Nuns Accustomed To Disaster

San Antonio—(RNS) — The Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word, headquartered here, have lived on intimate terms with disaster.

In the late 19th Century, a fire consumed the town of Paris, Texas, leaving only the nuns' St. Joseph Hospital to care for the injured and homeless. In 1909, flood waters following a Gulf hurricane washed away their hospital in Corpus Christi, Texas. Three years later, fire destroyed their orphanage in San Antonio, claiming the lives of three children and five nuns.

In 1965, the order established a clinic in Chimbote, Peru. The building housing the medical facility survived an earthquake the following year. On May 31 of this year, in two minutes, the building and its services came to an end in the devastating earthquake which plunged Peru into a national emergency. The four nuns who operated the clinic survived, and have vowed to rebuild.
