

Seminary Days '36 - '42

A First-Philosopher at St. Bernard's: the future Bishop in 1937.

Baseball at St. Bernard's Seminary—seminarians (now Bishop) Joseph L. Hogan at bat and (now Father) Thomas K. Reddington catching, in interclass game on seminary grounds.

Bishop Hogan in 1941 was one of a group of seminarians who taught catechetics in summer school at Camp Jogues on Brant Lake in the Adirondacks. Sub-deacons from many Eastern dioceses staffed this camp-school.

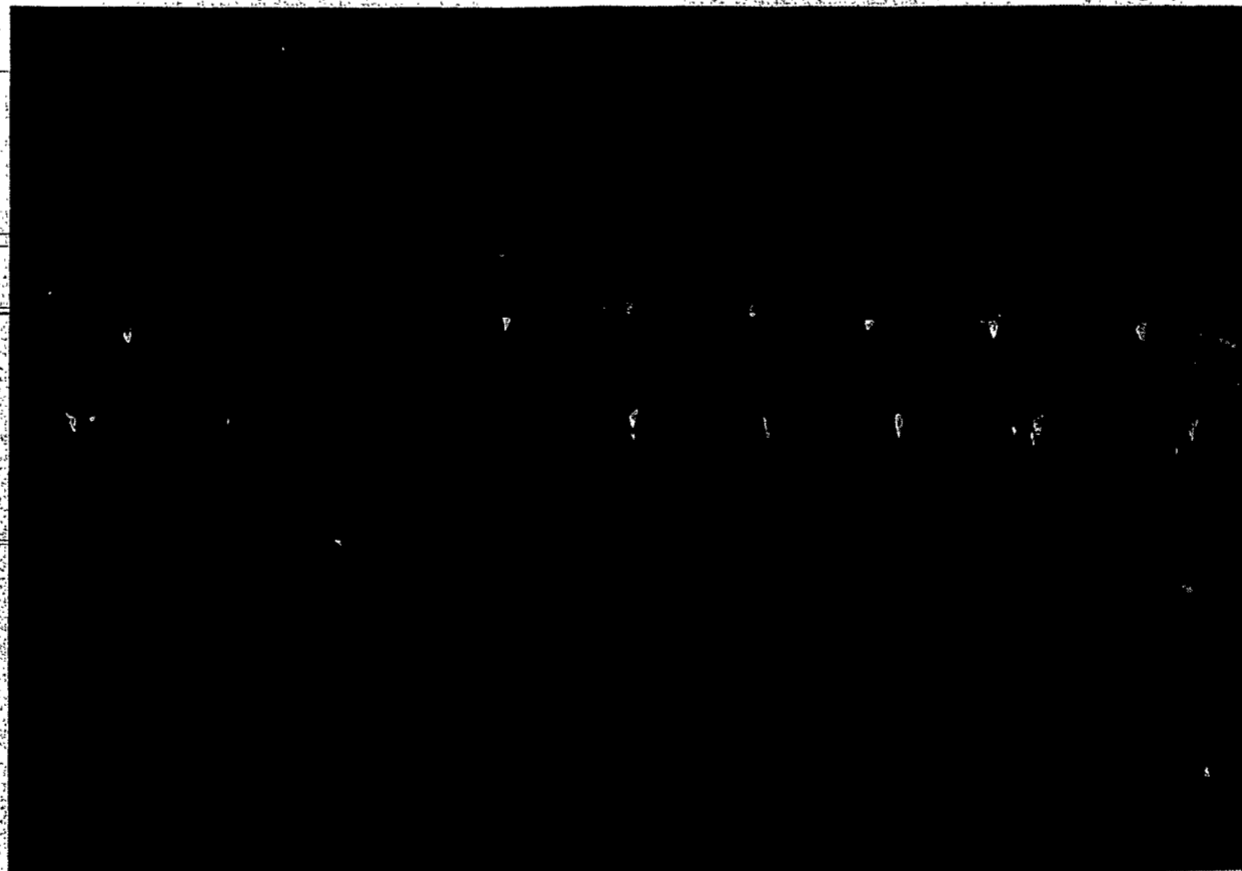

Seminarian Joseph L. Hogan served for several summers as a counselor at diocesan Camp Stella Maris on Conesus Lake. From left are the now Father Thomas K. Cleary, Bishop Hogan, Father Kenneth Flint (serving in Diocese of Norwich in Connecticut) and Father Richard Tormey.

Bishop Joseph L. Hogan, as seminarian at St. Bernard's, is pictured with other students. From left are John S. Whalen, Robert Reid, Joseph Hogan, James Slattery, Richard Tormey and Eugene McFarland.

On his ordination day, June 6, 1942, Father Joseph L. Hogan posed with classmates Father Thomas Cleary (center) and Father Joseph M. Egan.

Graduation class at St. Andrew's Seminary in June 1938—the now Bishop Hogan is third from right in front row.

Father Joseph L. Hogan celebrated his first Mass June 7, 1942, in his home parish—St. Rose of Lima Church in Lima. Assisting were two priests now retired—Msgr. John M. Ball (back to camera) then pastor of St. Rose Church, and Father J. Joseph O'Connell.