Mort Leary, 'A Legend', Retires

By ARTHUR P. FARREN
 Hundreds of former Aquinas Institute High School students—particularly those now 35 to 55 years of age—experienced a bit of nostalgia this week at an announcement of the retirement of a Rochester advertising executive—Mortimer J. Leary Sr.

Mort Leary—who played and coached Aquinas basketball and baseball for 22 years, from 1920 to 1945—will retire April 1 at 65 after 25 years with the Hutchins Advertising Company.

Mort will be listed by Aquinas historians as one of the outstanding "legends" of the Dewey Avenue high school.

Chronologically, he played basketball and baseball from 1920 to 1924—during some of the brightest years of the school's cage record—and returned three years later to coach 18 successive basketball teams which never had a losing season, always winning more games than they lost.

During his student days, Mort captained the "Fighting Irish" team which played in the National Catholic Tournament in Chicago in 1924. He and his teammates—including Leo Sullivan, "Red" and "Whitey" Mason and "Toddy" O'Neil, grabbed national headlines by beating Sioux Falls High of South Dakota by the unusual score of 30-0. The team reached the quarterfinals before having to play two games in one day, and being eliminated.

Mort also pitched for and captained the Aquinas baseball team.

After two years at Villanova College, where he also played both sports, Mort accepted an invitation to succeed the late Billy McCarthy in 1927 as Aquinas athletic director... to inaugurate his 18-year coaching tenure, longest in the school's sports history.

In 1941 Mort's basketballers came within one point of a perfect-win season, dropping only one game by a single point to a then-traditional rival, Christian Brothers Academy of Syracuse.

Mort's many years' interest in the art of drawing led him in 1945 to a fulltime position with the Hutchins firm. For a quarter-century he has worked there as a "traffic production and art director," helping to produce advertising messages for numerous local and national firms.

Liberal Heads Up New Vatican Unit

Vatican City—(RNS)—The new Vatican Committee for Human Development is headed by a Brazilian churchman well known for programs aimed at forming community leaders through basic education or radio.

Archbishop Eugenio de Araujo Sales of Sao Salvador da Bahia, 48, was recently elevated to a see that embraces almost 2 million Catholics. He is also president of the Catholic Action Department of the Conference of Latin American Bishops.

The committee will promote and coordinate the efforts of Catholic groups in basic education, vocational training, cooperative and community development and similar fields.

He stressed that there are at present thousands of projects conducted by episcopal, lay and religious groups throughout the world in the fields of basic education and leader formation—all seeking to awaken social consciousness.

"The purpose of the Committee for Human Development is to learn from all these efforts of local churches, educational research institutes, lay movements and organizations and missionary societies. We commend their pioneering initiatives and want to offer them moral support and our cooperation on regional and international bases so that they can become even more productive and that the successful methods of one may quickly become the common benefit of all."

Many programs launched and guided by Archbishop de Araujo have been aimed at the social awakening of rural populations and those living in urban slums. He has introduced courses for political, business, labor and intellectual leaders designed to stimulate them into making positive contributions of their own talents and resources.

In an interview with the Vatican Radio following his appointment to the Vatican post, Archbishop de Araujo said his committee will be concerned with various fields of human development. It will have much greater scope than those aimed merely at eliminating illiteracy.

Teens Get Tough!

Open War on Obscenity

Miami—(NC)—Miami teenagers, led by a group of Catholic Youth Organization members, representing various faiths and schools, are calling on all young people to "stand up and be counted" in a peaceful protest against "filth, obscenity and corruption in any area, but specifically in the entertainment field."

Entertainment personalities who have accepted invitations to participate in a rally include Jackie Gleason, Anita Bryant, Roslyn Kind, the Rhoads Brothers and the Impact of Brass.

The movement, which has support from prominent citizens and civic groups, began following a show at Miami's Dinner Key auditorium by a contemporary group, the Doors, which received $25,000 for a performance in which they shouted obscenities over the microphone and disrobed while on stage.

Teenagers, many of whom paid $8 to attend the show, say they intend to take a stand to show Miami and the rest of the world how many teens really think about the situation.

Make Levesque, 17, spokesman for the group planning the "Miami Teens for Decency" rally March 23, declared:

"I would call upon all teenagers to stand up and be counted if they feel like I do. We will act as teenagers who take out the garbage at home instead of creating some."

"It makes my blood boil to think of how teenagers are being exploited today in everything—in sex, in clothing, on TV, on the radio," Levesque said.

Although the idea for the rally originated with a Catholic group, Archbishop Coleman F. Carroll of Miami emphasized that it is a "lay teenage movement" and non-denominational. He said he is "100 per cent" behind the movement.

Leroux DeLuxe Brandy.

The after dinner brandy you drink before dinner.

Leroux DeLuxe Brandy. All by itself in a small glass. After dinner. Great.

But have you tried it before dinner? In a tall glass with water or soda? Or on the rocks? Or in a Manhattan?

Just as great. Maybe greater.

Leroux DeLuxe Brandy. The brandy that's light enough to be the after dinner brandy you drink before dinner.
