Quaid High School

HAP students engage in a wide variety of learning experiences: classwork and contests in mathematics, literature and expression, co-curricular activities, newspaper, yearbook and play, and instruction and competition in sports, basketball, softball, volleyball, track and swimming. The school day runs from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., five days a week.

At an evening commencement exercise attended by parents and home-school principals and teachers, HAP students receive diplomas, final report card and awards for achievement in studies, activities, attendance and sports. This year Mayor Stephen May addressed the graduates and presented the diplomas.
