Faculty Enrichment Day Set at Cardinal Mooney

This Friday, Nov. 20, Cardinal Mooney High School students will have a holiday, while their teachers participate in a Faculty Enrichment Day, the first of four such programs which will take place during the Mooney school year.

"The purpose of our first program," states Sister M. Maureen, vice principal, "is to explore the possibilities of innovative development of the master schedule, and to prepare faculty members for more imaginative development in curriculum planning."

The keynote address, "The Process of Change", will describe the need of innovative teaching and the new role of the teacher in such an educational environment. It will be given by Frank Kamp, formerly assistant principal and director of studies at King's Preparatory, and currently curriculum coordinator of Catholic Secondary Schools.

Faculty members will have the choice of attending two out of three seminars dealing with various aspects of innovative instruction. The three seminars, which will be run simultaneously at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m., are:

Independent Study and Individualized Instruction, presented by Arthur Herd, principal of Hilton Central High, and a recent speaker at the State Association of Secondary School Principals' Convention in Kiamasha, N.Y.

Team Teaching and Departmental Planning, piloted by George Adler, chairman of the Social Studies Department of Sperry High School, located in the Rush-Henrietta School district, an area which has experimented with team teaching for some time.

Use of Unstructured Time, co-conducted by Paul Fauth, principal of Arcadia High School in Greece, who will present the administrator's point of view of unstructured time, and Father Lawrence Murphy, diocesan director of vocations, formerly of King's Preparatory, who will describe the guidance counselor's role with regard to the student's use of unstructured time.

Following a noon summary report of the three seminars, there will be a luncheon for all participants.

Reactors throughout the day's activities will be members of the other diocesan high schools, who have been invited to participate and to help evaluate this newest education project of Cardinal Mooney High School.

CYO League Largest in Upstate N.Y.

The largest basketball league in Upstate New York begins its 20th season when the CYO launches its annual grammar and high school season, November 29.

More than 60 parishes throughout the Diocese (Elmira, Auburn, Geneva, Seneca Falls, Corning and Monroe County areas) will be participating in this year's program. Approximately 2,400 boys from 12-18 will be participating.

In addition, several hundred cheerleaders will be spurring their teams to victory. Following ten-game season, all areas will be conducting post season run-offs in preparation for the annual Diocesan Bishop's Championships Tournament, Mar. 5, 6, and 7.

CYO basketball League began in 1950 when four parishes, St. Thomas the Apostle, St. Monica, Blessed Sacrament, and Sacred Heart coordinated their efforts under auspices of CYO.

Today, 64 parishes participate in this program under the direction of four areas: Rev. James P. Collins, Mr. J. Arthur Kieffer: Elmira-Corning area; Mr. John Walsh and Rev. Philip Billotte: Auburn area; Nicholas Nettl: Seneca Falls area; Howard Revan and Michael Ordway: Rochester, Monroe County area.

School on Display At Sacred Heart

Sacred Heart School has scheduled a "walk-through" for Monday, Nov. 23, during school hours, and an open house for the next evening, Nov. 24.

Sister Sheila, SSJ, principal, has invited parents and other parishioners to see the school in operation Monday, from 9:30 until 11 a.m. and from 1 until 2 p.m.

From 7 until 9 Tuesday night, parents can look over their children's work in the classrooms. The open house will feature, at 8 p.m., a faculty panel evaluating the new enrichment program in grades 6-8.

HEADS COLLEGE TRUSTEES

Ask for the Kenedy edition

From the publishers of the Maryknoll Missal, P. J. Kenedy & Sons

A historic achievement for the Catholic family, school and Church. Fifty eminent theologians and scholars devoted twenty five years of study and effort to provide the first direct translation from the original sources of The Holy Scriptures intended specifically for American worship and study.

To convey this labor of faith and love, P. J. Kenedy & Sons has designed and produced three special editions of this magnificent new Bible.

Since 1826, P. J. Kenedy & Sons has been supplying the Catholic community with literature and materials for worship, study and personal inspiration. Now, with this major step forward in contemporary religion, it is fitting that the oldest Catholic Publishing house in America should once more be called upon.

The generations of service and integrity represented by P. J. Kenedy & Sons are evident in the design and quality of each of the three editions. You will find the Kenedy editions of The New American Bible at better bookstores.
