The Inner City . . . Its Problems Overrun Its Borders

local churches to take the lead in creatively involving unreached teenagers.

Formation of the new Metropolitan Inter-Church Agency of Chemung Valley. The Urban Ministry Office has served as consultant in this new "Christian combine" which hopes to come to grips with today's social crisis in Chemung County, and in the Corning area. Participating denominations will be represented by laymen and clergy of this area on the governing board. Funding, for staff and program, is to be shouldered by denominations, for renewal of the church, as well as society, is implicit in this new united metro-mission.

Cooperative summer camping for children of ghetto areas has completed two summers as a joint project. Selected camping periods in five different church-sponsored camps make available about two hundred camperships for children whose parents request help to meet the costs of this camping experience.

Summer seminar on urban problems and decision-making involved thirty college and graduate students from various parts of the United States in six seminar hours per week, and in work, mainly in church-sponsored projects in the Inner City and transitional areas.

STIR program (Strategy Training in Renewal) was sponsored and developed by the Joint Office for St. Bernard's Seminary and Colgate Rochester Divinity School. Involving thirty seminarians, training and supervising them in new styles of ministry in the sector cooperative ministries, the program has been adopted by the two seminaries as part of their field-education training.

The Rochester Cooperative Summer Program was sponsored by the Office of Urban Ministry, the Board for Urban Ministry and the Jewish Community Council. An attempt to provide necessary resources to neighborhoods in the central city so that they, along with available resource people, can design and execute a summer program geared to their specific needs,
