A Picture Story of Bishop Hogan and His Family

How it all began! Infant Joseph Lloyd Hogan, the future Bishop of Rochester posed for a Lima photographer nine months after birth in 1916.

Two priest-brothers and two Bishops of Rochester at a party (1967) when the future Bishop Hogan marked his 25th anniversary in the priesthood.

At his mother's 84th birthday party in October Bishop Hogan carried the birthday cake to the dinner table when he entertained the family at St. Margaret Mary's rectory.

Bishop Hogan and his mother in an informal portrait made this month while the flurry of preparations for his ordination whirled around their lives.

Mrs. Hogan and her son Lloyd (as she prefers to call him) posed in 1948 when he was spending a day-off at her home from teaching duties at St. Andrew's Seminary.
