Memo for MONEY LABELS-Chairman: Most of you have been very prompt about turning in your yellow registration forms. There are still a few, however, who haven't notified us that theirs were ready. It's very important that we receive these forms as soon as possible. Though September (when the program officially begins) seems a long way away, it will be on us in no time. There's much to be done in the interim. The forms must all be processed—and there are literally thousands of these—an adequate amount of literature to "service" these registrants must be printed, etc. This can't be done unless we know the exact number of those who will be participating. The yellow registration forms supply this information.

Many of you ask, "If our group was registered for the Courier's previous fund-raising program, are we automatically registered for MONEY LABELS?" No, because the only similarities between the two are in the saving of labels and participation by non-profit groups alone. From that point on, MONEY LABELS is entirely different.

In this new plan, you the individual member of a parish or club will reap the major benefits. That's right—you'll receive three-fourths of the profit, with the other fourth going to your charitable organization. Of course when all these one-fourths are put together, the organization itself will receive a tidy sum.

We welcome all requests for information about MONEY LABELS. However, when you do make inquiries, be sure to identify the group concerned since, as we said, you can participate only through a group. Call 546-5140 or 865-1554, fill out the coupon below or contact one of the following Courier representatives: Auburn Region—Mr. Jack Madden, 71 Nelson St., Auburn 513-252-9232; Elmira Region—Mr. Basil Villancourt, 371 Robinson Bldg., Elmira 607-322-5858; Danville Region—Mr. Andy Mazzella, 80 Platt St., Hornell 607-324-2960. Mail the coupon to Money Labels, Courier Journal, 35 Scio St., Rochester, N.Y. 14604.

Results of CCD Survey

By JOAN ZUMMO

Each year the CCD office conducts a survey of programs in the diocese. As this year of instruction closes and plans are started for next year's programs it is interesting to consider some of the statistics from this year's survey.

The survey consists of questions covering total number of students enrolled, a breakdown into the number in each grade, texts used, time and place of meetings, the numbers of trained teachers—untrained, and in training—numbers of clergy, religious, and helpers, and an estimate of the number of young people not attending CCD classes in each parish.

There are nearly 35,000 elementary grade children enrolled in CCD religious education programs in 328 parishes in the diocese. Only 3 of the 331 parishes have no organized religious education program. All parochial elementary schools in the diocese enroll just over 40,000 students. Therefore, even at the elementary level, the CCD programs are responsible for the religious formation of nearly half of the children in this age group.

This fact shows the need for a redistribution in our financial emphasis and priorities in the total area of religious education of our young children.

Another significant fact is that in 76 parishes there is no parochial school so CCD is their only formal religious education program.

There are 3,614 lay adults actively involved in CCD, as well as priests, seminarians, and religious. Most of the laymen serve as teachers, but a large number also serve as helpers, office help, or administrators. Of the teachers, approximately 2 out of 3 have been trained in the CCD teachers training program. Many of those who have not taken the training course are experienced and excellent teachers.

One of the priorities being stressed by the CCD Office is the need for professional, full-time, paid personnel at the parish as well as the diocesan level.

In addition to the fact that a number of teachers are untrained, there are only two parishes that have full-time program directors. The majority of parishes in this diocese look large enough to have at least a part-time, paid director of religious formation—and many parishes should have a full time coordinator.

The survey indicates that most parishes, in the city of Rochester, especially, have gone over to a Saturday morning program at least for grades 1-6. In some cases the seventh and eighth grades meet on week nights. Outside the metropolitan area about 20 percent—30 percent of the parishes still operate on released time.

Although the survey shows the effort being made through the CCD programs in the diocese it also is an indication of the work yet to be done.

It is a sobering thought to realize that, according to the survey, we are not reaching about 6,500 elementary students at all.

One out of five elementary students in this diocese has no formal religious education—and this percentage jumps considerably at the high school level.
