As I See It

How about Cavett in the Morning?

By PAT COSTA

Channel 13's failure to give Rochester area viewers the privilege of watching Dick Cavett is to be mourned. As a viewer who at one time was enamored of the efforts of Johnny Carson, Mery Griffin and Mike Douglas I long ago came to the realization that the superficial banter and the sexual innuendoes far outweigh any meaty discussions offered by the Reports that ABC hopes to tone done Cavett's "erudition", as they put it, merely serves to point up his distinctive quality. One would think that the network would seize upon the difference with glee, pointing it up in its promotions of the late night show rather than trying to reduce him to the level of the better known

While deploring the lack of Cavett

may I also point out I'd hate to see Channel 13 drop its late night movie? How's that for ambivalence? (What's the possibility of taping the Cavett 90 minutes for showing the next morning, Channel 13?)

prime time viewing and at our house if we do stay up we usually opt for Movies, rather than losing their impact on television, appear to becoming more and more important as testified earlier this week by the networks' reports of more movie films being made especially for the Hopefully, the producers will try to approach the quality of "My Sweet Charlie" a TV movie which won stunning reviews a short time ago, rather than settle for the crudity, emptiness and gore that typified "Green Apple Road", a cheap and tasteless offering screened about the same time.

Just how important movies are to television was reiterated again a week ago when a rerun of "Born Free" was by far the outstanding event (always excepting "Sesame It's nice to have a choice for post Street" of course) screened in a seven-day period, or even longer, if you were actually counting.

> The one thing about mixing television and movies that doesn't come off too well is the ridiculous chopping up of a film to make it fit a particular time slot. It should be outlawed, particularly if the movie has any stature at all.

A second complaint, strictly personal, is the showing of a movie in two parts, one each day.

Channel 13 which screens them in this manner at 10:30 mornings has lost me and my ironing board as

Portraying the man from Scotland Yard, Bob Russo in the Aquinas comedy, "Dear Delinquent", displays evidence of the crime to other actors, Steve McGuckin, Liz Mittiga, Bob Crocetti and Dan Deninger. The play will be presented on the Aquinas stage at 8 p.m. Friday, March 13 and Saturday,
