

Australians Back Rhodesian Churchmen

Sydney — (RNS)—The Australian Council of Churches' executive committee has asked the federal government to discourage visits to Rhodesia by Australians whose presence would give "aid and comfort to the Rhodesian regime." Particularly to be discouraged, the committee said, are visits to Rhodesia by Australian athletic teams and some of the government's own supporters.

In a message to Prime Minister John Grey Gorton, the Council's president, the Rt. Rev. Norman Faichney, moderator-general of the Presbyterian Church in Australia, declared:

"We draw your attention to the statements of the Roman Catholic Bishops and Anglican and Methodist Church leaders in Rhodesia emphasizing the need for all Rhodesians to move towards equal opportunity in education, vocation and political rights.

"The Australian Council of Churches' executive committee fully supports the Rhodesian Church leaders' stand, which it believes is a correct Christian program."
