Parish Council Work? Try This

What, actually, do parish councils DO? Well, if you had been a member of the Parish Council at St. Patrick's Church, Owego, since its organization two years ago, you would have been fairly busy making decisions. The council, "which establishes policy concerning spiritual and temporal programs for the parish," includes the pastor (Father Leo Matuszewski), the assistant pastor (Father John Detleff), the school principal, the president of each parish organization, parish trustees and auditors.

tions which appeared in the April 20 parish bulletin: • Adopted a constitution for the council, presented financial report to the parish by a layman, established the annual parish dance, established a sex education committee. • Provided authority to finance committee to increase the price of graves in St. Patrick's Cemetery up to $100, established a calendar of events, use of parish facilities and equipment by outside organizations. • Approved establishment of the Sunday CCD (religious education) program and fees, approved holding the annual parish picnic, established a group for welcoming new parishioners, established a permanent date for First Holy Communion, established a charity fund, established a liturgy committee, approved the organization of a nursery during the 9:45 and 11 Sunday Masses. • Approved repair of stained glass windows, approved inclusion of calendar of events in the church bulletin periodically, provided list of names for "Transportation Corps for the Aged," approved Lenten devotion suggestions.
