

Widow Visits Kennedy Grave

Mrs. Ethel Kennedy is a solitary figure as she kneels at the grave of her husband, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, during an early morning visit to Arlington National Cemetery on the first anniversary of his assassination. In the early evening of the same day, Terence Cardinal Cooke of New York celebrated a memorial Mass at the graveside which was attended by members of the Kennedy family. (RNS) paid tribute to the late Augustin Cardinal Bea of the Vatican Unity Secretariat who visited Geneva even before the Council was concluded.

"Your visit here today is significant," said Dr. Blake to the Pope, "in that it proclaims to the whole church and the whole world that the ecumenical movement flows on ever wider, ever deeper toward the unity and renewal of Christ's church as He wills it."

The World Council is composed of 235 Protestant and Orthodox Churches. Launched in 1948 on the foundations of older faith and order, life and work and missionary movements, it represents most major Christian groups outside the Catholic Church.

Pope Paul thanked God for the chance to pay "a fraternal Christian visit." He asked: "Is not the World Council a marvelous movement of Christians, of 'children of God' who are scattered abroad, who are now searching for a recomposition in unity?"

"Is not the meaning of our coming here, at the threshold of your house, found in that joyful obedience to an unseen impulse which, by the merciful command of Christ, makes our ministry and mission what it is?"

"Truly a blessed encounter, a prophetic moment, dawn of a day to come and yet awaited for centuries!" The Pope pointed out that he came as the successor to Peter, but understanding Peter as one called a "fisher of men" and a "shepherd" by the Lord, as well as the Apostle singled out for special attribution, responsibilities and duties.

"In what concerns our persons," he said, "we are convinced that without merit on our part, the Lord has given us a ministry of communion."

Following the welcome and the response, M. M. Thomas of India, a layman who is chairman of the Central Committee of the World Council, led 15 minutes of common prayer which was closed with the Lord's Prayer.

Reading the Scripture was Jan Cardinal Willebrands, president of the Vatican Secretariat for Christian Unity. Orthodox Metropolitan Meliton of Chalcedon led the litany from the 1970 Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. Miss Pauline Webb read a prayer of the late Pope John XXIII and led in the Lord's Prayer, which those present said in their own languages.

After the prayer service, the Pope moved into Dr. Blake's office and had a few minutes of private conversation with the general secretary and Mr. Thomas. He was presented with leather-bound volumes of the proceedings of the four World Council Assemblies. Pope Paul gave the WCC a 16th Century wooden statue of St. Paul.

Geneva was the base of Reformer John Calvin in the 16th Century and has maintained a strong Protestant identity. It now has a large Catholic population.

The visit ended with a period of silent meditation in the Ecumenical Centre chapel. The papal and WCC entourage and other churchmen filed into the sanctuary, stood in a line in front of the altar and exited after approximately a minute of meditative organ music. The solemn mood of the occasion broke immediately after the Pope left the chapel, many of the crowd following him outside as he entered his limousine.

Pope Paul told the ILO delegates that they must support the development of weak peoples and control the rights of the strong by creating "a real international law of labor" that is "not only theoretical but practical."

Warning of the dangers of contemporary industrial society and the frequent dehumanization involved in modern technological developments, the Pope said that man must always remain the master of technology "and dominate its evolution."

Man, he told the ILO, "must be prevented from becoming only the mechanized caterer to a blind machine which devours the best of himself, or of a state tempted to subject

President Seeks Extra $100 Million Anti-Poverty Fund

Washington, D.C. — (RNS) — President Nixon has asked Congress for an additional $100 million for the government's anti-poverty program and for extension of the financing to two years.

For the fiscal year beginning July 1, the President recommended a budget of $2,048,000,000.

He said in the request to Congress that "a two-year extension would provide a better framework within which the necessary improvements in the anti-poverty program can be made."

House Education and Labor Committee chairman Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) had sought a five-year extension. "If we hadn't asked for five years, we probably wouldn't have gotten more than one," he said.

HeadStart will be taken over by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Job Corps by the Department of Labor, July 1.

all energies to its service alone."

Pope Paul told the ILO that its vocation is to intervene and to supply remedies for labor conflicts, to give aid to victims, work out new protection against new dangers, improve the conditions of workers, "struggle against segregation which gives birth to inferiority for whatsoever motive, whether slavery, caste, race, religion or class."

Quoting the words of the first ILO director-general, Albert Thomas, Pope Paul said: "The social factor must overcome the economic factor."

The world of tomorrow will be built up by the youth of today, he said, and then he told the ILO that it is up to it to prepare them for this.

Thousands of nearby Frenchmen and other foreigners poured into Switzerland to join the Swiss in getting a glimpse of the Pope and to attend a Mass celebrated by him. Special parking areas — most of them in the outskirts of the city — were designated for persons driving to Geneva for the Pope's visit. The crowds along his routes of travel through this city were held back by barriers resembling snow fences.

An evening outdoor Mass climaxed the Pope's visit before he flew back to Rome.

Following the Mass, the Pope returned to the north side by boat and then went to the ILO headquarters building, where he met with Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, who addressed the ILO conference the day after the Pope had (June 11).

goodness: looking at him you could never imagine that he could do anything unjust or dishonest or mean.

"He was so beloved in England—where the very word 'papacy' has been hated and feared—that when he died, it was as if the Queen had died."

The retreat conference, the Cardinal said, would appeal to the diocesan priests "to achieve perfect manhood, enriched by the holiness of Christ."

That manhood, he insisted, was not "virility, or the manhood of the lalty, but a 'putting on of Christ.' The more the priest concentrates on perfecting his human personality, the further he goes away from Christ."

Cardinal Heenan was the Bishop of Leeds and Archbishop of Liverpool before moving up to the important See of Westminster. Once known as Britain's "Radio Priest" because of his frequent B.B.C. broadcasts, he was superior of the Catholic Missionary Society of England and National Director of the Legion of Mary.

A distinguished participant in the Vatican Council, he is a leading member of the Church's commission on ecumenical affairs.
