

As I See It

Christmas Comes Early on TV

By PAT COSTA
Christmas has come early on television for the children at least.
In the past week or so, they have been treated to rereenings of 'Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer' and 'A Charlie Brown Christmas'...

background only now and then. The songs were tuneful and nicely handled by Ives and Noone.
On the whole, it was a diverting 90 minutes for the youngsters even if the social commentary was much in evidence. Anita Gillette, something of a bore when left to her own devices on the talk shows, was a lovely Good Fairy and other members of the cast in assorted roles, including a couple of endearing whales, came up to the standards set by Ives.
CBS Playhouse, which has had an enviable record, struck out in its second play of its second season. 'Saturday Adoption'...

Books

The various colors of the human race, and the cultures that go with them, are represented in the following children's books. The list was prepared by Partners, Inc., a local bi-racial group, and the books are available in city stores and libraries.
For the youngest readers: 'The Lollipop Party' by Ruth A. Sonneborn (Viking; $2.75)...

Religi
By JOAN ZUMMO
Exceptional children, mentally retarded - they are known by many names, perhaps the most appropriate is special children; the young people can and handicapped, can and know, love, and praise the God.
They must be special deed to this Creator who made them such that they love and worship of Him to remain always the simple, questioning, total response of a loving child.
As with all children, however, they are not born fully formed Christian adults, but rather their virtues are the result of the life experiences. Formal religious training is as important a part of their experience as it is of all young Christians.
The Diocese of Rochester has a program for these children.
