

Negro Field General in Vietnam

Brig. Gen. Frederic Davison, left, first Negro general to command American infantrymen in combat, meets in the field with one of his company commanders, Capt. Theodore H. Lackland, of Chicago. The 51-year-old general, who is ending 18 months in Vietnam, has remarked with pride that his 199th Light Infantry Brigade never had a man court-martialed for refusing combat. (RNS)

Pope Paul Receives Lutheran Delegation

Vatican City — (NC) — Pope Paul VI speaking to a top-level delegation from the Lutheran World Federation (LWF), declared that the differences between the Catholic Church and the Lutheran churches are deep and "must not be passed over in silence."

He was quoting from the first report of the joint working group created by the Holy See and the LWF.

Noting that the delegation had come from both the Mission-Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity and other departments of the Holy See "to discuss certain questions regarding relations between the Roman Catholic Church and LWF," the Pope said:

"Your visit is for us a visible sign of the considerable development of good relations with your federation during the years that have followed the Second Vatican Council."

The Pope pointed out that the joint working group of the LWF and the Catholic Church had been meeting every year since 1965.

"We are glad to see that for three years the problems of Gospel and Church have been examined by this Evangelical Lutheran-Roman Catholic study commission, and we are convinced that this question is one of the most central still remaining between us, without solution since the unhappy rupture at the time of the Reform.

"With the first report of the mixed Lutheran-Catholic working group, we want to emphasize that the deep divergences that have shown themselves between the Roman Catholic Church and the Lutheran churches must not be passed over in silence. Let them be recognized openly and let them be taken into serious consideration."

Pope Paul paid tribute to the Lutherans: "allow us to express to you how much your seriousness and your loyalty to our common Lord—Jesus Christ—have impressed us."

Critical Catholics Decried by Pope

Vatican City — (NC) — Pope Paul has decried Catholics who criticize the Church while refusing to commit themselves lovingly to it.

He was receiving the Circolo San Pietro, a group of Roman laymen dedicated to works of charity and the Pope's service. The group is celebrating its 100th anniversary.

"You do not stand in the ranks of the apathetic, occasional and conformist Catholics who, as the saying goes, are leaving their posts."

"You live by your ideas, aware of the ideas of others and respecting them, but not making them your own by easy and convenient admissions, so often the fashion," he continued.

"Nor do you show yourselves to be prophetic and evolved Catholics, thus to shirk the commitments of the ecclesiastical community and to arrogate the right of criticism without solidarity and without love. You are Catholics close to the Pope, and you shoulder the consequences, often demanding and burdensome."

BISHOP SHANNON

Bishop Shannon Facts Cloudy

A letter written to Pope Paul last September by Bishop James P. Shannon lies at the root of widespread newspaper reports, and contradictions, that he has resigned. Bishop Shannon, auxiliary of the archbishop of St. Paul-Minneapolis, has been on leave for four months, teaching at St. John's College, Santa Fe, N.M.

At Vatican City, "competent authorities" have "no news" beyond current conflicting reports, according to Msgr. Fausto Vallone, the Holy See's press officer.

Bishop Shannon, who is pastor of St. Helena's Church in Minneapolis, wrote to the Holy Father of his "anguish" over the birth control encyclical, Humanae Vitae. An authoritative source in Rome revealed last week that a "very kind" answer had been written to Bishop Shannon, at the Papal Secretariat of State, apparently on the Pope's orders.

'Free' Education Urged as Return For U.S. Service

St. Louis — (RNS) — The federal government was urged to provide a free college education for all who want it provided they promise to serve a year of national service "to others needing help."

The suggestion came from Father Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., president of the University of Notre Dame, during a commencement address at St. Louis University.

He proposed that the option to participate in a national service program instead of military service also be extended to students who do not receive federal aid.

"A new and imaginative national program that will give our young people a legitimate outlet for their deep concerns would be worth more than a thousand techniques of 'riot control,'" the Notre Dame president declared.

In answer to those who would object to allowing youths to substitute service in the Peace Corps, Vista, and similar civilian and religious organizations for military duty, Father Hesburgh answered:

"There are many ways of being patriotic besides military service, however honorable that is. We take the draft as the standard and only form of obligated service, but for about 90 per cent of our national history there was no draft."

Governor Vetoes Education Bill

Albany — Saying that although he favored such aid but that it would require a constitutional amendment, Gov. Rockefeller has vetoed a bill that would have brought church-run colleges into the state's new $20-million assistance program for higher education.

He said he had to veto the bill because there was a specific ban in the State Constitution against such financial assistance in the case of church educational facilities.

Coat of Arms for Cardinal

Sister Hiltrudis, of the Precious Blood Sisters, puts the final touches on the coat of arms for Cardinal John J. Carberry, which will be placed above the episcopal throne in the sanctuary of the St. Louis Cathedral. She is an art teacher. The shield, on a wood veneer base, is made of baked enamel on copper and brass, with touches of silver.
