, leadership qualities, extracurricular activities, and school citizenship of the finalists are evaluated, along with the test scores, in selecting the winners.

Semi-finalists must advance to the finalist standing to be considered for Merit Scholarships, since all winners are selected from the "finalist" group; semi-finalists become finalists by receiving the endorsement of their schools, submitting their scores in a second examination, and providing information about their achievements and interests.

Two students at McQuaid Jesuit High School have been named National Merit Scholarship semi-finalists.

James Keenan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Keenan of 51 Poplar Way, Rochester, and Roger Schaeffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Schaeffer of 7 Reitz Circle, Pittsford, were accorded the scholastic honor.

The semi-finalists were the highest scorers in the state on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, given last February in 17,500 schools. They constitute less than 1 per cent of the seniors in the United States.

Mike Pignato scored two touchdowns and Gary Gianforte, Mark Welt, John Quinlisk and Mike Ryan one each for McQuaid.

Tom Synder scored the lone Kearney touchdown in its loss to Clyde.

The Mooney Cardinals were paced by Pat Butler's two 6-pointers and John Waffle scored the other touchdown for Mooney.

Friday Bishop Kearney is at Watertown, Cardinal Mooney hosts Notre Dame of Utica and McQuaid is at home to Elmira Academy, DeSales hosts Clyde.

In other opening games, McQuaid High overpowered DeSales of Geneva, 42-0; Bishop Kearney was upended by Clyde Central, 16-7, and Cardinal Mooney defeated Medina Central, 20-6.
