Muddy Kids Means Spring

By Sarah Child

We may still wake up mornings to find a not-so-light cover of snow gracing the frozen ground but I know it is Spring because:

- At least once a day our 2-year-old comes in covered completely with gloriously mushy mud.
- The 5-year-old calls my attention every hour on the hour to the newest addition to the crocus patch. (Three yellow, one purple, one white.)
- The milk cartons are warm to the touch if I forget to retrieve them from the box until long after the milkman has made his delivery.
- The little boys next door have shed their corduroy coats and leather buckle-down hats for emblem-covered baseball jackets and caps.
- Rare sunshine now clearly shows up the streaks on my dusty windows.
- Sunday afternoon drives into the adjacent countryside have been resumed.
- I no longer get stuck in the church parking lot — just boxed in.
- The head of the house has added baseball viewing to his TV schedule of basketball and golf.

- You can find asparagus in the fresh vegetable section of the grocery and the price of eggs is finally coming down.
- All the daddies in the neighborhood are arriving home from work before dark and the kids are still outside to greet them.
- "Sesame Street", that phenomenon of television, a great diversion during the winter months, has suddenly lost its viewers to the soggy swamps we call lawns.
- Some of the eager beavers have already cut their lawns. The rest of us are just getting started on last Fall's leaves and the undergrowth.
- The village maintenance department visits our water logged extra lot once a day always threatening but never actually removing the willow trees that are causing the trouble.
- One set of friends has already started their nightly cook-outs.
- AND BECAUSE the calendar says so.

COURIER / RECIPES

When garden lettuce comes on so fast you can't give it away, liquidate it in the blender and serve salad soup. Well, just an idea . . . here's how:

- 4 cups shredded lettuce, packed
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes, crumbled
- ¾ cup water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ cup onion rings
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 2 tablespoons corn starch
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper
- Dash nutmeg
- 2 cups milk
- ¼ cup white wine or 3 tablespoons water and 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- Croutons, garnish

Mix shredded lettuce with bouillon cubes, water and lemon juice in blender; whirl until smooth. Saute onion in margarine in saucepan until tender.

CEREAL TRICK

If hot cereals aren't overly popular in your household, try serving them with heated canned cling peach slices. The cheerful peaches give extra nourishment and extra good taste.

crisp; remove onion from pan. Mix corn starch, salt, pepper and nutmeg into margarine in pan; stir in milk. Cook, stirring until mixture comes to a boil and is thickened. Mix in wine and lettuce mixture. Add sauteed onion; heat. Serve hot with smooth. Cauterize onion in mar-croustons. Makes 4 (¾-cup) servings.

FRUIT SALAD

Here's an idea for a good luncheon salad: a slice of canned pineapple on crisp curly greenery; topped with a canned cling peach half with a large plump cooked prune in the center. Serve with your favorite dressing.

LOOKS GOOD

Bavarian creams, custards or gelatin desserts unmolded onto platters rate a bit of decoration. A wreath made of canned cling peach slices accents the dessert to perfection, in looks and taste.

FRUIT CREAM PUFFS

Fill cream puff shells with a mixture of soft ice cream and canned fruit cocktail. To make it extra special, top the whole thing with chocolate sauce.

Marymount Grads To Fete Dr. Meng

The Rochester chapter of the Marymount Alumnae Association will entertain Dr. John J. Meng, president of the college, on Friday, May 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard F. Norton, Jr. will host a dinner in honor of Dr. Meng at Monroe
